4-Million-Share Days. Our Smooth Earth. Baptists, and a Wet. Gandhi Should Try Beef.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

Copyright, 1928.

LIGHTS were burning in Wall Street towers until long after midnight yesterday, Sunday, not for anxious mothers awaiting a son's return, but for clerks trying to catch up with the market.

All day yesterday many were still at work while you trudged the links trying to select a winning stock for today.

FOUR-MILLION share days have become "thick as autumnal leaves that strew the brooks in Vallombrosa." Therefore the big stock exchange has decided to close at 2, instead of 3 p. m. The eleven hundred brokers that hold a priceless monopoly will probably sell no fewer shares.

A gambling mania has spread throughout the country and many will suffer that buy foolishly, or beyond their means.

THERE is, unfortuantely, no other way of teaching men not to gamble. A child once burned dreads fire. A man, ruined, knows that gambling does not pay.

TODAY'S "opening" will begin a new, interesting chapter. The Federal Reserve, raising the rediscount rate, has done all it can to discourage what big men call "reckless speculation."

But New York's law forbids a higher rate than 6 per cent for loans to individuals, and that will not stop gamblers. Many a poor devil pays 40 per cent to loan sharks for money to bet on races. The excitement about brokers' loans seems unnecessary, since they amount, all told, to less than 9 per cent of the fifty odd billion market value of stocks listed on the big exchange.

BEGINNING June 15, you may visit the top of Mt. Blanc, without climbing. Airplanes will take you up. Later, a landing field will be established near the top. Still later, you will fly to the top of Mt. Everest, or any other high spot on earth.

COMPARED with the earth's diameter, these high spots are not so high. The earth is actually smoother than an apple. Mountains seem high to us, as the roughness on an apple's skin seems "high" to a microbe on the apple.

THE Senate votes to keep the Federal inheritance tax on dead men's property. To tax men while they live would seem better than taking money from their wives and children.

THE Southern Baptist Church, with 3,700,000 members, votes to "break party lines, if a Wet is nominated." This, of course, refers to Gov. Smith, although the Baptists do not say so.

IF ANY candidate, Dry or Wet, could get the votes of all good church people that are not individually "Dry," he would do well.

MEANWHILE, Democrats talk of nominating Gov. Smith by acclamation. This would choke off many beautifully prepared speeches and probably won't happen. It is certain Gov. Smith has already more than 600 votes, and is nominated.

GANDHI, gentle Hindu leader, re-enters politics "to establish harmony and brotherly love among Hindus and Mohammedans."

THE two kinds of religions and men hate the British, in an unreasoning sort of way, in spite of the fact that Britain gives India what little peace and civilization she possesses.

BUT Hindus and Mohammedans hate each other ten thousand times more than they hate Britain. Religious hate is the vilest and most violent. That is Britain's protection in Asia.

IF GANDHI would teach the feeble Hindus to eat meat and build up red blood, instead of letting thousands of miserable cows die of starvation, he really would worry Britain. A vegetarian race is nothing to fear.

STATISTICS gathered by the Canadian Pacific Railroad show that United States tourists in Canada spent last year $260,000,000, and will spend more this year, thanks to intelligent advertising by Canadian railroads and hotels and thanks to our Volstead act.

THIS travel is a good thing for us, making our citizens realize the bigness of this continent, and the value of Canada's friendship.

Mexico invites American tourists also, and permits six months' sojourn and travel, with no passport formality or expense. An identification card, supplied without cost by any Mexican consul, is sufficient.

Mine Yields 59 Dead

By AL GOUGH,
Staff Correspondent.

PIT MOUTH, Mather, Pa., May 21.—Grimly determined to hang on to the slightest hope for the 138 men still entombed in Mather Mine, wrecked by an explosion Saturday afternoon, rescue teams from practically every part of the state continued their search of the black pits 350 feet down in the bowels of the earth today. As time wore on, that hope faded, but the rescuers forged ahead relentlessly.

Fifty-nine bodies had been recovered from the workings up to this afternoon. One man who came out of the mine alive died in a hospital today, bringing the total of known dead to 60.

After finding nine bodies this morning near Butt 15, the rescuers pushed on, building air locks to carry the fresh air with them. At Butt 24, they came upon 11 bodies. Some of them mangled and burned, indicating that the greatest force of the blast was felt in this region.

ONLY DAY MEN FOUND

Henry Filer, loader, who left the mine a few minutes before the explosion spread death through the tunnels, said that practically all the bodies brought out so far were those of day shift men. He said the rescuers must fight their way 4,000 feet further back before they will reach No. 9 North, where the entire night shift was on duty. The explosion occurred just as the day

THREE CENTS

Beginning today, the price of the daily editions of The Sun-Telegraph is three cents.

The desire to improve and enlarge our community service and the increasing costs of producing a newspaper are responsible for this advance.

In nearly all the large cities of this country today the three-cent price for afternoon papers maintains—in New York, Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles, etc.

A greatly improved newspaper and one that will be worth at least three cents, is our pledge.

The price of the great Sunday Sun-Telegraph will remain at 10 cents.

30 IN VOTE MUDDLE PLEAD

Thirty election officials pleaded no defense to negligence in Criminal Court today. At the same time, 15 members of three boards elected to go on trial.

Those who pleaded no defense were members of the election boards in the First, Second, Third and Thirty-third districts of the Fourth Ward; Tenth District, Twentieth Ward, and the Second District, Fourth Ward, of Homestead.

The election officials of the Seventh District, Third Ward, one of the 11 boards scheduled to go on trial today, failed to appear and Judge Harry H. Rowand, at the request of District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner, ordered their bonds forfeited.

Those who pleaded no defense were to be arraigned formally later in the day before Judge Rowand. They were: First District, Fourth Ward, William A. Miller, Harry E. Goldman, Thomas P. Lahey, Patrick F. McKnight, Henry Basial; Second District, Fourth Ward, William Moff, Matthew Reinhart, Robert R. Sanner, Stella Griffith, Joseph Matthews; Third District, Fourth Ward, Jerry Sullivan, Thomas McGrail, Martin Hanlon, Charles Rodgers, Calvin Darnell; Thirty-third District, Fourth Ward, Thomas F. Coyne, Patrick J. Dorsey, William A. Nordheim, Thomas P. Quigley, James Harris.

Tenth District, Twentieth Ward—Michael R. Carlin, John Walters, Thomas J. Byrnes, Jerry Rubin, F. W. Reed. Second District, Fourth Ward, Homestead—Vincent F. McCoy, Matthew F. Grady, Evan Williams, Catherine Gibb, Marcello Grady.

The election officials who will stand trial are: Seventh District, Twentieth Ward, John E. Grimm, Margaret Dahner, Walker Killmeyer, Mrs. Johanna McCarthy, Isabel Ganley; Twenty-fourth District, Nineteenth Ward, James F. Bingham, James Howard, James H. Abbott, Joseph Howard, James F. Finn; Tenth District, First Ward, Alfred Young, John McClelland, John Clark, Anthony Manella, Sam Caplan. It was stated on behalf of Margaret Dahner, who did not appear, that her father is dying.

She Sues to Stop Husband "Saying It With Flowers"

Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 21.

"SAYING IT WITH FLOWERS" became more than a habit with James Barrett Johnson. It got to be an obsession. So Mrs. Johnson got an injunction.

It was all right, she agreed, for Johnson to say it with flowers in the courtship days. It was a pretty sentiment that he continued to talk with blooms after they had been married. But when he persisted in sending flowers after she had sued for divorce, Mrs. Johnson decided something ought to be done.

In her petition for injunction, which was granted, Mrs. Johnson asked the court to prevent her husband sending floral gifts, candies and picking the same street cars as she for his journeys about town.

Johnson, however, is inclined to believe that the constitution guarantees to men the inalienable right to send flowers to their wives. His attorney, therefore, prepared a petition for dissolution of the injunction, which was to be presented in court today. The injunction, Johnson's lawyer said, is "contrary to public policy, and illegal."

COMB YOUNGSTOWN FOR GIRL MISSING WEEK

By T. H. B. PATTERSON,
Staff Correspondent.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., May 21.—Following an appeal by Mayor William Hefferman, 500 school boys aided by hundreds of citizens today started a systematic search of Mill Creek Park, where blood-stains and articles believed to have belonged to missing Beatrice Rosenbaum, 10, were found.

The entire south side of Youngstown has been zoned and will be searched systematically, as police have abandoned the theory that the girl was kidnaped and taken out of the city.

A handkerchief and an Audubon Society pin, thought to belong to the missing child, were found, along with a man's pipe on the bank of the "Bottomless Pool" in Mill Creek Park.

MOTHER COLLAPSES

Mrs. Max Rosenbaum, mother of Beatrice, collapsed after identifying the articles as those of her daughter.

11 DIE, 90 OVERCOME BY FUMES

HAMBURG, Germany, May 21.—(AP.)—Faced with all the grim reality of chemical warfare, the city of Hamburg today was fighting a deluge of phosgene gas — a wartime poison gas—which began escaping from a chemical factory in the Free Harbor district last night, overcoming a large number of persons.

By noon today 11 persons, most of them firemen and policemen, were dead and 90 victims were in hospitals under treatment.

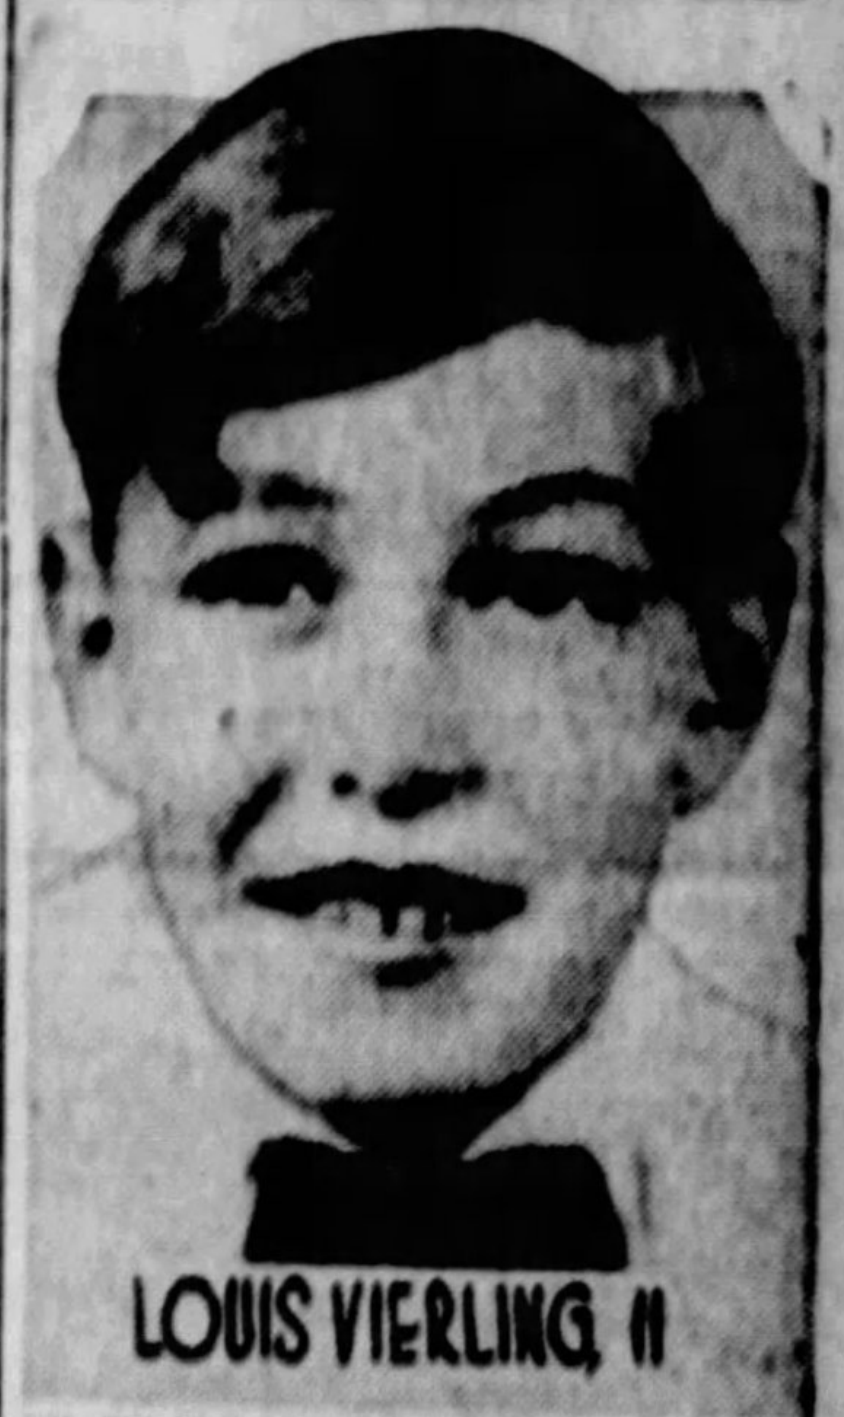
The entire city was menaced but it was hoped that rain which set in would absorb the gas fumes. A needed number of gas masks for the use of those actively fighting the menace reached Hamburg from Berlin after an emergency call had been sent for them. A northeast wind also was carrying the fumes from the city in the direction of the nearby town of Wilhelmsburg.

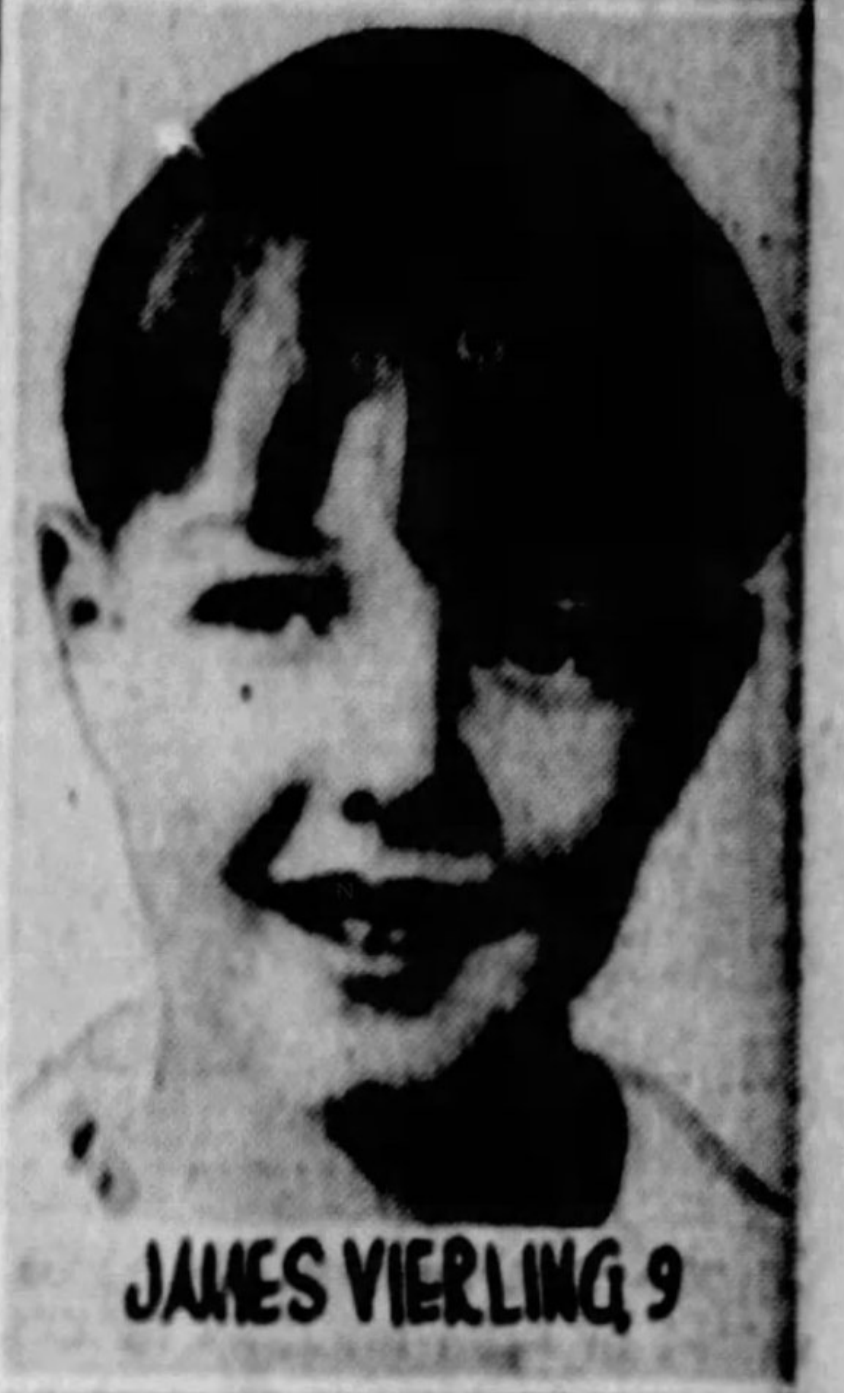
The gas escaped from a tank in the chemical factory of Dr. Hugo Stolzenburg. Phosgene is no longer manufactured there but quantities of it were stated to have been accumulated and stored for exportation to the United States.

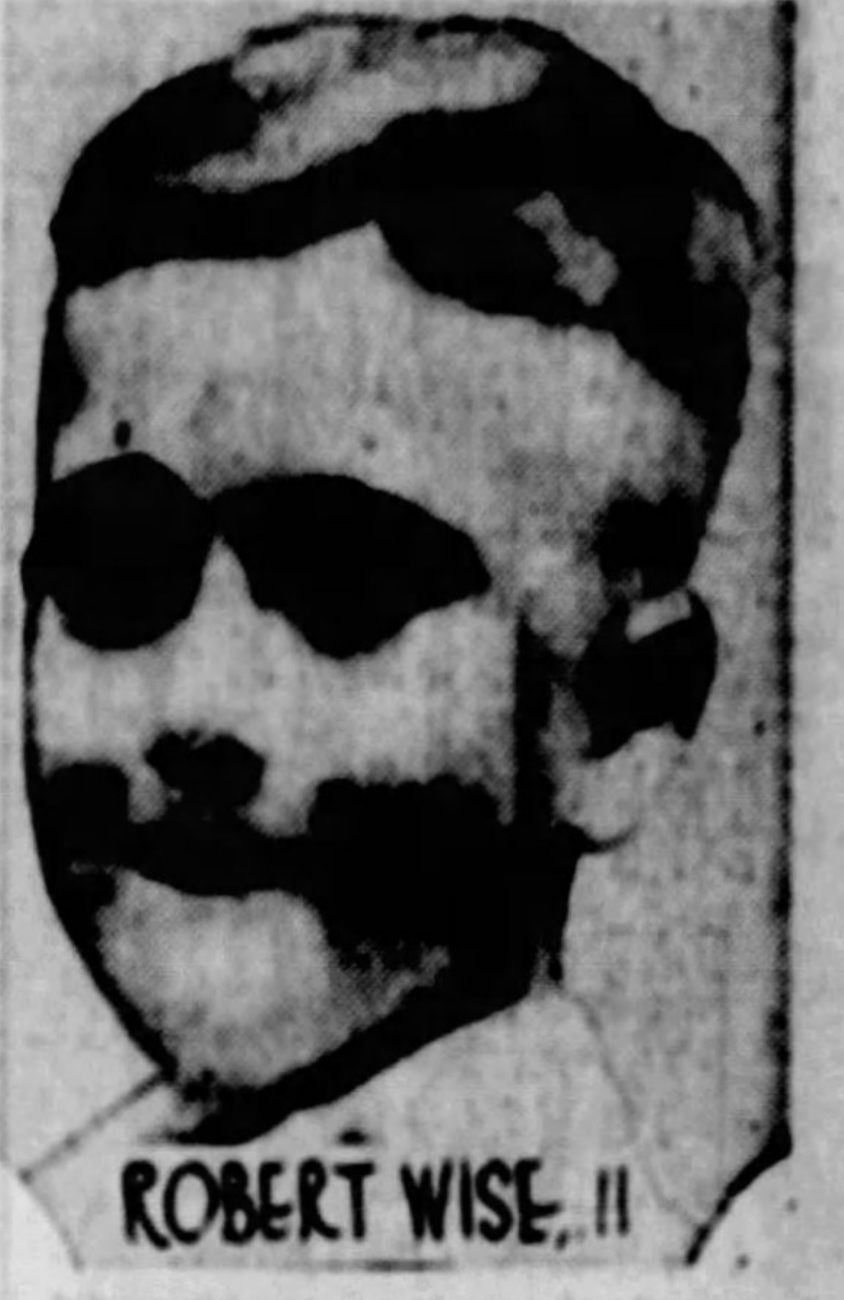
The first effects of the gas were felt near the harbor, driving residents of the district from their homes in panic. Troops were called out and guided men, women and children to other sections of the city and the streets in the menaced district were closed. The emigration sheds of the Hamburg-American line were pressed into service to shelter the homeless while the police requisitioned all available milk as a gas antidote.

So serious was the menace that all the ambulances and fire brigades in Hamburg were mobilized for service. The fire brigades donning gas masks and fighting off the fumes with ammonia.

HAVE YOU SEEN THREE BOYS ATOP GRAY MARE?







THEY'RE RIDING!

Three boys and a gray mare are sought throughout Allegheny and Butler counties. The boys, Louis Vierling, 11, and his brother, James, 9, 220 Taylor street, and Robert Wise, 11, 234 Fearl street, and the mare were last seen leaving the farm of Daniel Behm, near Evans City, the boys astride the horse. With Behm's permission they obtained the horse, owned by the Vierling boy's father, and rode away.

Bucs Meet Reds in 2 Today

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

CINCINNATI, May 21.—The Pittsburgh Pirates faced the prospect of engaging in their first double header of the season here today with the Cincinnati Reds, with a crippled lineup. Sparky Adams, the Buccos' diminutive second sacker is confined to his bed with bronchial trouble and is not expected to get into the lineup this afternoon.

Adams was examined by a physician this morning, who found the little fellow's throat badly inflamed and his general condition poor. Sparky first complained of feeling ill after yesterday's contest with the Reds, which was lost, 3 to 2.

Manager Bush is uncertain as to which of his hurlers he would call upon for duty today, but likely will use John Miljus in the first game and Joe Dawson or Fred Fussell in the second.

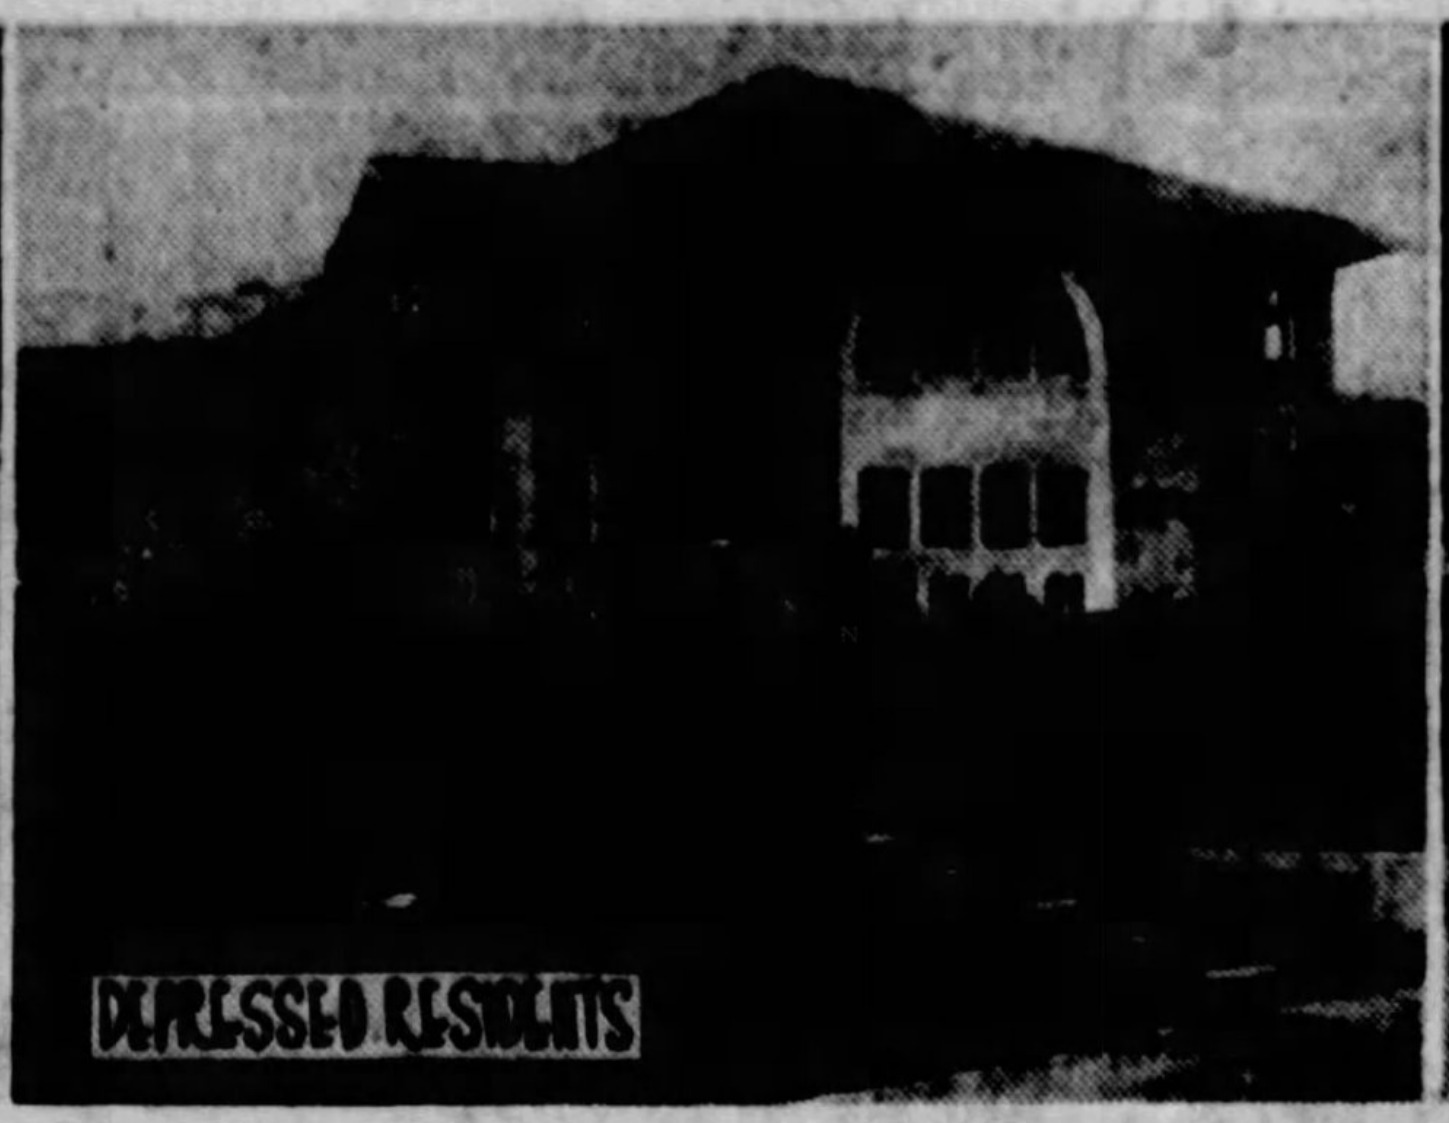
HOSPITALS

Emergency morgues, hospitals and first-aid stations have been established at Mather, where hundreds of men seek to save the lives or recover the bodies of those buried in the Mather Colleries Company mine. Note the police line.



SOLEMN

The disaster, comparable only with the greatest mine calamities in American mining history, has cast gloom over the little town. Small groups, some anxious for friends and fathers and husbands, dot the streets, expressing their anxiety.

SPECTATORS

Hundreds from the surrounding territory have flocked to Mather "to see" the blasted mine. Police lines have been established all around the workings. Note here, Mather people above and buildings in these pictures. For a mining community the town is unusually clean.

STATE POLICE

State police, as usual, were among the first to respond and are heading the police forces on duty at the mine. Here, a mounted trooper patrols one of the "deadlines," keeping back the morbidly curious who seek to get near the shaft.

GERMAN PLANE BREMEN WRECKED IN CRASH

Socialists Sweep German Election; Streseman Wins

Sunday -:- COUNTY RAIDS DICE GAME -:- Gambling

FIRST GAME

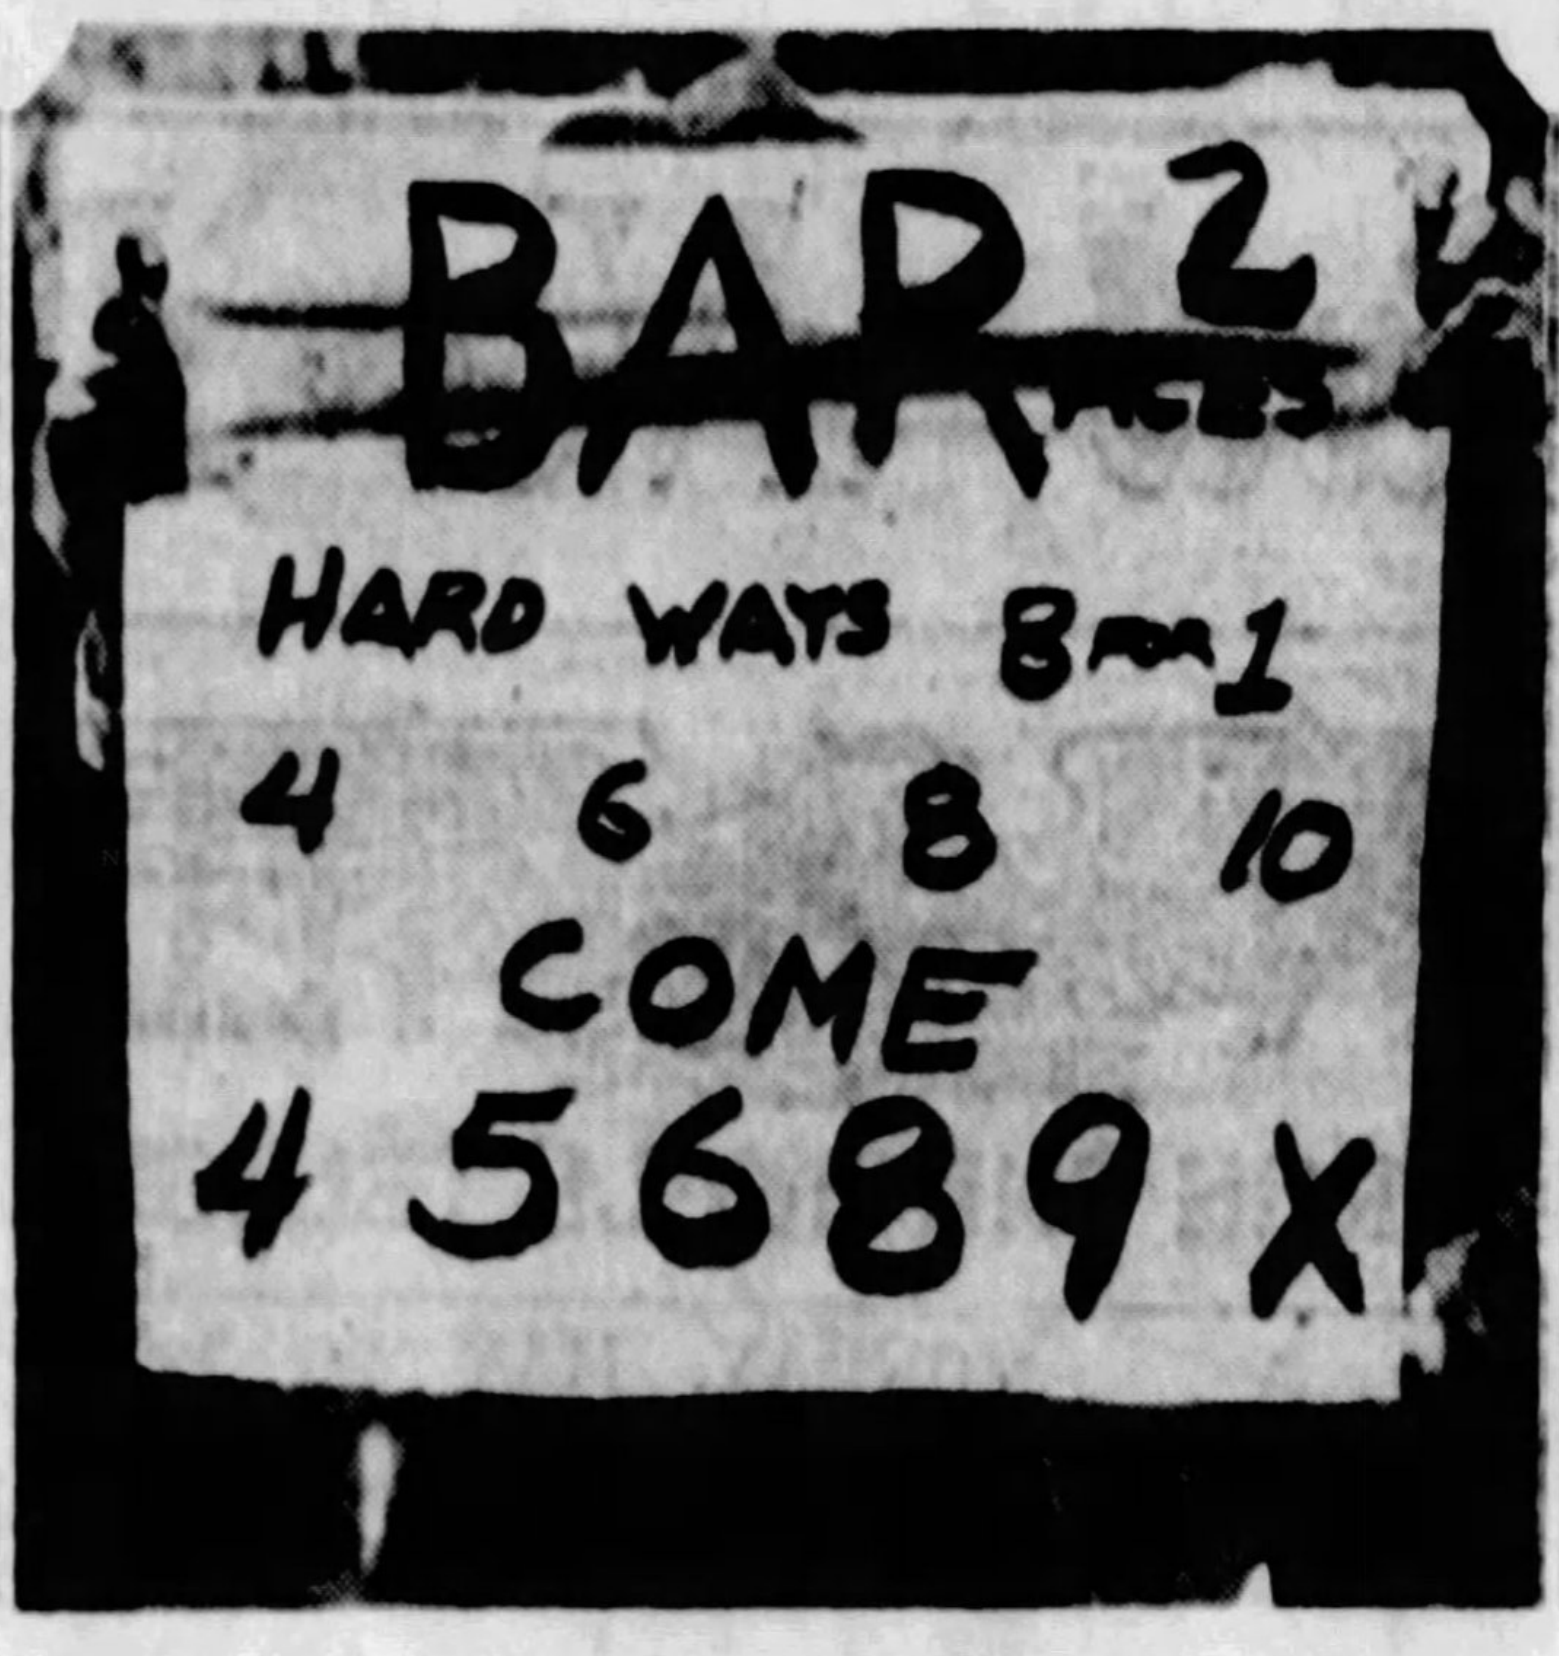
RELEASED

The third arrest was Morris Weimer (above). The three prisoners were released on $15 forfeits.



EVIDENCE

This evidence was left behind when the gamesters fled. It is a dice card by which the gamblers measure their bets. This, along with $1.65, was confiscated by detectives.

SCENE

The game was young and had reached only the nickel and dime stage when the raid was launched. Where a crowd of 200 was expected, only 25 were found. Lookouts sounded the alarm.

BREMEN IS WRECKED IN CRASH

International News Service.

HALIFAX, N. S., May 21.—Wrecked almost beyond repair in attempting to take off from Blanc Sablon, Labrador, the trans-Atlantic monoplane Bremen will have to remain there indefinitely until a boat arrives to bring it to New York, advices from Point Amour, Labrador, stated today.

With Fred Melchior, the Junkers expert, at the controls, and Dr. Cuisinier and Mechanic Thibeault accompanying him, the plane rose about 20 feet after a short dash down the runway built at Blanc Sablon, and suddenly dropped to the ground.

Neither Melchior nor his companions were hurt; but the entire left side of the plane was badly damaged, as it fell sideways. The reason for its sudden fall has not been ascertained.

Melchior reached the Bremen by dropping in a parachute from one of the Army amphibian planes which were to escort the German ship to New York. Cuisinier and the mechanic had been working on the plane for some time.

The Army planes were unable to land on Blanc Sablon, which is on the straits of Belle Isle, because of floating ice. They are now at Pictou, N. S.

3 M'KEESPORT AUTOISTS HURT IN TWO CRASHES

Three men are in McKeesport Hospital, the result of two auto accidents today and last night. Julius Fasti, 23, of 2618 Walnut street, and Galen A. Gamble, 34, 2611 Walnut street, both of McKeesport, crashed into a street car in Walnut street, McKeesport, at 1 a. m. today. Both are bruised on the head and body. Serafin Garrido, of 423 Twenty-eighth street, McKeesport, collided with another auto in Long Run road at 9 o'clock last night and was cut about the face. Winfield King, of Snake hollow, escaped injury.

'Choose' Meaning Forthcoming in 3 Weeks—Will

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May 21.—When a word comes out and you don't know what it means, you rush to old man Webster. But when one comes out and even Webster don't know what it means, why our only chance to learn what it means is to ask the man that used it. But when he only replies, "It means what it means," why, we are not any better informed than we were at first. So we just have to wait till something happens that makes him divulge his secret.

Will Rogers.

Well, in Kansas City, three weeks from today, it happens, we will learn for the first time on any stage, if "choose" means "yes," "no," "maybe," "I can't tell yet," "who knows," "search me," "probably" or "perhaps."

I claim that it means, "I will under proper pressure," so don't argue—just wait three weeks. Yours,

WILL.

NOTE LAYS DEATH TO POLITICS

DETROIT, May 21.—(AP.)—A denial that he was guilty of murder and the assertion that his "conscience is clear," was written by Dr. Frank Remington Loomis, shortly before he took his own life here Saturday.

The reason for Dr. Loomis' suicide, a year after he was acquitted of the slaying of his wife, was given only inferentially.

"I have endured to my mind the severest kind of humiliation and disrespect for over a year," the note read. "This was all due to cheap political maneuvering on the part of would-be office holders."

"My trouble now is terrible loneliness and disrespect and discouragement," the note added.

The remainder of the note was devoted to comment respecting newspaper articles and tribute to "many wonderful friends" in Detroit and Brooklyn, Michigan, the doctor's boyhood home.

The doctor's letter was addressed to the Detroit News, which received it today.

The search for Mrs. Gertrude E. Newell, divorcee and friend of Dr. Loomis, who was sought following the doctor's suicide, has ceased as a result of assurances made by her counsel that when the "death letter" written by Loomis appeared she would be produced.

Examination of the letter showed that although Dr. Loomis was found dying in a dentist's office adjoining his own suite, at 8:30 a. m. Saturday, it was not cleared through the local postoffice until 11 P. M. Saturday.

It appeared in print almost exactly 48 hours—as Dr. Loomis had predicted—from the time of his death. In another note addressed to the police, the physician had said "a newspaper article will be published in 24 or 48 hours explaining this act on my part."

FIANCE AT CO-ED'S BEDSIDE

CHICAGO, May 21.—(INS.)—Miss Helen R. Owens, University of Chicago co-ed who swallowed poison when her parents objected to her marriage, was reported dying at the Campus Hospital today.

At her bedside are her parents and the sweetheart she could not live without. The latter is John Mayer, of Pittsburgh, an engineer.

The girl's father, Prof. Frederick W. Owens, dean of mathematics at State College, Pa., placed the boy's hand in that of the girl and gave them his blessing. Hoping to restore her will to live, he assured both there was no objections to their marriage.

Prof. Owens declared his daughter had over-emphasized the attitude he and Mrs. Owens had taken of the affair.

"We merely counseled delay until she had finished her studies," he said.

The girl swallowed a slow-acting poison, which, according to physicians, is almost impossible to counteract after it permeates the system. Three more blood transfusions, bringing the total to 11, were accomplished yesterday.

More than a hundred fellow-students of the stricken girl had volunteered for this service.

John D. Mayer, mentioned in Chicago dispatches as the sweetheart of Miss Helen R. Owens, University of Chicago student whose love for Mayer impelled her to take poison, is an employe of the American Sheet and Tinplate Company in Pittsburgh.

His home is in Bath, N. Y., and he graduated as an engineer from Cornell University in 1922. Mayer has been living at the Downtown Y. M. C. A. He left for Chicago Friday night upon being informed of Miss Owens' serious condition.

CURIOUS HALTED FAR FROM MINE

WAYNESBURG, Pa., May 21.—Thousands of motorists, hoping for a glimpse of the ill fated Mather mine where so many workers were trapped in an explosion Saturday, were disappointed yesterday when they were turned back five miles from the little mining hamlet.

State Highway Patrol men, called in Saturday when the traffic jam interfered with rescuers and equipment, were on the job all last night and today. Motorists who had no specific business in Mather were not permitted within five miles of the town.

All day yesterday and far into the night, a steady stream of machines passed down the state road leading into Waynesburg. The road leading into Mather runs out of Jefferson and there is no outlet on the other side.

While the state officers patrolled the road on both sides of Jefferson, keeping the sight-seeing vehicles on the move, another detail was stationed at the Jefferson cross roads to examine credentials of motorists wishing to get into Mather. Between Jefferson and Mather there were four patrols and motorists were required to exhibit their credentials at each station.

None but rescue squads, physicians, officials of the company, relatives of men entombed in the mine and others with legitimate reasons for visiting the mining town were permitted through the police lines.

Police and fire officials from neighboring communities aided in the motor patrol in directing traffic.

Kills Self With Auto Fumes

A suicide by the exhaust gas of his car, the body of a man, believed that of Emil J. Meisel, about 40, of 17 Le Grand road, Irondequoit, N. Y., was found today on a little-used road off the Perry highway at Warrendale.

D. Reese, chief clerk of the Thorn Hill Home for Boys, seeking escaped youths, noticed a rubber hose protruding underneath a coupe near an abandoned barn. Investigating, he found a man, slumped over the wheel, one hand clutching the hose, the other end of which was attached to the muffler. A handkerchief was bound over his mouth.

For four days the man had been unnoticed, in the opinion of Dr. L. G. Davis, of Warrendale, who examined the body. In his clothing was found $210 in traveler's checks, bearing his name, $25 cash and a card asking that "Dr. Reynolds, of Rochester, N. Y.," be notified. A kit of carpenter's tools was found in the machine. The body was removed to the morgue.

SOCIALISTS VICTORS IN GERMANY

BERLIN, May 21.—(AP.)—Returns today from the election of a new Reichstag yesterday indicated that the Socialists were the strongest political unit in Germany. The Socialists registered decisive gains while the German Nationalist party's losses were conspicuous.

It was unofficially forecast that that the new Reichstag would be composed as follows in comparison with the old: Socialists, 160, last, 131; German Nationalists, 70, last, 111; Center, 69; Communists 58, last, 45; Peoples' party, 54; last, 51; Democrats, 25, last, 32; Economic party, 23, last, 17; Fascists, 16, last, 14;;; Bavarian Peoples' party, 19, last, 19; other parties, 6.

STRESEMANN SAFE

Dr. Stresemann did not poll sufficient votes in Upper Bavaria to assure his election there, but as the Peoples' party vote in Upper and Lower Bavaria will be combined he may get a Bavarian seat. His election was sure in any case since he headed the so-called Reichliste, to which the surplus votes of the various electoral districts will be assigned.

Dr. Stresemann, who is recuperating from a severe illness, was not allowed to vote by his physicians, although polling places had been established in all large Berlin hospitals. He was permitted, however, to receive election bulletins until long after midnight.

Chancellor Marx, Minister of Justice Hergt, Minister of Labor Brauns, Minister of Communications Koch, Minister of Economics Curtius, Finance Minister Koehler, Premier Otto Braun, of Prussia; Herr Thaelman, Communist leader, and former Finance Minister Kulz were among those elected.

LEE DE FOREST, inventor, born in Council Bluffs, Ia., August 26, 1873. Educated at Yale and was a member of the Yale batyter in the Spanish-American War. One of the pioneers in the development of wireless telegraphy in America and has won many honors for his achievements. His "audion" dtector and amplifier is his most notable invention. Resides in Spuyten Duyvil, New York.

I think the entire radio world realizes to some extent the debt it owes to Pittsburgh; and the sterling worth of the development that the engineers of the Westinghouse Company, notably under the leadership of Messrs. Conrad and Davis, have contributed.

I supose that KDKA on a short wave is known in more distant parts of the globe than any other station and has taken the lead in proving the worth of a short wave for radio broadcasting.

I remember demonstrating the practicability of wireless telegraphy to George Westinghouse at the first commercial station established in New York City at 17 State street. This was in 1903. Mr. Westinghouse was at that time only mildly interested. It was therefore particularly gratifying to me to note that 16 years after that the Westinghouse Company undertook their intensive development of radio technique.

700 MORE SUMMONED FOR LIQUOR QUIZ

When the Federal grand jury probing the so-called rum conspiracy in Pittsburgh convened this morning, there were more than 700 persons under summons for interrogation as to their knowledge of illicit liquor traffic in city wards.

In resuming the probe today, after the week-end recess, the jury broke into its third week of the investigation. Since convening on May 7, for the present term of the Federal District Court, the grand jurors have given eight full days and several night sessions to the liquor probe.

Since the jury adjourned Friday, the government authorities issued between 650 and 700 subpenas for new witnesses, who are being called from all sections of the city. More than 500 witnesses already have been heard. When the investigation before the grand jury will end, government officials will not even venture a guess, other than it will run into next week.

Before the grand jurors convened today, the corridors of the Federal Building were crowded with some 200 bartenders, saloonkeepers and others, the first to be called of the group of whom subpenas were issued Saturday. The witnesses were to be presented to the grand jury by wards, starting with the First Ward and ending wherever the so-called booze boodle ended.

What began as an investigation of the North Side has spread to all parts of the city, most of the new subpenas being served in the "Strip," East Liberty and Oakland.

The Federal attorneys are expected to make some move today or tomorrow to break the deadlock between them and city attorneys regarding the inspection of city police reports. The Federal lawyers asked for permission to examine the books for a great number of liquor cases, but the city refused them permission unless they asked for specific cases.

PITTSBURGHERS IN FATAL SPILL RECOVER

The half dozen Pittsburghers who were injured when the Pennsylvania Railroad's extra fare train, "The Pittsburgher," was wrecked near Johnstown, yesterday all were virtually recovered from their bruises today. The investigation of raiload officials was going on today, however, to determine how two freight cars had been derailed and thrown in front of the speeding passenger train just a few feet beyond the Johnstown station, resulting in the wreck which cost the life of one employe.

The fireman was killed, the engineer injured seriously and scores of passengers, including several Pittsburghers, were bruised and shaken up when the passenger train ploughed into the derailed freight cars. The freight cars were part of an eastbound freight train. The passenger engine was virtually demolished.

John Dreese, 44, of Altoona, the fireman was crushed and scalded at his post. John C. Hooper of Altoona, the engineer, was thrown clear of the wreckage and was picked up on the right of way. Both legs were fractured and he was otherwise injured. He was taken to the Cambria Hospital.

The Pittsburgh passengers who were injured included Mrs. Eli B. Kaufmann of 1203 Malvern avenue; Mrs. H. C. Elste of 6563 Bartlett street; W. J. Roberts of South Winebiddle avenue; W. C. Stevenson of Shields; Robert L. Vance, 518 Fourth avenue, and T. W. Koehler of 759 Glenn avenue, Wilkinsburg. All were able to resume their journey homeward after the crash.

Charles Bowser, Johnstown policeman and John A. Monahan, storekeeper were standing in front of the latter's place when the box car left the tracks. They ran along the right-of-way to flag the fast approaching passenger train. An examination of the wreckage revealed that the engineer had apparently had time to set his brakes before the engine struck the derailed car.

CHARLEROI MAN HEADS WEST DISTRICT B. P. O. E.

Joseph L. Connell, of Charleroi, was elected president of the Western Pennsylvania district of B. P. O. Elks yesterday at the annual election of that organization held in North Side Temple, Cedar avenue. John F. Nugent, of Braddock lodge was named vice president and C. H. Roberts and C. S. Brown were named treasurer and secretary, respectively.

PEDESTRIAN WK. LESSON TOLD

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY,

This Is Pedestrian Week. Have you taken it seriously?

There is a picture of sadness and horror words cannot paint. It is the picture of a little child crushed under the wheels of an automobile, a street car, or the feet of horses.

The picture of a boy or girl—happy and full of the joy of living gaily dashing across the street for a toy or to join a companion and being killed mercilessly without warning, a gay shout stopped in a tiny throat.

Many have seen that very thing happen. Many times I have rushed to such a scene to paint that word-picture. And there is always the thought, "Oh, why will parents let their children play in the streets—and be so careless?"

But, again, there are thousands of children who must play in the streets. It is their only chance for sunlight and air. So that this situation leaves only one way out. Children MUST be made to see, even though tiny and irresponsible, the danger that lies in the street with the ever increasing traffic.

Begin when they are mere babies. A good way is to make the start by setting the example yourselves. Tell your little boy or girl what happens to other little folk when they get too busy playing and run in front of trucks and cars. Show them pictures of accidents. Tell them stories of them. A little fright is better than death.

Any car owner knows his great worry is the children who run in front of his machine and keep him forever on the lookout. When he has a near-accident does he go home and give his own little family a lecture on safety—and tell them about it?

Churches, civilian societies—organizations of all kinds—are working to make Pedestrian Week as educational as possible. But the big job is up to the parents.

DESPONDENT BRADDOCK MAN TRIES SUICIDE

Out of work and despondent, Mike Dalschak, 32, of 1120 Halkett street, Braddock, shot himself in the left breast at 6:30 a. m. today and is in a serious condition in Braddock Hospital.

DR. S. J. FISHER, PRESBYTERIAN LEADER, DIES

The Rev. Dr. Samuel Jackson Fisher, 80, former Presbyterian leader and widely known teacher and author, died late Saturday night at his home, 5611 Kentucky avenue.

Dr. Fisher was born in Cincinnati. He was graduated from Hamilton college while his father, the late Rev. Dr. Samuel Ware Fisher, was its president. He then entered the Auburn Theological Seminary and later became the first pastor of the Swissvale Presbyterian church, retiring in 1905 after 35 years there.

For many years Dr. Fisher was professor of mental and moral science at Pennsylvania College for Women and was a lecturer, librarian, trustee and later secretary of the Western Theological Seminary. He was also president of the Presbyterian Board of Missions for the Freedmen.

He received degrees from Hamilton college and from the University of Pittsburgh in 1892.

His published works include "The American Negro," "Our Suburbs," "The Negro," "An American Asset" and "The Book of Verse."

Dr. Fisher leaves two sons, Gordon Fisher, of Pittsburgh, president of Spang-Chalfant & Company, and Howard Fisher, of Greenwich, Conn.

AD MEN TO HEAR LAWRENCE

David Lawrence, editor and founder of "The United States Daily," will address the members of the Pittsburgh Advertising Club at their luncheon tomorrow in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium. The subject of the talk is, "The Long Look Ahead."

David Lawrence.

Mr. Lawrence is an outstanding figure in American journalism. He was born in Philadelphia in 1888, and began his newspaper work as a reporter on the "Buffalo Express" in 1903. Following his graduation from Princeton in 1910, he became a member of the Washington Bureau of the Associated Press. In this capacity he covered many news events of both national and international importance, particularly during the war period. In 1919 the Consolidated Press Association was formed to distribute Mr. Lawrence's dispatches. This organization is still maintained for this purpose.

BRANDON HOLDS 2 IN DRY CASE

Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals court yesterday held two persons for court on charges of violating the Snyder act, a charge that had dropped into the scrap heap for some time as far as the city police were concerned. William Jones of Bedford avenue, and Mary Kowish of Market street, Woods Run, were those held for court. Persons arrested in establishments conducted by the two testified they had purchased liquor.

WORKMAN SLAYS U. S. OIL MAN IN MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, May 21.—(AP.) Dispatches to Excelsior today said that F. F. Nolden, American superintendent of the Latin-American Oil Company, had been murdered by a workman at Alamo, near Tampico. The workman was said to have drawn a gun and fired at Nolden, killing him instantly, during a discussion with the superintendent. Nolden's address in the United States was not given.

FIRST RESCUER INTO PIT LACKED EVEN LIGHT

HUNT SPREADS FOR GIRL

is in the pool," she cried, "and that her slayer will be found."

Detectives planned to drain the pool.

The theory that the girl may have been killed under Umbrella rock, Mill Creek Park, near her home, was supported today when Lloyd Myers, of Holmes street, Youngstown, reported that on Monday, May 14, the day of the girl's disappearance, he saw a man in an automobile in Mill Creek Park with a girl. The descriptions answered those of Beatrice and her alleged abductor.

The foul play theory is gaining adherents since it has been learned that the tongue-tied child had been drilled to say "Fifty-three West Marion," and would always lisp the phrase whenever addressed. So many have heard the parrot-like repetition by the child of her street address that the theory that she may have wandered away from home and not been able to tell strangers where she came from is scouted.

Two significant utterances came from the police today.

"We no longer believe that the girl was kidnaped and removed from Youngstown, and the present investigation must start from the Rosenbaum home," Chief of Police J. J. McNicholas said.

"Dead or alive, little Beatrice Rosenbaum will be found within a mile of her home," Wallace Metcalfe, superintendent of vice squad, said.

Neither official would amplify his statement.

GROPED TO FIND DEAD AND DYING

PIT MOUTH Mathers, Pa., May 21.—August Carnock, the first man to enter the mine after Saturday's fatal blast, returned to the surface with a grim tale of suffering and horror among the trapped victims.

Carnock was a member of the first relief squad to enter the air shaft, about five miles from the main entrance. The party made their way down 400 or more steps to the main entry, only to find four flights of stairs demolished. Carnock slid down a pipe without a light.

"I stood still and listened," he said, "and I heard some one calling for help. Groping about, I came across one fellow who was just about all in. He died as I reached him and I heard another call.

"Crawling on my hands and knees for a little distance, I stopped again and was nearly scared to death when I heard a voice directly under my feet.

"The poor fellow was buried under a pile of slate and coal. I dug him out and carried him back to the shaft.

"A trip of cars was standing in the main heading, so I made my way along it looking for others. Alongside of the motor were two men, one lying across the other. They were dead.

"I went a little further and found another man sitting in one of the cars, his arms at his side, as if he were sleeping. I shook him and found he was dead, too.

"It was the same everywhere. Dead men were all about, most of them burned to death, or suffocated. Sometimes the victims body had been crushed by slate. Some of them were buried.

"The air was getting bad and I had to leave. I shall never forget the horror of that black pit."

As Carnock finished, one of his fellow workers called to him.

"So long!" he called back. "Got to go down again and help clean up."

MINE PIT YIELDS 39 BODIES

men were leaving and the night crew went to work.

Out of the 211 men believed to have been in the mine at the time of the blast, only 14 got out alive and one of them died today. The last three of the living were found by rescuers about 2 o'clock Sunday morning near the air shaft, almost five miles from the main entrance. They were forced to remain in the mine almost 12 hours after the blast. Seven men still are in hospitals.

Bad air and the fact that the mine was wrecked so badly make it impossible for more than one rescue team of 10 men to work at a time. They work in shifts of four hours each and each man is required to wear a gas mask. Usually there are three teams in the mine at once, one going in and another coming out while the third is at work. The rescuers are working around the blast area and have reached a point in 29 butt, about three miles from the main shaft.

The bodies thus far recovered have been picked up at scattered points, the men evidently having been on their way out when caught in the blast. If any of those remaining in the mine are still alive, it is believed, they have barricaded themselves in a section of the mine remaining unexplored since the blast. But the general opinion is that no one could live long with the air as bad as it is.

The rescuers say they have come across no sign that any of the men still live and they do not expect to reach the section where the entombed men may be until late this afternoon.

Supt. J. H. Evans, who has been on the job constantly since Saturday afternoon, was near collapse early this morning. He has been directing the rescue work personally from the interior.

"We are not going to give up until we are absolutely certain our men are dead," he declared before being taken home and put to bed under physicians' orders, and in this he was quickly seconded by Frank Armstrong, general manager of the Pickands-Mather Collieries Company of Cleveland, O., operators of the mine. Mr. Armstrong rushed here from Ohio Saturday night and has been constantly in touch with the situation.

L. O. Lougee, of Pittsburgh, consulting engineer for the company, said that while he feared the worst he was still hopeful that some of the entombed men might be found alive.

"In an explosion like this, almost anything is liable to happen," he said. "If these men succeeded in getting to a remote section of the mine and barricaded themselves, they may still be living, and we are taking no chances of overlooking anything that might save a life."

CAUSED BY GAS

The blast occurred in No. 15 butt, about one and three-quarter miles from the main shaft, as near as company official could figure out. They said the explosion was probably caused by gas.

The interior of the mine was badly wrecked, brattices being torn down and heavy rock falls occurring in many places. Many of the victims brought to the surface were buried under heavy rock and in some cases their bodies were mutilated beyond recognition.

Nearly all of the bodies brought out up to this morning were badly burned. The clothing was burned off some of them and the flesh was burned as black as the coal they dug.

Carload after carload of lumber has gone down into the shaft as the rescuers make their way to the interior of the mine. Several hundred experienced miners, all members of rescue teams from practically every section of the state, are working in shifts to open the entries and explore the innermost recesses of the mine.

On the surface, a number of relief organizations have taken their places beside the rescue teams and are doing everything in their power to relieve distress among the women and children.

RELIEF FOR LIVING

The Waynesburg chapter of the American Red Cross was the first relief organization on the scene. A group of capable women arrived soon after word of the disaster reached them and they brought food, clothing, cigarets, tobacco and many other necessities for the rescue squads, police and firemen.

The Salvation Army was not long in bringing relief, and yesterday afternoon several troops of Boy Scouts came in from surrounding towns to assist in the establishment of safety lines and routing traffic.

Nearby to the movie and recreation hall is a little church. Sunday morning services were dispensed with and the women of the town busied themselves preparing food for the rescue squads and police.

The whole town is literally turned "upside down." Sorrow has fallen upon the people and they will not soon forget. It is the first disaster ever to occur at this mine.

P. R. R. SENDS FOOD

There was a shortage of food here yesterday, occasioned by the great influx of relief and rescue people, firemen and police from all over this end of the state. The Pennsylvania Railroad sent a dining car loaded with foodstuffs and truck loads of provisions were sent in from other nearby towns. The dining car was put in operation alongside the United States Bureau of Mines rescue car near the shaft and the workers were fed as fast as they came out of the mine all last night and today.

Three large trucks loaded with caskets arrived from Pittsburgh late last night. Several other large shipments are on the way, a scarcity of burial boxes being felt in this region following removal of the first bodies.

CORONER'S JURY DRAWN

A coroner's jury comprising six men and augmented by inspectors from the State Bureau of Mines was ordered to delve into the cause of the blast.

The mine was inspected March 12 by state mine inspectors and at that time the general condition of the workings was found to be good.

A feature of the Mather mine was the large number of English-speaking miners employed. Most mines in this region, since the open shop has ruled, employed foreign labor and a majority of Negroes. Mather was different in this respect. In fact, the entire village is different from the average mining settlement. Tidy little cottages, clean streets, well-dressed children and a general air of refinement are noticeable.

Parents at Pit Watch in Vain For 4 Sons

MATHER, Pa. May 21.—Two elderly people who had stood at the tipple of Mather mine since the news of Saturday's blast was broadcast, let it be known today that they had four sons inside the mine.

Andy Bootz and his three brothers obtained work at the Mather mine Saturday morning and reported for their first labor with the ill-fated shift. It was their parents who awaited news.

NEVILLE ISLAND MAN'S BODY FOUND IN RIVER

The body of John S. Andrews, 52, of Grand avenue, Neville Island, was recovered from the Ohio river yesterday off Neville Island by James Brough, an employe of the Dravo Construction Company. Andrews, an employe of the Keystone Sand Company, was drowned early Sunday. He leaves a widow and two children.

TWO SUSPECTS NABBED IN GREENE CO. ROBBERY

WAYNESBURG, Pa., May 21.—Charles Buck Patterson, 30, of Oak Forest, and Wilfred Staley, 32, of North Waynesburg, were arrested Sunday, accused of robbing Francis Jacobs, 76, farmer, of $328. Police say the money was recovered in Patterson's home.

FROCKS OF FINEST CHIFFONS

At a Price Which Is Extraordinary for Frocks of Their Kind

$25.00

Even chiffons from Ducharne of France are included in the beautiful, filmy fabrics, it being a fact that when we went forth to choose these dresses for a remarkable event of a day, we set a very high standard.

Harper's Bazar substantiates our opinion of chiffon by saying, "Chiffon, plain and printed, remains one of the most important fabrics of the season." These dresses are of printed chiffon in uncommon patterns, chiffon in solid colors and black, and chiffon combined with matching lace.

More Than 25 Styles

Variety was one of the aims in our choosing, and so completely has that point been covered, that in the great number of styles there are models for all figures and for all important occasions. There are dresses for afternoon bridges, teas, garden parties, weddings, and resort wear. And sleeveless dresses for dinner or dancing, which have little cocktail jackets to make them also wearable for afternoon.

All regular sizes are included, 34 to 46.

TRADER HORN-- THE GREATEST STORY OF ADVENTURE OF MODERN TIMES

Nina's Freedom to Be Like 'Bird From the Sea'

Trader Horn at Liberty and Peru Coming Incog for the Great Adventure

What Has Gone Before.

Fifty years after going to the West Coast of Africa as a youth, Trader Horn writes of his experiences with the cannibal tribes among which he worked. He became their blood brother and a member of the Isogas in whose Josh House he found a White Goddess, Nina T——, whom he resolved to free after stealing a great ruby. He hunts man-eating lions, rascal elephants, wars with hostile natives, but always keeps his great adventure in mind—the rescue in which an old half-Inca friend, Little Peru, is to participate.

Ideas of Religion in the Wilds

By ALFRED ALOYSIUS HORN
Edited by ETHELREDA LEWIS.

I ARRIVED at our new station without mishap, only old Peter Nollan was down with slight fever chills. I was next ordered to Gaboon for a small tow and also some passengers who were anxiously waiting. All my accounts I had made out. I had a fine balance and I took the news of my intending departure to Sinclair. I had a fine record and I was satisfied, and this I carried with me.

ALFRED A. HORN

We had a fine trip down the river, and I called only for a couple of hours at Nina's and told her what I had done, and that as soon as I was able I would see she was free as any Engelangi (white bird from the sea). I could see the emotions I had produced in the inmost soul of Nina. She looked superb under the effect of my little whispered speatsh.

And all she answered was I am ready at any time. And as I parted she gave me a most thankful smile. The rest of the attendants at the Josh house I left either drunk or half drunk and was soon well on my journey to Gaboon.

Poor Peter now got much worse in spite of the attention I could bestow on him and as we had a rough passage by sea it seemed to make him worse. On landing he was sent immediately to the French hospital but only lived a few days after I left Gaboon on my return journey. I gave in my resignation to Mr. Carlisle, our chief agent, handed over my accounts, etc., and we spent the night in his sanctorum, as he had little time for conversation during the day.

Peru Coming Incog

He meant to retire himself as soon as he had made all arrangements and, of course, as I knew, he intended we had no secrets. Of course he would meet me in Liverpool and no doubt we should often meet at our Lancashire house, as his intended was a great friend of our family, as was her father, the old retired whaler.

I also told him I might have a visit from a college friend of mine who contemplated visiting the coast for a couple of months shortly, and when I told him who he was he laughed and said, birds of a feather. The young gentleman would visit the coast as Mr. Graham, bottanist from Liverpool, so that he knew exactly what to do when he came.

Of course he would forward him on, and he would see that he came incog. Any time I wished to go I was at liberty, he would see to everything for me.

I now had time to re-read my mail, most of it being from little Peru, who had received my letter telling him exactly how things were with me and that I had made up my mind to steal the Godess as per her own plan, which I had detailed. He was coming at once he said, and as he was nearly of age there would be no lacking of funds, etc.

As I was now a free man I often visited Herr Schiff and he told me that if I wished to return to the coast he would supply me with any goods I wished cheaper than I could buy them in Europe, and would back me to any amount. Of course I told him if I returned I meant to do business on my own, but I made no promises.

Sinclair himself was anxious to hold his trade and I had brought him a mulatto from the River Niger district who proved first class and could manage the tug anywhere, and the boys I left with him knew the river channels as well as I did, so all went well. I passed most of my time hunting and was able to ship home quite a large collection of the dennisens of the African forests and glades, besides curios of all kinds. During these trips I often visited Axingo, always calling at Ninas.

Trader Horn here reverts to his memory of the American woman missionary from Cincinnati and speaks feelingly to Mrs. Lewis on Christianity.

White Lady Sweet Memory

"Of all my memories of the rivers that White Lady shines the clearest. White she was, Ma'am, right through to her heart and with no more fear than Stanley on a cannibal river. Aye, it was my sad pleasure before I left the coast to take her body from the Falls to Gaboon. I had to take her quietly from her last resting place. Not wishing to offend the natives. They naturally would consider such a fine woman to be above par as muti. They'd not long have been able to keep their hands off her. But her power after death could not have excelled the influence of the living woman.

"Aye. Churches . . . Man, as we know, is the flower of all creation. But he's only a flower when he ceases to be animal. That's what that lady was. I'm Catholic, but I'm not so Catholic as to think we're the only ones can raise a saint. I'm not grudging her to the Presbyterians. They've got fellers like Sinclair to contend with, who are not doing 'em much credit.

"This Christianity. When you've sifted it 'n' analyzed it, Ma'am, what is there left in the sifting of all the churches together but a little bit o' gold dust. And that's Humanity, the essence of life. I've found more of that essence on the coast there than ever I noticed in London. Sundays or week-days.

"It doesn't take the metropolis of the unknown world to make a Christian. 'Twas on my rivers I found that fine lady. Two voyages she had with me. All eyes she was that first time. But the second—it seemed that all eyes was looking at what I carried. Boggarts and voodoos . . . Every mile of that river is haunted. The most sacred river

'Made in U. S. A.' On British Oars A Bitter Pill

LONDON, Eng., May 21.—(AP.)—Commander Kenworthy, member of Parliament, can't swallow the fact that oars for the British navy are made in the United States.

"Where did the admiralty get their oars during the American war for independence," he asked W. C. Bridgeman, first lord of the admiralty, in the House of Commons.

When Mr. Bridgeman was unable to answer, Commander Kenworthy commented sarcastically:

"They did not get them from America in Lord Nelson's time!"

Commander Kenworthy is anxious to have all oars for his majesty's fleet made in English dockyards instead of the United States.

STAGE AND SCREEN ACTIVITIES DETAILED IN PICTURES AND GOSSIP ABOUT PLAYERS

Hollywood Reports of What Is Going On in Film Studios and Local Amusement Announcements

GRANDMOTHER FLAPPER -:- UNTIL RECENTLY -:- NOTED FILM STAR

Fannie Ward, who, up to a few years ago, was starred in girl roles in pictures, looked older in her first long dress in 1884 than she does today.

Miss Ward, 63 years young, is on the Stanley stage this week. Here we have Lord Plunkett, of London; Lady Plunkett, Miss Ward's daughter; her two grandchildren, one in the arms of its nurse, and Miss Ward, herself. She says the greatest thrill in the world is to be a grandmother. It would be—to be a grandma like she is.

This cupid of 1890 is the Fannie Ward whose stage cuteness was displayed long before the movies were thought of. As she was in "Sinbad, the Sailor."

When Henry E. Dixey and his "Adonis" were the talk of the theatrical world in 1887 there was in it a girl who looked like this. Fannie Ward, also.

ALBEE REMAINS AS PRESIDENT OF CIRCUIT

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS.

Names mean everything now days. They cause more reactions than ever before because there are more things to react to. Adam, outside of the Garden of Eden, would have felt only one emotional jerk when he heard "apple" mentioned, but that word to us suggests many pleasant things, the fruit, itself, pie, jelly, cider and even the taboo applejack. Names mean something, so we buy, by name, everthing from "Old Licorice" chewing tobacco to "More Strength" breakfast food. We buy our entertainment that way, too. We don't simply buy a show—we buy Ziegfeld and Erlanger and George White and Charlie Chaplin and Norma Talmadge, Stanley, Loew and Harris—what we buy must have a name we know. Unless we know it we buy hesitantly, as a kind of experiment, which if it turns out well, adds another game.

For that reason there is reassurance in the information received from Dennie Harris and Gene Connelly of the Harris Amusement forces that an Associated Press news article which appeared in the Sun-Telegraph, to the effect that Joseph Kennedy had become chairman of the board of the recently merged Keith-Albee-Orpheum circuit, does not in any way affect the status of E. F. Albee as president of the huge vaudeville and motion picture combine.

Mr. Albee's name means something in the show business, not because of the name, but because the man who bears it has made it respected and a synonym for something we like in the amusement line. He took variety away from its rough environment of the so-called "music hall" days and slim "stag" audiences and raised it to the standard of cleanliness through which it could appeal to men and women, girls and boys, everywhere. Variety of the olden days is the refined vaudeville of the present. The boisterous amusement of a few males of an older generation has become the vastly more elevated medium of entertainment of millions of the present day.

When we think of "variety" we do not associate the name of Albee to that dubious form of playing which knew no other name than "variety show." Albee and vaudeville are synonyms because Mr. Albee was not satisfied with the cheap actors and dirt he found in variety. In the good there was too much bad—in the gold, too much dross. So he took variety and he cleaned it up. He raised the standard so high that in a few years vaudeville became the source from which the great musical productions sought their artists. To make a mark in "the big time," as Keith-Albee vaudeville is known professionally, assured success in movies and musical comedy.

So it is no wonder Gene Connelly and Dennie Harris are jubilant because Mr. Albee remains in the show game. They have been closely associated with him during vaudeville's building up process, as were Harry Davis and the late Senator John P. Harris, and they consider him one of the greatest of showmen.

Mr. Albee's numerous other Pittsburgh friends also will be glad to know that big time vaudeville retains its guiding head.

Mr. Kennedy, who becomes chairman of the board of Keith-Albee-Orpheum, has achieved something of a "miracle man" standing in the motion picture production end, and his affiliation with the K-A-O interests is felt to be significant of some big developments and new alignments in the producing and exhibition fields.

Charlie Chaplin Boosting Show By Japanese Ballyhoos Himself Into Newest of Movie Pseudonyms

By REGINA CREWE

(Copyright 1928, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

LOS ANGELES, May 21.

THEY may make not-so-good movies here now and then, but there is one thing in which Hollywood excels. And that is in stringing strange words together in order to make up new titles for people. The latest, and by far the least understandable, is the one just pinned on Charlie Chaplin. Charlie is being billed as an "interpretative entrepreneur." So now you know the worst! The story is that a troupe of Japanese actors are in town, and, possibly feeling that they might not do so well without a bit of ballyhoo, a few of the big boys got together and corraled Charlie to stand out on one side of the stage and explain what it is all about. If he can do so, he deserves a title much more difficult and non-understandable. But the odds are against him.

Even the names of the players give him a heavy handicap off the reel. Look 'em over: Koharu Chara, Susuko Tanaka, Mitsuru Toyama, and last, but I trust far from least, Hideo Yamabera. The name of the show is "Ken Geki." So now, Charlie, go ahead and to your interpretative entrepreneuring.

Bigger and better conventions seem to be the order of the day. The Universal and Paramount boys have staggered into town from their convention cities and Hollywood looks like old home week. Don't misunderstand me on the "staggering" part. I mean they are staggering under the weight of the "inspirational" speeches made at the conventions as well as from the weight of the responsibilities placed on their shoulders by the sales managers. It certainly seemed good to see Charlie McCarthy, of Paramount, and Morris Safier, of Universal, among the boys, both apparently bearing up well under the strain. From now on there will be one succession of banquets and parties for the gang. And when they recover the bunch will be all set for another 50 weeks' battle with the exhibitors. In addition, the Knights of Columbus have been convening here, and the boulevard is hung with bunting and lights to greet them. My, what a lot of strangers in town!

Over on the Fox lot they had a party for all the first-year players, and it turned out to be quite a nice get-together. June Collyer piloted young Donald Loper—pardon, I mean Don Terry—about the set and introduced him to all the folks. June's Manhattan poise gives her an edge on the girls from Sauk Center, and when there is any hostessing to be done June is in great demand. Incidentally, she and Lois Moran were asked as guests of honor by the Knights of Columbus. Did they accept? I'll say they did!

If the Paramount acting school served no other good purpose—and I think it served several—it at least established some fine friendships among some of the youngsters. Buddy Rogers, Greg Blackton and Roland Drew—who used to be Walter Goss when he worked on New York newspapers—are inseparable pals. So far Buddy has had the greatest measure of success, although Roland plays opposite Dolores Del Rio in "Ramona." The boys cheer one another up when bad breaks come, and celebrate the good ones together. They're all fine boys and each is certain that the big chance will come.

Lina Basquette and Bob Armstrong are all set to begin work Monday on "Celebrity," and from the plans, Williard Keefe's play should make a fine film. Dot Farley has been cast in the mother role, and Clyde Cook plays a part which is sure to gather its share of the laughs. Everyone is pleased and enthusiastic, and when they begin that way the picture generally turns out well.

"The Grain of Dust" will have Ricardo Cortez playing opposite Claire Windsor, when Tiffany-Stahl makes the picture. Alma Bennett will have the role of the "Other Woman."

Actress to Wear Mask in New Photoplay

Columbia Pictures will introduce the mask for the first time to the screen as a mode of dramatic expression in "Name the Woman." Anita Stewart, who appears as feminine lead in this mystery drama, plays her most dramatic scenes with her face completely covered by a Benda-like mask. As the facial muscles, one of the greatest aids for expressing emotion, are hidden, Miss Stewart depends entirely on her hands and the movements of her body to put over her reactions. Earle C. Kenton directed "Name the Woman," which was adapted from the story "Bridge." Gaston Glass, Huntly Gordon, Julanne Johnston, Chappell Dossett and Jed Prouty are featured.

DANCING TO FEATURE RIVER STEAMER'S TRIP

Dancers of the Pittsburgh district will have an opportunity to stage a modified dance marathon on Decoration Day by making the special trip on the steamer Homer Smith to Rock Springs Park, Chester, W. Va., it is pointed out. The boat will leave the Smithfield street wharf at 8:30 a. m., and arrive at the West Virginia resort at 12:30, which will give the dancers four hours. They will also have a chance to dance at the park and then will have four hours on the return trip. Capt. Homer Smith has announced that the boat will make stops at Ambridge and Rochester. Merrill's Orchestra will play for the dancers.

NIXON PLAYERS TO OPEN

Tonight, opening of the summer stock season in the Nixon, the Nixon Players will present "The Man Who Came Back," a comedy drama in four acts and five scenes. Harry Bannister and Katherine Wilson will play the leading characters.

The George Sharp Players open tonight in the Pitt in a melodramatic mystery play, "Wooden Kimono." Its tense situations are relieved at intervals by comedy.

The subject of "King of Kings" is the greatest drama of history—the life, arrest, trial, death and resurrection of the Savior. It is in its second and last week in the Alvin.

Weaver Brothers and Elviry, the men being familiar as handsaw musicians from "'Way Down in Arkinsaw," now accompanied by their sister, are featured in the Keith-Albee vaudeville in the Davis this week.

"Mary's Other Husband," a comedy in three acts by Larry E. Johnson, will be the offering of the George Sharp Players in the Pitt during the week beginning May 28.

Beginning Monday night, May 28, the Nixon Players will present George M. Cohan's "The Baby Cyclone," an American farce comedy. Harry Bannister and Josephine Whittell will play the two leading roles.

SKULL FRACTURED AS AUTOMOBILE HITS TRUCK

When his automobile struck a truck in East Ohio street early yesterday, Charles Zinna, 26, of 2107 Straubs lane, North Side, was injured seriously. He is in the Allegheny General Hospital suffering a fractured skull and internal injuries. A. M. Debler, 29, of 1017 Province street, driver of the machine in which Zinna was riding, was arrested on a reckless driving charge.

Highest American Peak in M-G-M News Reel

Mount McKinley in Alaska, which rears its jagged head to the highest point on the North American continent, has been circumnavigated, and pictorial record of the scenes, is being shown in the current issue of M-G-M News. The trip around Mount McKinley was made by Lieut. Earl Rossman, explorer, author and M-G-M news cameraman. In addition to circumnavigating Mount McKinley, Rossman flew over and photographed the two other highest peaks on the North American continent, Mount Hunter, 14,950 feet high, directly to the south of Mount McKinley, and Mount Foraker, 17,000 feet high, just west of Mount Hunter.

Rossman went to Alaska and made exclusive pictures for M-G-M News on the hop-off of Maj. Wilkins from Point Barrow to Spitzbergen. Completing this assignment, he returned to Anchorage, Alaska, where he made his headquarters. Rossman carried five cameras in his plane. The temperature at Talkeetna when they started was 20 degrees below zero, but as the plane began to mount the temperature dropped to 50 degrees below zero where it remained during practically all of the four-hour flight.

Directors Write Own Stories for Screen

"Ransom" and "Name the Woman," two of Columbia's future releases, are based on stories written by their respective directors, George B. Seitz and Eric C. Kenton. "Ransom," the Seitz production from his story, "San Francisco," is based to a great degree on notes gleaned from the police records of the West coast city. "Name the Woman," now being directed by Kenton from his story, "Bridge," uses as the theme a Los Angeles case in which the feminine defendant was being cross-examined by her district attorney husband.

TRADER HORN

The Greatest Adventure Story of Modern Times

in Africa. And kingfishers, Ma'am, with their bright toppings. And some of 'em jewels no bigger than a bee. But they must have their fish like the biggest and finest. . . .

"And hadn't my Renchoro a heart of gold? I know humanity, Ma'am. Scotland Yard I was, and knowing London for what it was. I found as good as the best in Africa.

She Dared to Go

"'How beautiful is that sunset! How beautiful a mission station would be on that hill, Mr. Horn!' Aye, she went where du Chaillu dare not go. Great big idols and painted skulls. . . . Giving the kids sweets, she was, and smiling. . . .

"The surf was bad, but we got her safe on to a vessel. One more spot of holy ground, where she lies. Aye!

"That's fine adventurous country where Mahomet meets the cannibals. Aye! Rivers without names and countries without maps. . . .

"'The Brigands of Lake Chad.' 'Twould be a grand title. They used to catch the women going to Fez to the harems. 'The Brigands of Lake Chad.' . . . I sure could have woven some good books if I'd always had the leisure I have now. 'Caravans and Camels' would be snappy. But when you're young you want to be always turning the next cover. Books don't grow when you're following the trail.

"Aye, and behind the Cameroons there's things living we know nothing about. I could 'a' made books about many things. The Jago-Nini they say is still in the swamps and rivers. Giant diver it means. Comes out of the waters and devours people. Old men'll tell you what their grandfathers saw, but they still believe it's there.

"Same as the Amali I've always taken it to be. I've seen the Amali's footprint. About the size of a good frying pan in circumference and three claws instead o' five.

There are some very big lakes behind the Cameroons. Used to be full of nice seal at one time. Manga, they call it. But the Jago-Nini's wiped 'em almost out, the old natives say. Pigmy elephants there too, and crocodiles that never kill humans. The natives up there talk of some Big Water. And what I say is they must have come from the Nile.

"What but some great creature like the Amali could account for the broken ivories we used to come across in the so-called elephant cemeteries? Fine old green ivory that's valuable for inlaying wood. Snapped right across in the thickest part and left in splinters. Aye! There's places in Africa where you get visions of primeval force. And not so distant either, as when you picture the prehistorics in Europe and America.

"I was prospecting one time in Florida at the river mouths for mastodon bones. Nothing handier for phosphates. But 'tis a thing of the dead past there. In Africa the Past has hardly stopped breathing. You get fancies there if you're any sort of a man that's not homo stultus . . . What with the talk of the natives and the sounds you hear at night.

"And every swamp and mountain cave calling you to come a bit further. There are times when only a river seems safe. No menace in a river. Never still and never silent. Human as a man, and that's why we trust 'em. Aye, the savage'll sing on a river when he'd be trembling on land with the fear of something touching him. Nature's idea for a street—rivers.

"That amali. I told you I've seen a drawing of him in those Bushman caves. I chiseled one out whole once and give it to President Grant for a souvenir. He naturally took a great curiosity in the West Coast, seeing that the Civil War he'd been so busy over had ruined an old trade there.

"Aye, the little fellers that drew those creatures, and manacled slaves and so on I told you about, were not ordinary savages. They sure were paleolithic men from the North. They were remembering things, on those walls. Processions and so on. I bought a nice ivory from them once, carved with leopards and elephants.

Looking to Nina's Escape

"Nice little feller, round about four feet and a little over. Shy as buck, until they'd had a good look at you. A living example of the survival of the fittest. Most gifted conjurors in the world. Use flint for weapons. Most harmless race, but they've had to flee from the French rule same as others. They've gone into the Cameroons for safety. Even the Arabs don't know the back of the Cameroons.

"Well, Ma'am, I'll have to finish up what happened to Nina and my friend Peru. It's sure been a bit of refreshment to tell about Africa. I could 'a told what happened to Nina in two chapters, but it wouldn't be literature. Co-ordinate your material, George Bussey says, till there's neither waste nor paucity of interest.

"Came from Lima, that feller. The only feller I couldn't lick at school. 'Twas silver mines made him rich. I could lick Johnny Greeley, though.

"Aye, we must get our love interest in. Supposing something happened to me and I hadn't finished it. 'Twould sure be a disappointment to those who look forward to the love-light.

"If I'd been in love with her myself 'twould 'a' come easier. But there was always little Annie K— at the back of my mind. Peru having Inca blood, he'd naturally understand a girl like Nina. Lancashire held me, where love was concerned."

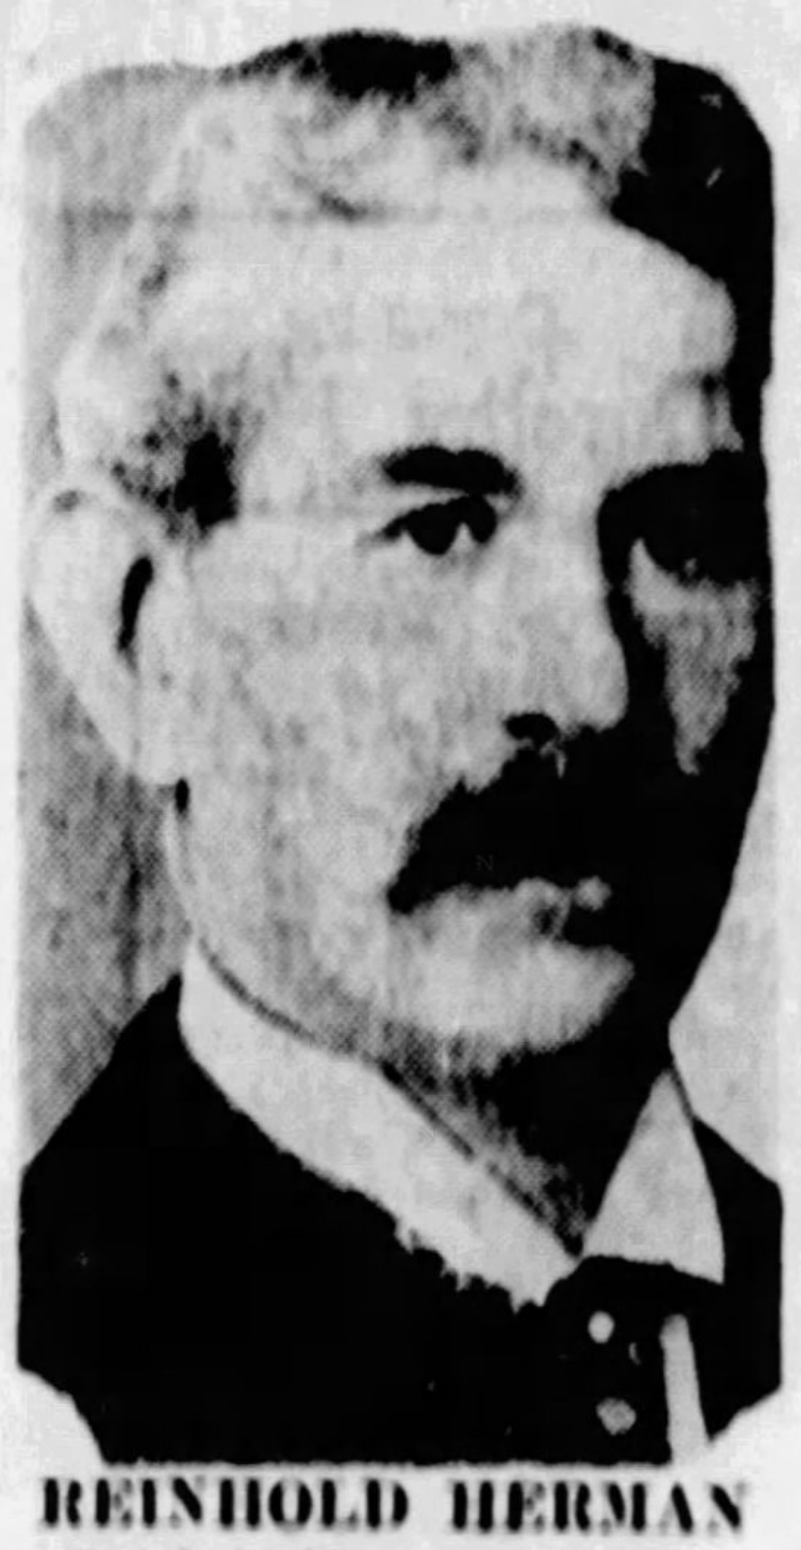
Inventor Dies



REINHOLD HERMAN

Reinhold Herman, 69, former Crafton councilman and inventor of several electrical devices, died in his Cleveland (O.) home.

ARMY AVIATORS TO STUNT AT AIR RACES

Spectators at the National Balloon Races at Bettis Field on Memorial Day will see parachute-jumping and air maneuvers as practiced by Army fliers.

Lieut. Frank McKee, operations officer for the races, announced that Brig. Gen James Fechet, chief of the Army Air Corps, had authorized the presence of the races of Army speed and parachute planes from several government fields.

Maj. Thomah Lanphier, close friend of Col. Lindberg, is expected to lead a squadron of pursuit ships to the races from Selfridge Field, Detroit.

The Army attractions will be augmented by the flying visit of "Pilgrim," the world's smallest airship which the Goodyear interests will send to the air derby. With the promised visit of "Pilgrim," and the possible presence of the Los Angeles, largest dirigible in the United States, spectators may see both extremes in one branch of aircraft.

DEATH ROLL

Reinhold Herman.

Reinhold Herman, 69, inventor of electrical devices and a former resident of the Pittsburgh district, died Saturday night at Cleveland, O. Mr. Herman, born in Germany, lived practically his entire life in the Pittsburgh district. For years he served in Crafton Council and was a member of St. Matthew's Lutheran Church there. MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

LADIES AND LOVE

IN THE game of love the last card a woman should play is her heart.

* * *

A woman's love may be starved to death or frozen to death, but a man's love is nearly always choked to death or talked to death.

* * *

Perhaps the reason why a woman keeps on asking a man to tell her that he loves her is because she has a subconscious conviction that, if she can make him say it over often enough, he will come to believe it, himself.

HELEN ROWLAND

The reason so few men complain of dyspepsia these days is probably because most of them are "starving" along on the wife's reducing diet.

Before marriage, a man is charmed by a woman's ability to see a lot of things in him—after marriage, by her ability to overlook a lot of things.

Getting the first lover, the first husband or the first job is the hardest. Most men seem to require "previous experience" in these days in everything from petting to marriage and business.

* * *

The most serious business of the younger generation appears to be its desperate effort to convince the world that it doesn't take itself seriously.

* * *

At first, a bride likes to drop in unexpectedly at her husband's office to tell him what she's been doing; later, she is apt to drop in even more unexpectedly to find out what HE'S been doing.

* * *

A modern man is not abashed when a girl refuses to kiss him—he is merely amazed that she should pass up such a golden opportunity.

* * *

The old-fashioned boy got an education by burning the midnight oil; the modern boy gets most of his by burning the midnight gasoline.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Tuesday, May 22

THE sidereal operations for this day are not of major importance except for a configuration that may mean suddenly upset conditions or abrupt turmoil and moving about. The unexpected is likely to materialize; if in employment coolness is admonished.

Those whose birthday it is should prepare for a year of surprises and unforeseen visitations. Change is imminent, but if in employment care is enjoined.

A child born on this day may be disposed to be restless and unsettled, and may have a career of vicissitudes.

Time, the potter, hands YOU as much clay as the other fellow.

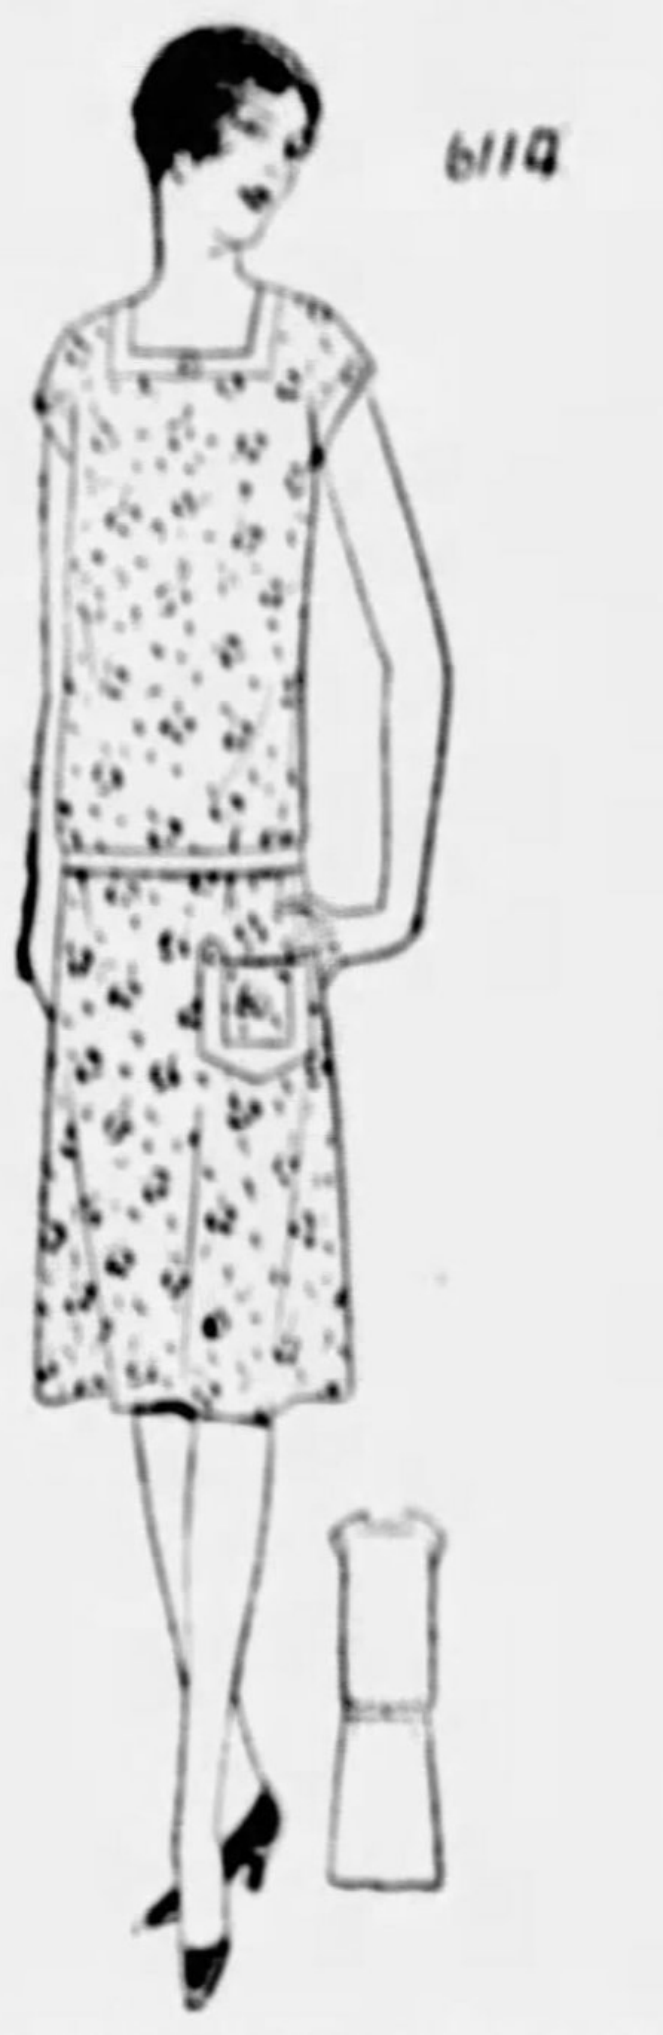
Spanish Tarts

Beat to a cream three-quarters of a pound of butter and a pound of sugar. Add two beaten eggs and beat well. Sift in slowly a pint of pastry flour and a tablespoonful each of cinnamon, cloves and ground sweet seeds. Knead thoroughly, then roll out one-quarter of an inch thick and cut with fancy cutters, in diamonds, hearts, crescents, rounds or oblongs. Lay on a buttered pan two inches apart and bake a delicate brown in a medium oven. Dust with cinnamon and sugar as soon as removed from the oven.

The Sun-Telegraph Fifteen Cent Pattern



A SIMPLE MORNING FROCK.

Cotton prints, dimity, zephyr crepe and linen are good for this style.

The pattern is cut in four sizes: Small, 34-36; medium, 38-40; large, 42-44; extra large, 46-48 inches bust measure. To make this pleasing model for a medium size will require 3 yards of 36-inch material, together with ½ yard of contrasting material for pocket and yoke and sleeve facings; also for facing on belt. The width of the frock at the lower edge is 1¾ yards.

COUPON.

This pattern will be sent on receipt of 15 cents (silver or 2c and 1c stamps). Make number, name, address, etc., plain. Send to Pattern Department, The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Mothers welcome this new and better way of taking Milk of Magnesia

AT LAST Science has found a new way of taking Milk of Magnesia—MILNESIA WAFERS—pure Milk of Magnesia in tablet form. They taste so pleasant, children actually like them. Doctors say it is the better way of taking Milk of Magnesia because you can take them slowly. You simply chew or allow the Wafer to melt in your mouth. In this way the gums, teeth and entire mouth area are thoroughly sweetened by the Milk of Magnesia before it gently enters the stomach and bowels to overcome troubles due to excessive acidity there.

No Need Now For the Old-Fashioned Dose

This new way is the better way, too, because each Wafer is accurately measured and contains two teaspoonfuls of pure Milk of Magnesia. The tablet may be divided into 1 or ½-teaspoonful quantities—this way eliminates shaking, spilling, evaporation and waste.

If you try MILNESIA WAFERS once, you will never go back to the old-fashioned liquid.

At all druggists in two generous sizes—35¢ and 60¢

A Message to Underweight Men and Women

The one supremely good health building tonic that is also the one great weight producer known to modern science the country over is McCoy's Tablets.

Take them for a few weeks and the hollows in your cheeks, your neck and chest should soon fill out and whether you be man or woman you may have an attractive figure and plenty of "get there" energy in just a short time.

Many times the increase in weight is astonishing—one exceedingly thin woman gained 10 pounds in 22 days.

McCoy takes all the risk—Read this ironclad guarantee. If after taking 4 sixty cent boxes of McCoy's Tablets or 2 One Dollar boxes any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least 5 pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health—your druggist is authorized to return the purchase price.

The name McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets has been shortened—just ask for McCoy's Tablets at May's Drug Stores or any drug store in America.

Love-Blossom Time

When the Whole World Wakes and Dreams Come True

Drawn by Dorothy Flack

IT'S SPRINGTIME and all Nature seems to be so overjoyed that she's fairly running riot! Every bush, every tree, every tiny plant and shrub unfurls its yearly banner of loveliness. Who can resist the call of Spring? Not Dan Cupid, I know, for this is the season of the year when he's the busiest young man in the world. For when it's blossomtime to Mother Earth, it's blossomtime in Loveland, and all the love-blossoms are budding and bursting into brilliant flowers. And it keeps Dan busy seeing that the blossoms are kept fresh and beautiful.

All the year through he has tended so carefully the shy little love seeds. He's watched them grow and thrive, and he's tended them, oh, so carefully, for love plants are delicate things. Yes, indeed, much more delicate than real-for-sure plants. Love plants die so easily—a harsh word, a cool gesture, an impatient retort—all these things mean the death of Love. So Dan has his hands full, you can see, trying to keep the love plants alive. Can you blame him for being jubilant when he sees the love-blossoms slowly unfurling their gorgeous petals?

Love-blossoms, the sweetest flowers of all, and especially sweet are they when they bloom in this joyous Maytime when Love's in the air and all Nature sings a song.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

U.S. Senator From New York

Don't Shrink From Vaccination; Avoid Smallpox

HEALTH officials throughout North America are begging people to be vaccinated. It is good advice. I am not saying this merely because it is easy to tell people what they should do. I am advising you to do what I have done for myself every few years. Of course, it isn't pleasant to be vaccinated and to be truthful about it, one can feel quite miserable for several days.

DR. COPELAND

Let us analyze my own experience. I have been vaccinated a dozen times, I suppose. Previous to my latest vaccination, I had it done on my return several years ago from Glasgow, Scotland, where they were having a rather serious epidemic of smallpox.

But for at least 20 years no vaccination of mine "took" until the last time. This may mean that I had "run out" of the effects of previous vaccinations. It may mean that previously the vaccine was too weak, not well applied, or that some cleansing agent neutralized it. In any event, had I been content to accept the non-taking in the past as an evidence of present immunity, I might have been one of the future victims of smallpox. I am extremely confident that if a vigorous "take" is a proof of its need, I was in desperate need of vaccination.

I want you to see that if you have not had a successful vaccination for 10 years and that all efforts fizzled, it does not prove necessarily that you are safe from smallpox. My advice is to try again. If it does not result in a reaction, no harm is done anyhow. It may take this year.

Smallpox is a loathsome disease. It is not less so merely because it is less common. It is less common because vaccination is more general, but you would be unhappy indeed to take the disease. You would hate to be the victim of an attack just because you "took a chance" or because you disregarded the advice of the medical world.

There are a few doctors, relatively very few indeed, who are opposed to vaccination. There is plenty of propaganda against this procedure. You must judge for yourself.

In reaching a conclusion, do not disregard the rights of the public. You must not think alone of what vaccination means to you, but must consider as well the evil effects of smallpox upon your family, neighbors and those with whom you are in daily contact. Should you take the disease even in a mild form, you might pass it on to others who would acquire permanent scars and possibly permanent impairment of health.

Vaccination is disagreeable, but it is not dangerous. Old-time vaccination had its hazards and bad results followed in many instances. That is not the case today. You can be vaccinated in full confidence that all will go well with you. Don't neglect to do it.

Answers to Health Queries

L. S. S. Q—In what way does a duodenal ulcer affect one? Would it bring on convulsions? Is an operation necessary?

For the Lovelorn

A. R.

DEAR MISS GALE:

For four months I have been going with a young man. I do not know if I love him or not, but I do like him better than any other fellow I ever went with. He is a perfect gentleman, and his ideals are the very highest. After we had been going together for about one month he told me that he had given up all his other girl friends and he wondered if I still went with other fellows. I did not and told him so. He said he thought that something serious should be our intention if I wanted to continue seeing him, and I said I did want to continue going with him. Now he never said he loved me and since then has never mentioned it and three months have passed and we see each other three times or at least twice a week. I have many opportunities of going places with other fellows, but do not avail myself of them, although I have been out about five times with other fellows, only because I am doubtful as to whether or not he expects me to be remaining true to only him. Now I like him well enough to quit all other fellows and I am 20 years old and I think old enough to settle down to just one fellow, don't you think so? Now I would like your advice as to what I should do about this matter. Do you think I should go with other fellows as there are times when he does not ask to see me. I mean certain times when I would like to go some place, but I would not ask him, and he does not tell me where he is going, although he continually tells me he does not go out with other girls. Would you please tell me if you think I should just let things drift as they are and be true to him or try to find out if his intentions are still serious?

Unless you are definitely engaged, it is foolish to give up all other friends for this man. He has no right to ask it, and you are missing many good times. Apparently, he wants to have your friendship exclusively without committing himself to an engagement.

M. J. G.

DEAR MISS GALE:

Tell me, do you think that it is possible for a boy of only past 20 who has a real good job and is of nice clean habits to really and truly be in love? What are the first signs of love? And if he takes you every place or any place you want to go at any cost a sign of coming love? Can love at 20 endure? Thanking you so much. M. J. G.

A boy of 20 might be in love, but I would be afraid to trust that love to endure through life. He isn't sure of himself at that age. He must like you very much, though, and that feeling may turn into real love.

Disgusted

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have written to you before and have not had a reply so am writing again. I read your advice every day and think it is wonderful. Now, Miss Gale, my question is this. I have been going with a fellow steady for three years and he just quit coming up, but he has called and came to see me since. He says he is not worthy of me and knows he will never make good at married life, although he says he loves me and I am the only girl he would ever marry. But he tells me he has dates with another girl just to forget me. I love him and gave up lots of friends and pleasures to go with him. He is very jealous and never takes me places I like to go. Miss Gale do you think I still can make good after all these three years with him. I have even been reported married to him. I love him and am heart sick over it. He is 22 years old and I am 23. I am a real good girl, do not pet, smoke or drink and do not see how I am going out in the world to meet new friends. My mother is dead and I keep house. Now Miss Gale, please advise me how I can make him understand. He likes his home and says he will never get married as long as his mother is living.
DISGUSTED.

My dear, I am afraid he is trying to break off his friendship with you, and there is really nothing you can do about it. His story about caring for you and going with another girl to forget you is ridiculous, as you can see. He simply doesn't want to be married, and is using everything he can think of as an excuse. Try to forget him if you can, and make other interests for yourself outside your home.

How To Be Beautiful

by Maria Jeritza

Value of Lovely Eyes.

WHEN you meet anyone, do you not look first of all into his or her eyes? What you read there gives you the first impression of your new acquaintance. And first impressions are very lasting.

As a matter of fact, we always study the eyes of those we talk with. The eyes are by far the most expressive and important feature, and they should be the most beautiful.

What you are thinking and feeling, you express or reflect in your eyes, whether or not you will to do so. The loveliest smile is the smile of the eyes, even though the lips may move only slightly or not at all.

Beauty of the eyes is, above all else, a mental quality. Your eyes really do tell the story of your soul. You will have to think thoughts of goodwill, good humor, friendly affection and kindliness, if you hope to have attractive eyes. The expression of the eyes will be sincere, even though your lips may contradict it.

So the foremost requisite for lovely, interesting eyes is clear, alert, kindly, constructive thinking.

Good health is also important, for unless your health is all it should be, you will not hve clear, bright eyes, but the whites will be yellow or inflamed, and a circle will form ugly "clam shells" underneath them. Pouches under the eyes crisscross lines about them and inflamed lids tell a story of strain or else defects of health.

If your general health is good, shadows and hollows under your eyes betray lack of sleep, or nerve-wracking habits such as extreme smoking and over-indulgence in tea and coffee.

Get plenty of sleep in a dark room filled with fresh air. This is a priceless secret of beauty, especially of eye beauty.

Read and work only in a clear, steady light, which should preferably come over your left shoulder. Of course we all know reading or sewing in a poor light is unwise, but we often decide it is too much trouble to switch on the lamp or pull up a shade. Then we wonder why we have inflamed eyes.

When your eyes feel tired, drop into them from a medicine-dropper very warm water with salt added in the proportion of a "pinch" to a wine-glass of water.

If you are going out in the evening and wish them to look especially fresh and bright, after their eye-bath lay a two-inch pad of absorbent cotton wrung out of hot water on each eyelid and lie down and relax five minutes. Then change the compresses to fresh pads dipped in ice water, eau-de-cologne or a mixture of the two and rest five minutes with closed eyes.

Plucked eyebrows are luckily out of fashion. They were never beautiful, for they looked artificial and gave a blank expression to the face.

You can train your eyebrows in the way they should go by brushing them night and morning with a tiny eyebrow brush, such as can be bought at any make-up department. Dipping this brush in vaseline will help the hairs to "stay put" and make them one shade darker. If you wish to remove one or two wild hairs that spoil the contour of your brow, have a reliable expert do the work, then it will be done right. Vaseline also encourages growth of the eyelashes when rubbed in them every night.

Pack in plenty of nourishing cold cream or heated warm almond oil wherever there are lines about your eyes, and leave it on over night.

Healthy eyes with pleasant thoughts and emotions to reflect, can be exquisitely lovely when they are given the simple beauty care I have suggested.

By FAY KING

IT'S the guy with the spade that's got the gallery now!

Crane workers and safe hoisters are getting comparatively no notice these days. But any time you see a mob clustered tight around a public square you can bet they are starting to dig and get to gardening!

I guess the man with the hoe, rake and shovel would a lot rather the gallery would move on. But he's got about as much chance getting rid of them as a champion!

Even the park sparrows are caddying along at his heels, yelling "Fore!" in their own language! Every turn of spade means a fresh meal for them.

Everybody's got the gardening fever these days. One doesn't get a bit sore if people seem to be moving a fruit orchard during the rush hour!

One feels like planting a bit of grass seed even if it's only in an old sardine can and your lawn mower is going to be a safety razor!

I am undecided whether to raise giant pansies or giant onions.

I thought some of raising both together. Perhaps some of the onions might come up smelling as sweet as the pansies.

But it would be just my luck to have the reverse happen. A beautiful pansy that smelled like a powerful giant onion would be terrible!

OLD HURTS KILL EX-PROFESSOR

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., May 21.—Injuries received five years ago, yesterday caused the death of Daniel Denning, 60, of this city, former professor of the Western University, now University of Pittsburgh. Denning, a civil engineer, was injured in an explosion at the Clarkson Coal Company mine, near here, five years ago yesterday. The former professor held degrees from colleges in Belgium, Germany and Italy. After leaving the Pittsburgh school, he joined the engineering staff of the Wabash Railroad.

MAN KILLED, TWO HURT IN HYATTSTOWN CRASH

FREDERICK, Md., May 21—(AP.) Raymond L. Engle, 22, of this city, is dead, and two other persons suffered serious injury as the result of an automobile crash at Hyattstown, 15 miles from here, yesterday.

Engle was an occupant of the machine driven by Walter Abrecht, also of Frederick, which, police reported, while driving on the wrong side of the road, struck an automobile operatede by William E. Angevine of Baltimore. Abrecht's car swung into a ditch throwing Engle into the road when he received injuries from which he died three hours later. Both Angevine and Abrecht were treated for injuries, and police held the latter under $1,500 bail on a technical charge of manslaughter.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Engagement of Former Pittsburgher to Chicago Girl Creates Interest in Social Circles Here

WHEN Pittsburgh folks, for some reason or other, move away from the city, they always keep in touch with their old friends. And when these ex-Pittsburghers become engaged or are married, their friends in their former home city are always acquainted with the news.

You remember, I'm sure, the William Henry Donners who used to live on Morewood Heights and their son, Robert Donner. The Donners, you know, in recent years have been living in Buffalo and Philadelphia. Announcement has just been made by the Frances Peabody Butlers of Chicago of the engagement of their sister, Margaret Hunter, to Robert Donner.

A great many of the fair sex of the "400" are much interested in the benefit bridge to be given, you know, on Wednesday afternoon by the Woman's Auxiliary of the Kingsley House in the home of Mrs. Herbert Du Puy of Morewood avenue.

Among those working for the event are Mrs. James C. Rea, Mrs. William Scott, Mrs. James I. Kay, Mrs. J. K. Woodwell, Mrs. Frederick Blackburn, Mrs. S. K. Leech, Mrs. Silas N. Benham, Mrs. T. Clifton Jenkins, Mrs. J. Lyall Stuart, Mrs. William Wolfe, Mrs. Thomas A. Robinson, Mrs. H. W. D. English, Mrs. Oliver L. Smith, Mrs. T. Howe Nimick and Mrs. W. A. Dunlap.

Pittsburgh will soon see again two of its former prominent residents—Mrs. D. Herbert Hostetter and her daughter, Helene Hostetter, of Los Angeles and New York. The Hostetters are now in New York. During early June they will spend a few days in the city, I hear, on their way back to the sunny West. The date for Helene's wedding, you'll recall, has been set for June 25. She will marry, as you know, John Stevenson Griffith, son of the John Tomlinson Griffiths of Los Angeles. And the ceremony will take place in All Saints' Church, Pasadena. A reception will follow in the home of Helene's brother, D. Herbert Hostetter, Jr.

At the tea which Mrs. Kirkland Wiley Todd, of Wightman street, and her sister-in-law, Helen Jackson Todd, daughter of George A. Todd, of the Schenley Apartments, will give in the University Club tomorrow the aids will include Mrs. Edwin P. Buchanan, Mrs. Gilbert P. McNiff, Mrs. Ernest N. Calhoun, Mrs. Samuel A. Gilliland, Mrs. Henry K. Holmes, Mrs. William A. Duckham, Mrs. Philip C. Hodill, Eleanor Grier, Mrs. John V. Kimerer, Mrs. Ralph Jowles, Mrs. Joseph H. Bowman, Mrs. Bailey H. Moore, Mrs. R. B. Caldwell, Marguerite Hine, Margaret Rodgers and Phyllis Mitchell, of Houston, Tex.

The tea, you'll recall, is being given for Darrell Ewing Morrow, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Henry Wilson Morrow, whose engagement to Robert C. Todd, brother of the hostesses, was recently made known.

This seems to be a season of engagements. Another betrothal has just been made known by Ralph J. Stayman, of Murray Hill avenue, who has announced the engagement of his daughter, Esther, to Kenneth A. McGrew, son of the S. B. McGrews, of Evanston, Ill.

Saturday saw another Pittsburgh girl married—Virginia Clifford, daughter of John McElroy Clifford, of Franklin avenue, Wilkinsburg. She married, you know, John Dalzell II, son of the William Sage Dalzells, at 5:30 o'clock Saturday in the Edgewood Presbyterian Church. The wedding was very simple.

The bride was gowned in blue lace and wore a horsehair braid hat of blue. Her flowers were pink roses. She was unattended.

Alan G. Clifford, brother of the bride, was best man. The Rev. Dr. Ralph Waldo Lloyd, pastor of the church, was the officiant.

Following the wedding was a dinner for the two families in the Edgewood Country Club.

After a wedding trip the Dalzells, I understand, will be at home in the Alderson apartments.

My dear "Sandy":

You may be sure it was great fun to work with you in checking up on Gov. Pinchot during his mad antics out here on the Pacific Coast. We were fortunate in having fine cooperation in all the cities where he delivered his talks.

We also did our best to cooperate with the newspapers and got satisfactory results there.

There is one phase of the situation which I am sure tended to discount the effect of his work and that was that the Republican newspapers, together with some splendid support from Mark Sullivan at Washington, clearly indicated what the political motive was back of Pinchot's trip.

You may say to your Committee that any time we can do anything out here to help things along, we will be only too glad to do it and, furthermore, you don't owe me anything. I will get even with you the next time I come down your way.

Ex-Governor Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, will be interested in reading this letter. It was written by the high-powered propagandist of the Oregon public utility interests to Major J. S. S. Richardson, super press agent of the lobby and propaganda organization of the Pennsylvania utility interests.

It was written July 27, 1925, at the time when Governor Pinchot was making a speaking tour through the West, trying to arouse national interest in his giant power bills in the Pennsylvania Legislature, designed to assure cheap electricity for city and rural consumers.

This letter, introduced into the current investigation of the utility interests by the Federal Trade Commission, shows how the utility interests kept track of Governor Pinchot's tour.

BOND ISSUE UP JUNE 26

SEEK TO PUT ALL ROADS IN ONE ITEM

County Commissioners today set June 26 as the tentative date for the special county bond issue election.

For the past week Commissioners have been meeting delegations from every section of the county and discussing requests for improvements. The conferences will be concluded tomorrow. An executive session will be held by the Commissioners and the items to be included in the issue will be decided on.

The law requires that items in a special election be advertised 30 days. County Solicitor W. Heber Dithrich and his staff of assistants will prepare the items for publication by Saturday.

Representatives of Oakmont Chamber of Commerce, interested in the Allegheny River boulevard to cost $3,535,000, suggested that all proposed construction of boulevards be grouped into one item on the ballot.

SUN-TELE BOOK'S COFFEE CAKE RECIPE

Recipe from the Sunday Sun-Telegraph Cook Book (published April 22), reprinted by request.

GERMAN COFFEE CAKE

2 cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoon sugar
4 teaspoons baking powder
2 tablespoons shortening
2-3 cup milk

Mix and sift dry ingredients, add melted shortening and enough milk to make a very stiff batter. Spread ½ inch thick in greased pan, add top mixture. Bake about 30 minutes in moderate oven.

TOP MIXTURE

2 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon cinnamon
3 tablespoons sugar
3 tablespoons shortening

Mix dry ingredients, rub in shortening and spread thickly over top of dough before baking.

This makes a small but very delicious coffee cake. The Household Editor will be pleased to publish any other recipes upon request.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

A GIRLS' orchestra of 18 instrumentalists has been specially organized to supply the musical background for a new radio feature, the O-Cedar hour, which makes its bow to Red Network listeners tonight from 8 to 8:30 o'clock. It will be heard over WCAE. The new feature, which will be offered regularly hereafter during the same period, will present in addition the team of Miller and Lyles, Negro comedians, now starring in "Keep Shufflin'," and a quartet of male voices. This new program replaces the "Great Moments in History" episode originally scheduled for this period.

A group of war songs, both ancient and modern, will be played by the Trail Blazers, an orchestra directed by Harold Sanford, during the Riverside Hour, which will be broadcast through stations associated with the Blue Network, including KDKA, at 9 o'clock. Riehl's "Spirit of Progress" march opens the program, and is followed by "Fife and Drum" and "Boys of the Old Brigade," both old British songs. America is represented by Meacham's "American Patrol," the pioneer song, "Tenting Tonight" and "President's March." "Break the News to Mother," a trumpet solo, is reminiscent of old battles, as is "Just Before the Battle Mother," to be sung by a male quartet. They will also sing "The Vacant Chair."

The course of instruction in golf strokes to be given by Johnny Farrell, prominent professional golfer, in the Spur Tie program, will begin at 9 o'clock tonight. It will be broadcast by the 17 associated stations of the Columbia system, including WJAS. The series is to consist of four talks, all of which will be on the subject of different shots, the correct clubs to use in making them, stance, swing, the follow-through, and other niceties of the game so important to the golf fan's heart.

A program suggestive of the sparkling, exhilarating tang of the Arctics will be presented by the A. & P. Gypsies over WCAE and other Red Network stations at 8:30 o'clock. It will be titled "Alaska Night" and will bring to listeners "The Arrival of the Bojars," a work of John Halvorsen, the Norwegian composer, about the nearest composer, geographically and musically, to the land being depicted. There will follow an American waltz, a "Japanese Sunset," a fragment by the Austrian composer, Friml, then the famous "Andante Cantabile," from the string quartet by the Russian Tschaikowsky, and a ballad, "Not So Long Ago." Two English dances from "Nell Gwyn" and a Hungarian dance by the French ballet composer, Delibes, also will be presented.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A SILENT WOMAN

By EUDORA R. RICHARDSON

WHEN Jerry McLean came to Kingston, everyone wondered about her—everyone but Keith Hunter. As for Keith, he had time for nothing save adoration. In the first place, Kingston felt cheated because it had never known that J. Wright Chesterman, the president of one of its largest banks, had a daughter. Mr. Chesterman had not been brought up in the bank over which he presided. Ten years ago he had come through invitation from another city. Anyone might have looked at him and seen that he was the quiet business-like sort capabile of having any number of possesisons undisclosed to Kingston. Yet Kingston was indignant.

Jerry was far prettier than any woman had a right to be whose 9-year-old son was well in the foreground—and far too youthful in appearance. There was not a line in her face—not a laugh wrinkle or a crow's foot. She had a distracting way of wearing a blue hat that just matched the cerulean of her eyes. Everyone declared, too, that to keep her slim figure she must diet distressingly.

Keith Hunter, however, cared to know nothing about Jerry save that his nearness was not distasteful to her. Thirty and superlatively eligible in the eyes of Kingstonian maids and matrons, Keith was openly in love with the newcomer. Indeed, the situation was exasperating. Of course, nobody did anything about it but Keith's mother. That lady, however, whom people never withstood, least of all her own children, gave Keith a sound talking to.

"What do you know of this—this woman who is engaging all your time?" she asked.

Keith's handsome face clouded, and his eyes had a strange look behind their frank surface.

"If you mean Jerry," he replied, "I know that she is the most adorable piece of perfection that ever breathed."

Anyone but Mrs. Hunter would have been reduced to silence.

"Has she ever told you anything about her past?" she insinuated.

"Certainly not. That belongs to her," Keith countered staunchly. "I'm too busy trying to get in on her future to bother about what is over."

"I suppose you know that she has had two husbands," Mrs. Hunter continued.

"That's no secret," Keith defended. "Her boy's last name is not McLean."

"Does she ever talk about her husbands?"

"Gosh, no! It would be rather gruesome—entertaining a suitor with post-mortems."

"That's the point, my dear," Mrs. Hunter replied with the confidence of an archer about to let fly a fatal arrow. "There could be no post-mortems. Both her husbands are living. She's been divorced twice."

"Then there'll be no ghosts to haunt me," Keith smiled. "I can handle living antagonists."

Mrs. Hunter was openly infuriated. Keith, however, whistled a tune as he backed his roadster out of the garage and turned its nose toward Jerry's.

Jerry in golf togs, a shade deeper than her eyes, was compensation for any number of family disturbances.

"Let's take Dick with us to caddy," she suggested. "He adores it, you know."

"Of course," Keith agreed.

The little boy was a good sort. Besides, Jerry's comradeship with her son was one of the things about Jerry that warmed the cockles of Keith's heart. Many a woman who looked no more than 20 would have kept a boy of 9 in the background. In the golden May sunshine Keith utterly forgot his mother. He was eager to adopt Jerry's past, present, and all her encumbrances if she would share her future with him.

Keith never thought of Jerry as young. There was something in her eyes that showed him she had lived and suffered—something that made her all the more dear to him. Soon he would ask Jerry to marry him. Yet a vague fear that she might refuse made him loath to risk the blessings he now enjoyed.

When Keith took Jerry home at sundown, he was amazed to see his mother's car standing outside the apartment. The situation boded no good, he reflected, but he need not warn Jerry. She would be quite equal to th conflict.

At dinner that evening Mrs. Hunter fairly exuded triumph. Keith asked no questions, knowing that an answer would soon be forthcoming. It was while coffee was being served on the side verandah that his mother exploded her bomb.

"I called on the young woman," she said, "and told her all I had heard."

"Which was?" Keith inquired politely.

"That both her husbands had divorced her for infidelity, that she had been dragged through two of the most odorous divorce cases on record. I asked if she had any denial to make, and she said that she had none. Then I asked if she thought she had a right to ruin my son's life by marrying him, and she admitted that she had no right. I think if you see the young woman now, she will confess to a past that will sicken you."

Keith turned on his heel and left in silence. He was white and shaken, and his lips were pressed in a firm, hard line.

He found Jerry alone in her living room. Her face wore an expression that was new and unfathomable. Youth had fallen from her like a garment she had no desire to wear. Keith stood before her embarrassed and perplexed.

"My mother has told me," he faltered. "I came to say that I am sorry, Jerry."

"It isn't your fault," she replied. "Our friendship has been fine. I shan't forget it, Keith."

In a moment the man's arms were about her.

"Oh, Jerry, I love you," he said. "I don't believe anything, but if it were all true, it would be the same to me. All I want on earth is to hear you say that you love me."

Jerry pushed Keith away until her eyes met his.

"You mean that you want me in spite of the fact that I made no denial?" she asked.

"In spite of anything—everything."

"I didn't know men were like that," she said as her arms drew him close.

Then after a tumultuous moment she freed herself again.

"It isn't true, Keith. I had no idea people could manufacture such stories. I was a war bride. My husband—Dick's father—was killed in France before the boy was born. I loved him. Later I married again because I was drifting so and was so miserable. James McLean was much older. He knew that I gave him only respect. He died two years ago, Keith. I thought I was done with love—before you came...."

"We're just beginning to find it, Jerry," Keith exulted, his lips again seeking hers.

KAUFMANN'S STORE-WIDE CLEARANCE

Good storekeeping, like good housekeeping, demands occasional clearances to preserve orderliness and freshness in stocks. Such is this—a clearaway sale, store-wide in its scope, of everything incomplete or ill-assorted in our merchandise. To hasten the selling, and to make the clearance thorough, drastic reductions have been made on all Clearance merchandise. The signs will show you where such reduced prices are in effect.

BLOODY CLUES -:- Boy Scouts Beat Countryside for Kidnaper -:- IN OHIO SEARCH

FROCK

Boy Scouts have taken up the Youngstown search for Beatrice Rosenbaum, 10, kidnaped child. Directed to this spot by suspicious actions of a stranger, Scouts found a tot's frock, not yet positively identified as that worn by Beatrice. The lad not uniformed is Leo, 14, Beatrice's brother.

CHALLENGE

Scouts fling a challenge at the driver of each roadster such as that shown above, fitting in any way the description of the car in which the girl was carried off. The whereabouts of the car and driver are sought and suspicious answers are referred to police along with license numbers of the cars.

"YES IT'S HERS!"

MOTHER

Scouts in one rocky nook found a handkerchief which they carried directly to Mrs. Max Rosenbaum, Beatrice's mother. Here, the mother, without having been told of other bloody evidence found, examines the handkerchief, which she is almost certain is that of her "baby."

BLOOD?

Detailed search of the countryside is made by these trained boys. Here they scrutinize very closely a sack found on a rocky hillside. Stains are believed to be blood and the Scouts after examination sent the "clue" to police for analysis. A large number of boys are working under their scoutmasters.

THE CONSTANT FLAME

A Fair Maid Meets Love In Strange Surroundings -:- by WINIFRED VAN DUZER

Marty Gives Emily a Present Of an Airedale, Which She Names 'Raggedy'

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

Emily Day and her younger sister, Kitten, are daughters of a worker in the Rossiter factory. He rails against the rich, and the mother has hard work to make ends meet. Emily loses her heart to Kent Rossiter, but Marty Nolan, whose father keeps a "speakeasy," is devoted to her. Her poverty prevents her from mingling with the socially elect and she wonders whether she will ever be one of them. Unable to go to the high school picnic she wanders to a mountain and Marty, who meets her, risks his life to gather some leaves for her. "You might have been killed!" she cries. "I'd do more than that for you, Em," he replies. She forms a friendship with rich Mrs. Frances Haiden, interior decorator, who talks to her about beauty and color, and presents her with a dress. Emily makes frequent visits to her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

STEVE shuffled his feet and scowled at the floor; Agnes pressed her hands together to stop them shaking. Rossiter glanced through the window and nodded at Peter Brent starting away down the street. "He'll get them out tonight. That youngster isn't a bad young fellow, Steve. Taking care of his mother and sending his sister to school. Try to give him a hand, will you? It's the older men like you, ones who've been with us a long time we depend on. Let me count on you, won't you?"

"Like Kent," Emily thought. "Clever and kind—oh, he's fine. He didn't have to do this; come here to ask father not to be so disagreeable. Some would have discharged him, taken his living away because he acted so. He won't let himself like the Rossiters; he doesn't want to like them—"

Now Kent's father turned to her, smiling, and mentioned his own daughter. "You're younger than Avis? But of course; I remember your dad coming in to say he had a little girl. You'll soon get through school? And what will you be then? A teacher maybe?"

It was the first Emily had thought of that. She looked up with a tingle of excitement. "A teacher? You—you think I might teach? I'd love it! Mother's sister is a teacher. Why, maybe—do you suppose I might teach Latin?"

He twinkled at her enthusiasm, yet she saw he was quite serious. "Of course you could teach. I've heard what a good student you are. Certainly you could teach Latin. Indeed I've heard about your aunt. Blood will tell, my dear."

There it was again, she thought. Always something blood would help you do or stop you from doing. Why?

Must one surely be as others had been, those who had gone before and left an assortment of likes and dislikes, ambitions, hopes, failures to run through the body and make or mar one's life?

Was blood a despot always to command, never to be gainsaid?

It ran blue in one man's veins, and he was Mister Rossiter and controlled other men. And in another's veins it wasn't blue at all; just a life stream which kept him going along, able to earn his way, never firing him with the urge to climb the heights. And that one was Steve Day, factory hand.

Emily felt a vague resentment; a sense of defeat. What use ambition if this must be so? Held by blood as by an unbreakable chain one would be always the prisoner or heritage.

When she had spoken of her aunt, Kent's father remarked "blood will tell." Here was something; perhaps a thin line of blue coursing her pulses. Aunt Mary had the will to move up and on; somewhere back in the long ago there must have been an ancestor with vision and courage. Had something of those been passed down to her?

A drop of blue blood . . . She bared her wrist and looked at it long and thoughtfully.

CHAPTER IV.

MARTY went by one morning on a tramp up the hill.

He had not spoken to Emily since the day on North Mountain when he pressed the bright leaves into her hands and silenced her protests that he might have been killed by his tense, "I'd do more than that for you, Em. Much more than that."

She had seen him in the school yard, met him once or twice on the street, but he had stalked by with a curt nod or perhaps paying no attention to her at all. Once she saw him walking with Anne and felt a quick, unreasonable pang of irritation.

Anne giggling up at him, leading him around the way she had led her police dog—stalwart fellow with a silly pink bow on his collar. Something incongruous about that; Emily wanted to burst out, "Oh, let him alone—don't try to tame him. He's pretty awful, but at least he's himself. Don't hang a pink bow on him; he't not for that."

But she said nothing—only stared—and Anne grinned snappily and slid her hand through Marty's arm. He promptly snatched his arm away.

Now he was tramping through the field, grown to brush and locust, beside the Day place and Emily was in the garden training vines. Feet raced beside him; there was an explosion of pleased yelps and a raggedy nose was thrust through the bushes.

"The darling!" Emily cried, bending to pull the dog's ears. Airedale, isn't he? Oh, you lovely puppy thing!"

She sat on a bank and gathered the slim body in her arms. Another dog sprang out and stood wagging his clipped tail very fast, looking at her with bright eyes. Marty came awkwardly and sat beside her, grinning.

"Say, they like you, Em. Don't care much about petting either, terriers don't. They're thoroughbreds; best anywhere. Their dad won every first prize at the Garden shows for gosh knows how long and their mamma—say, look't that one snuggle!"

"Lamb child! What funny long noses. As if someone had been drawing them and his hand slipped."

"That's blood," Marty explained. "If their noses were shorter and their heads wider they wouldn't be the aristocrats they are. That's what it is, Em; blood."

Blood again. Blue blood. These puppies had it so they were better than ordinary dogs. "Better than the Brent dog who had hound ears and a collie tail and goodness knew what other breeds all mixed up in his wriggling body.

"Why is blood important?" she asked Marty. "They'd be dogs just the same, wouldn't they? Friendly and loyal like all dogs?"

"But not so intelligent. These blooded fellows are a good deal like classy people; they always run true to form. You can bank on them. They're big-hearted, what I mean; if they love you or even if they don't and think they owe you something they'll die for you without a whimper. Why, say, Em, they think!

(To Be Continued Tomorrow.)

M'KEESPORT VETERANS PAY MEMORIAL TRIBUTE

The thirtieth anniversary memorial services and reunion of John Gregg Camp, Spanish War Veterans was held last night in the John P. Harris Theater, McKeesport. The speakers were J. DO YOU KNOW HIM?

PRESIDENTIAL POSSIBILITIES

Dost know by sight this man? Perhaps you do, perhaps you don't, and if you do perhaps you're wrong. He's a possible candidate for the presidency of the United States as convention dates draw nearer. There isn't here the slightest hint of his identity. The Sun-Telegraph is printing a series of "possible candidates," Democratic and Republican and otherwise, always withholding the name until the following day. This man's name tomorrow!

SATURDAY'S "POSSIBLE CANDIDATE" WAS SENATOR JAMES REED, DEMOCRAT, MISSOURI.

358 STAY IN DANCE DERBY

They're at it again, those persistent marathoners.

At 1 p. m. today 179 young men and 179 equally young women were prepared to enter the thirteenth hour of hoofing in what might very well be described simply as another dance marathon. This time the "perpetual" shufflers are in the Stahl Gardens in Homestead.

At midnight 185 couples bade hopeful farewells to their loved ones and took up the business of keeping on the move incessantly for day upon day, with 15 minutes intermission each hour. This starting group is the biggest that has dared the rigors of any of the hoofing handicaps that have kept this end of the commonwealth awake for two months.

TWO PAIRS FORCED OUT

Two couples were disqualified rather early. One hour after the marathon was opened to a round of Homestead huzzas, Bill Meyers, of Sharpsburg, and Margaret Baudes, of East End, were ordered to pack up because Margaret's family objected to her debut as a marathoner. After six hours' shuffling Elmer McLafferty, of Dover, O., and his partner, Jessie Butch, of 6062 Sawyer street, were dropped. Jessie had no doctor's certificate.

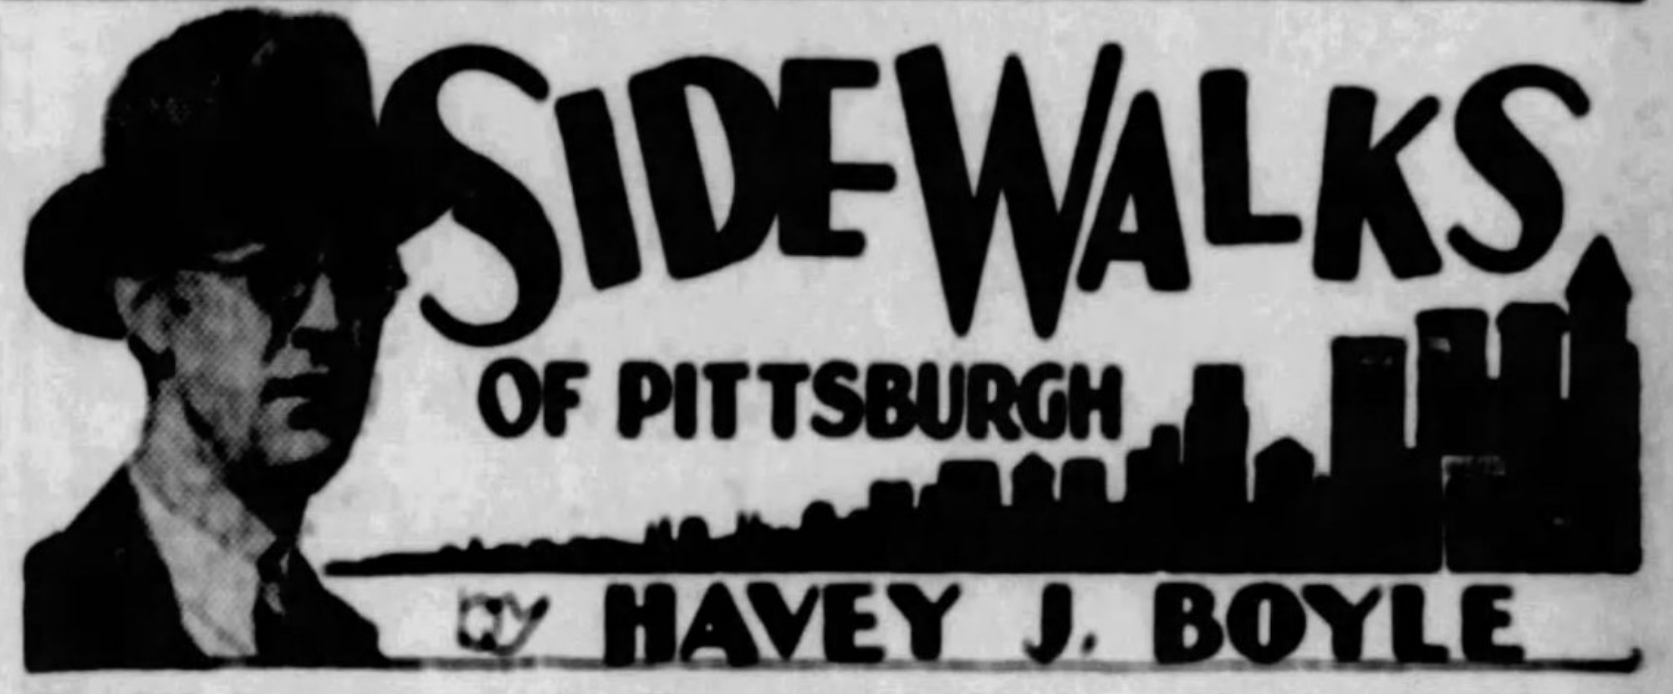
At 11 a. m. one couple, Irene Malone and Leonard Splane, of Crafton Heights, "disappeared," and was disqualified. The marathon bosses discovered the pair missing in a roll call.

At noon three other couples were dropped when they failed to answer "present" to the hourly checkup. They were Elizabeth Johnston, of 1413 Howard street, and Phillip Gareis, 1311 Howard street; Mary DeFazio and Frank DeFazio, 1202 Webster avenue; Sarah Ashcroft, of Homestead, and Harold Evans, of 4306 Summit street.

USING TWO FLOORS

The dancers are moving about on two floors of the Stahl building. The basement dance floor is not big enough to accomodate all those who fancy the prize of 10 per cent of the gate receipts, the remaining contestants have been moved to the Stahl theater stage on the street floor.

The motive of this marathon seems to be to eliminate the record of 122 hours which was set up by three couples in the Motor Square Garden derby, and the 143-hour mark set Saturday by six couples at Unionntown.



SIDE-WALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

BACK home from the Kentucky derby to settle down and to settle up. It would be difficult to arrange a more interesting trip than the train operated by J. Routley and L. Bowden, with John Schrader and Jim Short as the generalissimos. Naturally, on an assignment of that kind the poor reporter works day and night, but there is the compensation of knowing that one has done his best by his writings on such an assignment to make the world a better place in which to live, as one of the late war slogans nicknamed it.

Nearly all the boys on the Pittsburgh train had Reigh Count, the derby winner judging from the animated conversation on the train following the derby. There was one exception to this, however. One of the local boys had Toro right on the nose and until the horses came down the stretch had a chance. He was discreetly silent in the post-race discussion.

• • •

THE fact that Toro did not win was not so amazing to this observer as the fact that our good friend, M. Nielan, carried an umbrella on the trip. M. Nielan is a man about town and to see him carying an umbrella was worth two dollars of anyone's money.

• • •

Canonsburg must have shut up shop completely for the derby. At least it seemed here that every third fellow on the train hailed from that historic town. Those boys from Canonsburg were versatile, too. One of them, for instance, Chuck Campbell, spoke Greek fluently. In the course of a game, whose ramifications your correspondent knows little about, Mr. Campbell was shouting for Epsidetix. At first we thought it was the name of a horse that he liked, but after a translator got busy it developed that Epsidetix seems to be Greek for number 10. Mr. Campbell with two cubes which he rolled from his hand (the cubes bearing characters representing the numbers one to six) was quite anxious to see the cubes show Epsidetix. He was a hard man to satisfy. He had thrown one Epsidetix and now he was that curious he wanted to see Epsidetix once more. At other times he was partial to what he called "nice dice, number seven."

SPEAKING Greek came natural to Mr. Campbell as he once went to Cornell where he was a member of a Greek letter society. That was not the only accomplishment of the Canonsburg delegation. There was Mr. Buick, named presumably after an automobile, and Mr. Buick proved to be a whistler of note.

• • •

Mr. Campbell said to Mr. Buick, "Whistle for Mr. Boyle." and Mr. Buick then preceeded to whistle. It was so realistic we looked for some bread crumbs to toss at Mr. Buick.

• • •

M. CRANDALL was along. He came back on the special train and lighted out almost at once for his New York marathon invasion. Mr. Crandall is a horseman of note. On the first day he liked the courageous and brave horses as he recommended that his friends bet on horses which were not so speedy, but were game to the core. M. Crandal's horses pursued relentelessly the winners. His horses never caught up with the front runners, but there is no telling what would have happened. They were brave, eager for a fight possibly, but not quite fast enough.

The trip developed that Frank Saupp will qualify in any bridge game. He never gets angry when his partner is doubled or makes a misplay. He is far more reasonable than Mr. Al Oliver, who found a great many flaws in Eddie Bald's bidding. Practically, every time that Mr. Oliver, who used to be an assistant district attorney for the county, got set, he would cast a baleful glance at Eddie Bald and say: "Your bid was three clubs instead of three no trumps and that's why they set me in four diamonds." Mr. Oliver, at that, was the best of the foursome.

JOHNNY O'DONNELL of the North Side was in a reminisicent mood one evening on the trip and recalled an unlucky incident in a game between the Pittsburgh Lyceum and the Wash-Jeff club in the long ago. One of the Pittsburgh Lyceums fellows broke away in an open field, Johnny recalls, when an enthusiastic but imprudent substitute of the Wash-Jeff team dashed from the bench and made as pretty tackle as you'd care to see. Mr. O'Donnell protested to the officials who happened to be the well-known Ed Young and the better-known Arthur Poe, but the officials reported they did not see the play.

• • •

John Roberts and Mr. Lowe and Ray Flocker of the Pennsylvania Railroad, were a little hurt because some time ago a reporter referred to one of their crack trains as a series of coaches. Mr. Roberts said: "If you say anything about the train will you please say the cars are sleepers." We agreed to that and it is, of course, just a white harmless little lie. Well, they may have been sleepers at that, but there weren't so many who did any sleeping, eh Canonsburg?

JUDGE WARNS JURY PANEL

Judge Josiah Cohen today gave solemn warning to a new panel of 250 men and women jurors in Common Pleas Court that they must not tell how a jury stood on any case upon which they might be called to serve.

Judge Cohen repeated the oath each juror takes when called and stressed "you will render a verdict according to the law and the evidence" and cautioned them not be swayed because of friendship for anyone.

TWO STOLEN IDOLS

Mystery! Thrills! Adventure!

by FRANK L. PACKARD

Bob Kingsley Plans To Leave for Singapore

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

The body of Tom Kingsley, once a dashing sea-faring adventurer, is picked up in a fragile craft by Capt. "Scarface" Sweeney and his mate, Marlow, when their schooner is becalmed off Singapore. Mute evidence on the body testifies to the fact that the man died in a struggle, and that he was more than likely the victim of foul play. Tom's brother, Robert, also an old "sea dog," but now infirm and living with his son, Young Bob, on a plantation in the South Sea Islands, is notified of the death and receives the various articles found on the corpse. Among these are two small but handsomely carved Ivory Idols which, because they are no ordinary trinkets, hint at mystery. Robert Kingsley has good reasons to believe that Hsi Yan, an ancient enemy of the Kingsley family, has returned after thirty years to seek vengeance.

NOW GO ON WITHE THE STORY.

"HSI YAN?" Bob Kingsley's brows drew sharply together. "How?"

"I don't know," replied the old man gruffly; "but I've got a felling about it that I'm right. Anyway, lock 'em up with the other things. I—I'm tired." He set the two white gods back on the table. "We'll talk about it in the morning before you sail. You're going in the morning, lad, aren't you?"

Bob Kingsley nodded. He gathered up the letters, the two little idols and the other effects that had been found upon the body of his uncle, and, crossing the room, locked them all in the drawer of the desk. He returned to the table, and handed the key to his father.

The old man began to wheel his chair toward the passageway that led to the bedrooms of the bungalow.

"Dead!" he muttered under his breath. Hsi Yan's dead. And Tom's gone!"

CHAPTER IX.

THE clock in the living-room struck two. Bob Kingsley turned restlessly on his bed. He had heard the clock strike every hour and every half hour since long before midnight, when, after assisting his father to retire, he had promptly turned in himself. He could not sleep, and, if anything, was more wide awake now than when he had gone to bed. His mind was too active—and, in a sense, confused, for hard on each other's heels came crowding persistently the story of Hsi Yan, the finding of his murdered uncle's body, and finally Crowley's letter that so frankly admitted the writer's inability to piece together the various and conflicting incidents of that night on Kalawa and make of them a logical whole. And all this had kept on thrusting itself upon him, inducing a gamut of emotions: a rush of fury, a blind elemental passion, a thirst for vengeance against those who had struck down the man that had been his boyhood's idol, and, in later years, apart from his father, the best friend he had ever had; then grief would come, and a mist would swim before him—it was strange, that!—it was long since he could remember wet eyes!—and a sense of irretrievable loss would lie heavy upon him; and then his brain would start groping again for a solution that would co-ordinate the happenings at Kalawa on the night of the attack.

His father, too, he knew, had been wakeful. For a long time he had heard the other tossing about on his bed—but there was no sound now from the next room. Pray God his father had at last got to sleep! Grimly, and, in a way, stoically enough, the old man had taen the blow, but under the surface he, Bob Kingsley, knew only too well that it had cut hard and deep, and, in the other's already impaired physical condition, had been a shock that almost certainly would retard recovery for a long time to come.

Bob Kingsley drove a clenched and vicious fist into his pillow, and, swinging over on his side, stared out of the window. It was dark now—almost black—even the native quarters across the clearing a few hundred yards away were invisible. The moonlight was gone, the stars had been blotted out, and the wind was getting up. He scowled savagely. He was sailing in the morning. Perhaps, though, it was no more than a tropical squall brewing.

His scowl deepened. In the long run, he'd have a far better chance with the Alita than would a gunboat whose business was blazoned on every line of her; but, even with an unobtrusive little schooner whose comings and goings were unheralded, and that could poke her nose in anywhere without exciting comment, it would be no sinecure to find Hsi Yan's junk and the cutthroat crew that manned her. On the face of it, it even looked like a well-nigh hopeless task. The chances were too heavily against him to make such a plan appear practical, for if the crew stuck together and continued to operate the junk for their own profit, the junk would certainly be disguised, and moreover would, with equal certainly, steer clear of the beaten paths until long after its crew were satisfied that the search had been given up as futile—and a Chinaman's patience was inexhaustible! On the other hand, the crew might very naturally have decided that the safest thing to do would be to abandon the junk, scatter, and let the East swallow them up. To the average European all Chinamen looked alike!

But they didn't look alike to each other! Bob Kingsley's lips twisted into a grim smile. That was where he would begin. Black Bob, they had called him! Well, perhaps his reputation, whether merited or not, would for once stand him in good stead! There were haunts in Singapore to which, so far as he knew, Black Bob was the only white man who had the entree. It would be dangerous, of course, perhaps even unsuccessful; but in those places, like a sort of underworld exchange, unknown to the average "Foreign Devil," whisperings passed from mouth to mouth, and there was little indeed that was not known in so far as native trafficking of any sort that mocked the law was involved. Who had been Hsi Yan's lieutenant on the junk—who were the individual Chinamen who had composed the crew? Where were they now? Was the junk still in commission? Had it been abandoned? Or had it been sold—in which case it would now have a crew with which he was in no way concerned. It was the men, not the junk, he was after! With luck and a bit of risk in those haunts in Singapore, he, Black Bob, because of that unsavory name, might find the answer to those questions—there was very little chance that the law ever would!

The Alita was provisioned and waiting out there in the lagoon—and had been for several weeks on the chance of still making the pearling season. But it was no longer a question of the pearl beds, or of staying in Patua here on the plantation until his father was able to get around again. The plantation would get along somehow, and one or two of the old native servants could be brought over from their own quarters to live in the bungalow so that his father would always have personal attention—especially at night if it were needed. And even if the plantation didn't get along, that did not count now in view of what had happened. As his father had said, that wasn't the Kingsley way!

He would sail in the morning for Singapore, providing this storm that apppeared to be blowing up didn't develop into something that would absolutely keep the Alta port-bound. That was settled; but—he frowned heavily again as he stared out into the darkness—there were other phases, strange sinister phases of this brutal and cold-blooded crime at Kalawa that permitted of no definite conclusion at all.

His mind, refusing repose, returned to Hsi Yan—a sick man carried ashore. And Hsi Yan's body left there! There was something extremely curious about that; something that seemed to possess a grim significance which, if fathomed, would lay bare the crux of the whole affair. That Hsi Yan had had himself carried ashore to gloat over his proposed victim's death—yes! That Hsi Yan might even have known that he was a dying man himself at the time—yes! That would be wholly in keeping with his racial characteristics. It would sweeten his own death! He, Bob Kingsley, could understand that. But why had Hsi Yan's body been left behind? The suggestion that he himself had at first advanced to account for this was not even pertinent now in view of his father's story; but his father's story in no way suppplied the answer, either. The crew of the junk might very well be a band of cutthroats and murderers that were drawn from the scum of Asia, but they were not fools and not without an inherent and vicious cunning. They had their own skins to think of. The chances were a thousand to one that the identity of the junk would never have been known without Hsi Yan's body to establish it; and, certainly, though his father and Capt. Scarface might have had well-founded suspicions, nothing could have been proved. The crew, by leaving the body of their leader behind, thereby spread a trail that invited pursuit, retribution and the possibility of their own destruction. There was something deeper, something that——

Bob Kingsley raised himself on his elbow and listened intently. There must be a shutter loose somewhere. He was aware now that subconsciously he had been listening to a faint creaking sound for the last minute or so. It came again now. He tried to locate it. It might be either from his father's window, or from the living room beyond.

He muttered irritably and impatiently to himself. If it wasn't one thing, it was another! He seemed fated for a sleepless night! Would he get up and close the shutter, if it was a shutter, or would he not? He glanced outside through the open window. The wind was getting up a bit, all right—the tree-tops were swaying noticeably against the black skyline. But the sound he had heard was now no longer in evidence. Perhaps it had been merely the trees themselves, the creaking of the limbs in the gusts of wind. Curse it all, he was actually beginning to feel sleepy now that his mind had been momentarily diverted from Hsi Yan and that night of murder at Kalawa! He dropped back on his pillow. If the sound came again and persisted there would be nothing to do but to get up—the shutter, or whatever it was, probably wouldn't come to any harm, but to lie there and have the blamed thing irritate him was impossible. But he would wait and see, anyhow.

He listened intently again. It had certainly stopped. There wasn't a sound now except the rising whine of the wind in a gust that was even more pronounced than before, and——

There came a sudden crash from the direction of the living room.

Sea Water on Brown Shoes

Marks of sea water on brown shoes can be removed if well rubbed with hot milk (two tablespoonfuls) in which a lump, walnut size, of washing soda has been dissolved. Allow it to dry on, and then polish in the ordinary way. It does brown shoes a lot of good if now and then—once in three weeks—they are well rubbed with a solution of soft soap and warm water. This cleans the leather, and the subsequent polish of the shoes, when dry, will make them look like new.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Agrees to Tutor Miss Lincoln, but Will Accept No Compensation

SOMETIMES I think that Lilian has all the instincts of a vivisector, only with souls for her scalpel instead of bodies. The look which I caught in her eyes at my impassioned protest against teaching Eleanor Lincoln the history of the drama, as Mr. Veritzen had requested, had revealed to me the reason for her crass question to my employer concerning Miss Lincoln's intentions as to payment. She had wished to know my reaction to Dicky's admiration of the girl and had taken this method of eliciting it.

For a moment my heart was hot against her. Then with the remembrance of her many years of staunch friendship and with the knowledge that she was actuated only by a desire to help me, my anger died, only to flare again an instant later as Mr. Veritzen answered my protest.

"But how exceedingly foolish of you!" he exclaimed. "Your time is exceedingly valuable. Why should you give it away? Miss Lincoln is not only able, but extremely anxious——"

I put up my hands with a decisive gesture.

"Please do not speak of this again if you wish me to teach her," I said with an iciness that covered violent anger. "If you will count this service as part of my duties as your employe I shall be very glad not only to carry out not only your explicit instructions, but your implied ones. Otherwise I must refuse to have anything to do with it."

He looked at me fixedly and I returned the gaze as steadily. Lilian snapped the tension with an opportune laugh.

"Come one, come all; this rock shall fly from its firm base as soon as I," she quoted. "You may think that refers to you, Phil, but let me tell you old Sir Walter did not know Madge or he'd have made that couplet refer to her. Better let her have her way. You won't get yours unless you do."

He bowed a bit stiffly.

"I can only acquiesce in so pronounced a decision," he said. "And I am more grateful than I can say. When can you begin?"

"At any time," I returned. "Today, tomorrow."

"Always prompt and ready," he complimented. "What hours will suit your convenience?"

"I hold my time from 10 to 4 at your service," I reminded him, "so Miss Lincoln would better choose hours most suited to her."

"I will ask her to do so and let you know," he said. Then he turned to Lillian, who had assumed an attitude most unusual to her. Slumped into her chair, with her hands resting listlessly in her lap and her face drawn dolorously down, she looked almost as if she were about to break into tears.

"Are you ill?" he asked, concernedly.

"I am dying," Lillian retorted, "of ennui. How ever do you stand it, Phil, out here, so far away from everything? I'm almost crazy about the country for about two days. Then everything goes black before my eyes and I gasp for breath until I get back to dear old Broadway again."

I listened with an astonishment that I had hard work to conceal to this specious speech. For if ever there was a woman who genuinely revels in country life during the Summer it is Lillian. She could not be hired to stay away from the city in the Winter time, but in the Summer no money would tempt her into it unless the necessities of her profession called her.

But I comprehended her little scheme with her next sentence.

"If there were anything doing out here it would be a little different," she said. "But everybody acts as though they had died and been buried for a year."

BUCS IN FIRST DOUBLE BILL TODAY

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Bucs Gambled and Lost in Losing to Reds Yesterday—Glenn Wright Playing Improved Ball in Pirates' In-and-out Behavior—Meadows Ordered to Take Absolute Rest in Effort To Get Into Shape.

AS AT least two or three others did on Derby Day, the Pirates gambled and lost yesterday.

Glenn Wright

When Walker was purposely walked in the ninth inning to take a chance on Allen, after Kelley had doubled, Manager Bush was playing the right percentage for a double play, even though Allen is hitting about 40 points more than Walker.

But Allen came through with a hit on which Kelly scored the winning run, and another game in which the Bucs had held the lead until the eighth inning resulted in a defeat.

JUST another tough one of the kind of which the Pirates have lost not a few, and particularly regretted by the fans on this occasion because the victim was the hard-working Burleigh Grimes, who has been serving almost as Pittsburgh's whole pitching staff.

The Pirates have figured in four 3-to-2 games so far, and have won only one of them. The beat the Reds once, lost twice to that club and once to Chicago.

WHETHER the Bucs win or lose, Glenn Wright is generally found playing much improved ball these days. Not only has he speeded-up in the field, but his batting has been pleasingly steady. Do you know that Wright has failed in only three games this year to hit safely? Grover Alexander, of the Cards, on April 12; Freddie Blake, of the Cubs, on April 14, and Jumbo Elliott, of the Robins, on May 13, were the only hurlers to hold him hitless in the 30 games played by the Bucs. At one stretch he batted safely in 15 straight contests, and has has five in a row to his credit now. Burleigh Grimes is another who is entitled to a lot of credit for his hitting, in addition to his fine pitching. He has started nine games to date and has made one or more hits in every one of them.

UPON the next few days may depend whether the Pirates will regain the services of Pitcher Lee Meadows within a reasonable period, or will lose the veteran pitcher for the season.

Lee Meadows

Meadows' case is one of the most peculiar of the year. He was a week behind the other pitchers in going to the training camp on account of a sore arm, and did very little work during the training period.

SINCE the pennant race began, Meadows has not thrown a ball for the Bucs in a championship game, constantly undergoing treatment for his ailing arm, and also for sinus and teeth trouble, which were said to be contributing causes.

SEVERAL weeks ago Meadows pitched part of an exhibition game in Johnstown and gave a good account of himself. He also showed up strongly the following day at Forbes Field, but since that time his daily exercise in attempts to bring his arm "around" has failed to produce the desired results.

Finally, on the advice of physicians and trainers, Manager Bush decided to stop him altogether from throwing. Before the team left for Cincinnati Saturday night, Lee was given instructions to try absolute rest as a remedy and not to throw a ball during the team's absence.

IF MEADOWS is not in improved shape when the Bucs return home Thursday the chances will be considered against his being of much use to the club during the remainder of the year. Though the bespectacled flinger is 34 years old, the Pirates will be hard hit if they lose him, for when right he is a valuable asset in spite of his age, as is shown by the fact that he won 19 games in 1925, 20 in 1926 and 19 last year, or a total of 58 victories in the last three seasons. His pitching often was far from brilliant, but he won ball games, and that is what counts.

AMERICAN LEAGUE critics are agreed that no ball player in the big leagues is more deserving of such a tribute as

MANDELL, M'LARNIN TO BOX TONIGHT

NEW YORK, May 21.—Down but not out from the effects of three right-hand jolts by the weather, Tex Rickard today again essayed to hold a lightweight championship fight.

Conditions permitting Jimmy McLarnin and Sammy Mandell will meet in 15-round battle for the lightweight championship at the Polo Grounds tonight.

Rainy and threatening weather forced Rickard to postpone the match on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights last week. Today dawned foggy and none too promising.

If Rickard fails to get his lightweights into the squared circle tonight he intends to call the bout off until Thursday night when he'll try again. That procedure, however, will force the promoter to postpone a 15-round battle between Tod Morgan, of Seattle, and Eddie (Cannonball) Martin, of New York, for the junior lightweight crown held by the Pacific Coast star. They are scheduled to wage fistic combat at Madison Square Garden, on Thursday.

Rickard cannot transfer the McLarnin-Mandell fight to tomorrow or Wednesday night because of a conflict in dates with other outdoor shows. Tomorrow the Queensboro Stadium conducts its opening outdoor show of the season. On Wednesday night, Humbert Fugazy, Rickard's Metropolitan rival, has booked a 15-round bout at Ebbets Field between Bushy Graham, Utica, N. Y., and Corp. Izzy

Simpson Wins Lap In Derby

WAVERLY, N. Y., May 21. — (AP.) — Paul Simpson, of Burlington, N. C., who holds thirty-ninth place in C. C. Pyle's transcontinental footrace, showed his heels to his 54 rivals on the 58.3-mile jog from Bath to Waverly yesterday. Simpson's time was 8:57:10, giving him an elapsed time for the 3,155.5 miles from Los Angeles of 830:28:42.

Andrew Payne, Claremore, Okla., youth, who holds first place in the race, kept his margin over John Salo, Passaic, N. J., the second place holder, intact when they ran a dead heat for second place in today's lap. Seth Gonzales, of Denver, also tied with the leaders. Their time was 9:47:33.

Payne's elapsed time is 523:05:08, giving him a lead of 17:53:19 over Salo, who has the total time of 540:58:27. Gonzales is seventeenth in the standing with the elapsed time of 666:11:45.

ADAMS ILL; MAY BE OUT OF LINEUP

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

CINCINNATI, May 21.—All primed for their first double-header of the year and sore over their misfortune of yesterday, the Pirates today realized they had their work cut out for them if they were to pull themselves over the .500 level of mediocrity that has tantalized them for quite a spell this year.

There is a likelihood of the Pirates losing the services of Sparky Adams, second baseman. The little infielder has been ailing for two weeks with a severe cold, but it was characteristic of him to say nothing.

Sparky developed a slight fever last night and his roommate, Eddie Mulligan, reported his condition to the officials of the club. Adams has hardly been himself for some time. As he left Pittsburgh Saturday night he stated he had been feeling out of sorts, but it appears he made no complaint to Manager Bush about his condition.

A bit of loose play on the part of the league's premier hitter, yes, it might be said that Brother Paul slipped twice in a fielding way, and the slab duel featured by Burleigh Grimes was won by the Reds before a Sunday crowd of more than 17,000 excited natives. The score was three to two.

By all the ethics and rules of the grand old pastime, Grimes should be in possession of the first contest of the long series with the Reds. Burleigh held the Reds to five hits and he retired 14 of them in a row from the third to the eighth. The Rhinelanders tied up the contest after Pie Traynor and Glenn Wright became mixed on a ground ball. P. Waner's muff of Critz's short liner allowing the tally to go over the plate in the eighth.

Home Teams Win Series Honors

NEW YORK, May 21.—(AP.)—Home teams successfully repelled the invaders in nearly every instance in the first major league intersectional series which closed yesterday. Of the eight home clubs in both leagues, only the Washington Americans failed to break even or better. Of the invading clubs Cleveland alone ended its tour with an average of better than .500, although the Brooklyn Nationals managed to break even. The New York Yankees won 12 of their 13 engagements with Western clubs, while the Chicago Cubs won 13 of the 14 they played with Atlantic seaboard invaders. The records.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

by HARRY KECK SPORTS EDITOR

PHIL GOLDSTEIN, the local lightweight, meets a tough opponent in the main bout of an open-air show at Newark, N. J., tomorrow night. Augie Pisano, of Coney Island, is the gent, and he boasts two victories and a draw in three bouts with Bruce Flowers, who is generally regarded as the Negro lightweight champion, Pisano is said to have had Flowers on the floor in two of their battles, and he also has fought Billy Wallace, Joey Kaufman and other good ones.

They think a lot of Phil over in Newark, where he has appeared four times and won the hearts of the fans with his fine showmanship and willingness to fight.

ONCE more the Kentucky derby is out of the way with a favorite entered into the records as the winner, thus enhancing the reputation of this fixture as one in which the favorite frequently comes through.

The bookies were hard hit by Reigh Count's victory. He received a big play in the winter books, opening at odds of approximately 40 to 1 against him. The constant flow of money on his chances gradually hammered down the odds, but the winter book backers had to make good on the odds they quoted as they went along.

Reigh Count's Home Town Enriched

CHICAGO, May 21.—(AP.)—It is said with every vestige of verity that almost all the 900 inhabitants of Cary, Ill., had Reigh Count "on the nose" in the Kentucky derby Saturday; a not unlikely situation, since Cary is Reigh Count's home town.

Mayor Ralph Powers acted as the one who took the wagers to Louisville and laid them on Reigh Count to win.

John D. Hertz, husband of the derby winner's owner, found a brass band to greet him on his return yesterday. The band is keeping tuned up for the return of the mayor and the bankroll.

Watch the doings of the 2-year-olds this year. The champion will be the favorite in the winter books for next spring's derby. It is in that way that the favorite generally is installed. Only a breakdown in form will cause him to be removed from serious consideration.

THE heavyweight division is one in which youth will not be served. Gene Tunney, the champion, will be 30 years old next Friday and Tom Heeney, who is matched to fight him, was 29 last Friday. They make progress slowly in that class and if they are any good at all they last a long time.

There's Jack Dempsey, for instance. Judging from all appearances, he'll still be around with us when the cows come home.

ONE of our printers knows a centenarian who can remember way back when Jimmy McLarnin and Sammy Mandell originally were scheduled to meet.

One good thing about all of these postponements of the Mandell fight is that the folks can't remember whom the "experts" picked to win, and so it doesn't matter.

LOCAL BOY BACK FROM DERBY SAYS HE WAS DISAPPOINTED. THE MUD AND RAIN MADE IT LOOK LIKE A TRACK MEET.

Pitt won 10 out of 15 firsts in the Big Four track meet, but finished second to West Virginia, which had four winners. See! There's no sense to the darn things.

REAL ESTATORS PLAY

The Real Estate Board of Pittsburgh is participating in its first golf tournament of the year at the Highland Country Club today. A big attendance marked the event.

Four Stars To Compete

By JESS CARVER.

OFF hand, how many points would you say that Pitt will score in the Intercollegiates at Boston this week-end?

Following the defeat suffered by the Panthers in the Big Four meet out in the Stadium on Saturday, when the locals almost completely disregarded the second places in their anxiety to garner the major share of firsts, a decided fall has been noted in Pitt track stock. Even the brilliant showing of Capt. Gibby Welch and Joe Hammer Gwinn and Vic Pickard and Kenneth Webecan failed to salve the bruise of disappointment occasioned by the licking West Virginia gave Pitt.

Last year, in the I. C. A. meet, known more familiarly as the Intercollegiates, Pitt scored seven points when Gibby Welch took third in the discus and Capt. Tiny Linn second in the hammer throw. This year, local folks may look forward to some 15 points being chalked up to the credit of the Panthers, who will likely be represented by Capt. Welch, Vic Pickard, Gwinn and Wibecan.

Welch should score in both the discus and shot. If he shows the same form in the latter event that he did in the meet here Saturday, he'll be good for at least a third, for 46 feet 6 inches is no ordinary heave. Such a mark would have taken a third last year. Going in the assumption that he will not be forced to exert his strength in the broad jump and javelin at Boston he ought to be good for a third in the discus, just as he was last year.

PICKARD MAY SCORE

Pickard, vaulting as well as he ever has, will undoubtedly win a place in the pole vault—maybe a third. Don Gwinn, who was handicapped last year by bad hands, looms as a strong contender in the hammer throw, with only Wright of Cornell, to beat out for first honors. We will concede him a second in the event.

Now it comes to Wibecan and his flying feet. If Ken runs as he did at Penn State and against West Virginia in the dual meet some weeks ago, he'll be a sure point winner in both the 100 and 220, maybe only a fifth placer, but in there at any rate. Should he be "right" and unable to uncork the speed of which he is capable, he is likely to finish up near the top in one of the two races.

Adding those "potential" points together, we get the praiseworthy total of 15. It will be fine if the boys come through and score that high. It would add prestige to Pitt as a track school.

HOW WEST VA. WON

Here is a little dope on how the scoring was done by the Panthers and Mountaineers in the Big Four meet.

Pitt took 10 firsts to clinch top honors in the five-point division. But in ringing up seconds, the Panthers fell down like collective wet socks, gaining only two clear four pointers, in the 880 and mile races. They split the second place in the high jump with W.-J.

Pitt men finished third in the 100, pole vault, two-mile and 880. Seven fourth positions were taken, besides a three-way tie. Two Panthers took fifths.

And here is how West Virginia won the meet:

Firsts	4
Seconds	10
Thirds	8
Fourths	2
Fifths	6

Art Smith brought about as well a balanced team to Pittsburgh as has been seen here since—well, since Penn State was in town last time. The Glenns, Aultz's, Montgomery's, Keefer's Ruck's, Zeveley's Stender's, Riley's and Taylor's seemed to be able to crash through somewhere in every event. West Virginia scored three times as many points taking thirds than Pitt did taking seconds.

Pitt better enter one of these English meets where first places only are counted.

ALLEN SETS MARK

Tri-state district high school pole vaulters today are cheering the performance of Lowell (Rib) Allen, Salem, O., high's crack pole vaulter, who broke the world's interscholastic record in the event Saturday, when he vaulted 13 feet 1¼ inches at the Northeastern Ohio district track and field meet.

Allen has been vaulting for three years, and on numerous occasions, has cleared 12 feet 10 inches. Early this spring, while practicing for the Tech Interscholastic, he cleared the 13 foot mark, but as it was not accomplished in a meet, nothing was heard about it.

Allen has perfect form, and despite his slight form, the strength needed to manipulate the heavy pole and to get himself up in the air—literally, not figuratively.

COMPLETE MEET TOMORROW

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

The balance of the annual Allegheny county interscholastic track and field championship meet, so untimely halted by a downpour of rain last Friday, will be resumed tomorrow in the Schenley Oval.

There are 17 events remaining on the program, six for boys of senior high schools, two for girls of senior high schools, four for boys of junior high schools and five for girls of junior high schools.

Turtle Creek Union was setting the pace for senior high schools while West View Junior High was leading that division when the events were postponed.

The remaining events will get under way at 2:30 o'clock.

The Hotel, Club and Restaurant Golf Association played another of its bi-monthly tournaments today at the Pittsburgh Field Club.

FIGHT

Schwartz, state flyweight champion. This match will be for the bantamweight title so far as the New York State Athletic Commission and the National Boxing Association are concerned.

ODDS FAVOR CHAMP

Mandell and McLarnin, chafing at the bit, have been going through a daily course of training while waiting for the weather to clear up. They are scheduled to weigh in for the second time at the boxing commission offices this afternoon. The long delay in staging the bout has had little effect on the betting odds which remain at 7 to 5 on the champion.

The chief sufferer has been Rickard, who figures to lose about $25,000 on refunds to customers who came to town last week and can't hold out any longer.

Schwartz will have an opportunity to annex two titles when he engages Graham at Ebbets Field Wednesday. The corporal is recognized as flyweight champion in this state through his defeat of Newsboy Brown here during the winter. His claims to this crown, however, are disputed by the National Boxing Association which recognizes Frankie Genaro, also of New York, as the titleholder. Graham is getting his second "shot" at the bantam crown and hopes his present quest will end more favorably than his first. He lost the decision to Charley (Phil) Rosenberg after the latter had forfeited his 118-pound title by coming in overweight for his match with Graham.

The junior lightweight titular match on Thursday brings Morgan against a former bantamweight champion. Martin held the 118-pound some years ago but has grown two divisions since.

In addition to these championship matches a number of other bouts are scheduled in the smaller clubs during the week. Lope Tenorio, the Filipino slugger, clashes with Eddie Kid Wagner, of Philadelphia, in Brooklyn tonight. On Friday night Jack McVey, Negro middleweight of New York, engages George Courtney, of Oklahoma.

LONG'S SPORT COMMENT

will be paid at Cleveland on June 3, one week from next Sunday, to Second Baseman Bill Regan of the Boston American League club.

Regan formerly resided in Oakland and now makes his home in Brookline, and fully 500 residents of these two sections will go to Cleveland on June 3 on the special train to be run over the P. & L. E. railroad to do honor to Bill in the game between the Redsox and Indians.

REGAN has been playing a remarkable game at second base for Bill Carrigan's crew this spring. He played through his club's first 22 games of the season without making an error and is charged with only four misplays to date. He has made 59 putouts and 87 assists and has had much to do with his team's unbroken run of six straight games and its rise to the first division.

AN IDEA of the furore that Regan's playing has caused around the American League circuit, may be formed from the following in "The New York Evening Sun":

"Bill Regan of the Redsox would have yards of copy written about him if he happened to belong to any of the so-called contending teams of the American League, but as he is with the reconstructionists, much of his good work is lost sight of.

"Still Regan is among the outstanding second basemen of the season—the best man to occupy the post for the Boston team in an age. The records of the season's play show that Regan has gone after everything that came his way so far.

"REGAN has tried for everything and side-stepped nothing, and yet in his first 20 games he had no signs of an error, which is playing second base in any man's circuit. Regan is one of the cogs in the tighter defense of the Redsox—one of the reasons why the pitchers have the heart to go in there and try.

"The Regan you knew last season looks nothing like the young performer who is making Boston fans think of the good old days. Regan came North last season a sick player. He was not well until the season was half over, but he is going like a streak this year, smoothing out an infield that for years has been a sieve.

"Gerber is teaming well with him and Buddy Meyer is getting to be a much talked-about lad in his new job at third base.

WHEN Manager Dan Howley of the St. Louis Americans started to make over his club for the 1928 season, he did not stop at half-way measurses. On the contrary, he made a complete job of it, and went so far, in fact, that he has almost an entire new team on the field this year.

Dan Howley

It is hard to recognized Howley's present outfit as the team that the fans around the American League circuit came to know as the Browns.

HOWLEY did not pause at getting rid of the one-time star and manager, George Sisler, but made so many other changes that of the nine players who started a game against the Yankees the other day only two had worn St. Louis uniforms in the 1927 race.

WILTSE was with the Redsox last season, Manion was with Toronto, Blue and Manush were with Detroit, McNeely was with Washington and Brannon and Kress were in the minors.

The only two survivors of the 1927 St. Louis club in the lineup were Melillo and Schulte.

WINNING streaks canot go on forever, and finally the Cubs were brought to a halt yesterday. Last year they beat Bob Smith of the Braves three times in four meetings, but he was good enough yesterday to stop them after they had won 13 games in a row.

The Cubs beat their best spring record of last year, when they won 12 consecutive engagements. Manager McCarthy's job now will be to prevent the reaction that often causes a losing streak to follow a winning one.

IT WAS a notable baseball Sunday in several respects. For instance, Vic Aldridge broke into a box score for the first time this season. Meanwhile Burleigh Grimes has pitched nine games of his own for Pittsburgh besides doing relief duty in a couple of others.

Bucs Face Double Bill

with an error as he picked up the sphere and shot it to second in time to complete a force play. But that act was like locking the barn door after the horse had moved out. Had Paul held the ball he stood to throw out Val Picinich at the plate. Val is not a fleet runner and Paul did not have far to throw the ball. He was getting himself set nicely for the shot to the plate when the rocket fell from his hands.

P. WANER ERRS

The Pirate right fielder appeared to play George Kelly's fluke double poorly in the ninth, the extra base hit paving the way for the winning run. Purdy was out of the way when Kelly hit a high one to a point near the foul line. Brother Paul's fielding weakness is coming in on his left side and the shortcoming was on display as the loft fell in front of him.

Manager Hendricks quickly yanked Kelly off second in favor of Bill Zitzmann, a sprinter of parts. Ethan Allen was due to hit and what Ethan did will live happily in the memories of his local admirers who came to the park hoping that the boy with the heroic name would do something of a thrilling nature.

Yesterday was Ethan Allen day. The fine young collegian was presented with a whole arm full of presents, but up to the big moment of the ninth he had been unable to do anything of a remarkable nature. The cheers of Ethan's friends were ringing in his ears as he stepped up to the plate. Allen waited for a good offering and then slapped it hard and fairly down the left field marker for a clean hit, scoring Zitzmann.

LUCAS GETS WIN

And thus did Red Lucas add another victory to his long string, but Red, himself, will admit that he had to have nearly all the luck of the sport to get the decision in view of his rival's splendid performance. The first four Pirates who walked to the plate nicked Red for singles, driving in two runs. It seemed as if the Bucs were to decide the game in a hurry, but Pooch Barnhart hit into a double play with three runners on the sacks to bring the flurry to a close.

The Reds scored a run just about as quickly in their half. Critz started with a hit, but was forced by Purdy. "High Pockets" Kelly rammed out a real double at this early stage and Purdy counted from first. From that point until the eighth there was no runmaking, Grimes making a fine job of keeping the enemy batters off first base.

Ralston Hemsley was under the bat for the Pirates, the coal miner doing another fine job of receiving and throwing. He faced a test in handling a spitball, but he was equal to it all the way.

For the double-header today, Manager Bush has three pitchers groomed. John Miljus is likely to start one of the games with Dawson and Fussell in reserve for the other. Eppa Rixey will fling one of the contests for the Reds. Jake May is due for the other scrap.

Forbes

Money Developments Hit Stocks; Bulls Still Game.

By B. C. FORBES

THE stock market has displayed remarkable powers of resistance. Despite the fresh action of the Federal Reserve authorities in raising the New York rediscount rate to 4½ per cent and despite unfavorable news from the I. C. C., the average decline in quotations on the New York Stock Exchange for the week was only 3 points.

Bulls contend that this demonstration of inherent strength augurs excellently for the future of the market. In the writer's humble opinion, they are taking an overly optimistic view.

UNQUESTIONABLY the mainspring of the phenomenal bull market was the practically limitless supply of funds procurable at rates substantially below the yield on dividend-paying shares. There were, of course, other influences, other causes, but that was the one always most emphasized.

That condition is now definitely changed. That the change should bring a change in the movement of stock prices is strictly logical.

WHAT is the status of the money market today? The raising of the local rediscount rate sent call money in New York to 6 per cent, time money reached 5¼ to 5½ per cent and commercial paper and bankers' acceptances also were marked up.

In six weeks brokers' loans have expanded more than $500,000,000. Compared with a year ago cash held by the reserve banks has been reduced more than $400,000,000 and the ratio of reserve has fallen almost 10 per cent.

Meanwhile, no damper has been put upon gold exports. They promise soon to reach the $500,000,000 mark for the current outflow.

FROM now on speculators will find themselves charged higher carrying rates by brokers. These costs will be distinctly in excess of the income obtained from popular securities. Only one thing can make such a condition tenable, namely, a constant rise in stock quotations. But all past experiences suggest that a continued rise is not to be expected under such monetary conditions.

It may be that all old-time guides have entirely lost their meaning. However, the writer is old-fashioned enough to doubt this.

THE I. C. C.'s ruling on the ambitious Van Sweringen consolidation plan, not announced until after the stock market closed for the week, can not be construed as an incentive to unbridled speculation on the theory that tremendous railway amalgamations are about to be consummated.

The commission's announced determination to nullify the acquisition of control of the Wheeling and Lake Erie by the Baltimore and Ohio, the New York Central and the Nickel Plate affords further insight into the attitude of the commission towards the activities of powerful railway systems anxious to become still more powerful. It is anomalous that Congress should declare in favor of vast railway consolidations and that the body of its own creation, the I. C. C., should so act as to make the carrying out of Congress' wishes impossible.

What effect the commission's latest action will have upon railway securities remains to be seen. Oftener than once a ruling by the commission has had drastic influence on stock movements.

THE week brought lower prices for wheat, for corn, for rye, for oats and for cotton. Frequently heavy selling of stocks at sinking prices brings about depression on other exchanges regardless of weather conditions or other factors.

No significant changes have occurred in either industrial or general business conditions. The motor and the steel industries still lead in activity, with most other lines doing only fair or worse. Copper for export was marked up a trifle. Progress towards controlling oil over-production is slow, but leaders express confidence that things will gradually, though perhaps slowly, get better.

Retail trade, on the whole, continues distinctly uneven. The contrast between it and the boom in Wall Street is very marked—stock sales on the New York Exchange so far this year are more than 50 per cent ahead of last year, dealings for this year having exceeded 326,000,000 shares against less than 208,000,000 at this time last year.

RARELY in America's history has apathy in the financial world toward politics on the eve of presidential conventions equaled the apathy of the moment. In the highest financial circles one detects a slight lessening of confidence that Republican victory is certain.

OIL AND COPPER CHECK STOCK SKIDDING

NEW YORK, May 21.—(AP.)—Heavy buying of the oil and copper shares, which have not participated extensively in the recent "bull" movement, checked a general selling movement in today's stock market. Extreme declines, which ranged from 1 to 4 points in the standard industrials and rails and 5 to 11 points in some of the high-priced specialties, were cut down, or wiped out, and gains of 3 to 8 points marked up in a number of new leaders.

Despite the shortening of the trading session, the volume of business in the first few hours did not show any material increase in volume. The ticker, which has fallen 20 to 45 minutes behind the market on a number of recent occasions, was almost abreast of the market just before 1 p. m.

The demand for the coppers and oils was stimulated by records of improving trade conditions. Atlantic Refining, soaring 7 points above last Friday's final quotation, led the advance in that group while Greene Cananea Copper, selling 4 points higher, was in the vanguard of the red metal shares. Texas Corporation and Inspiration Copper moved into new high ground.

A further stiffening was noted in the money market when the money rates were quoted at 5⅜ to 5½ instead of 5¼ to 5⅜.

Call money renewed at 6 per cent but there appeared to be a plentiful supply available at that figure.

Airplane stocks, the wild gyrations of which have featured recent markets, were the hardest hit in the early selling movement. Curtiss broke 11 points to 134 and snapped back to around 140, and Wright dropped 8½ points to 194 and rebounded above 200. Baldwin fell 7½ points.

Trading, which had turned dull on the decline, picked up during the afternoon recovery. National Tea was marked up 8 points and Postum Cereal, American Brown Boveri common and preferred, Standard Milling, Atlantic Gulf and West Indies and American Bosch Magneto sold 2 to 5 points higher.

Chesapeake and Ohio broke 7 points in response to the I. C. C. decision denying that road permission to acquire the Erie, but authorizing the acquisition of the Pere Marquette and Hocking Valley.

The closing was weak. Prices of pivotal industrials, including U. S. Steel, General Motors, American Can and Radio were battered down again in the final hour, which nullified to a large extent the good effect of sentiment caused by the rise in coppers, oils and motor accessories. Collins and Aikman, which recently omitted the dividend, went up more than 5 points, and American Beet Sugar 7.

Dividend-paying rails, like New York Central, Union Pacific and Reading, again were offered down freely. Airplane issues slumped badly, their losses running from 12 to 15 points.

Total sales approximated 3,000,000 shares.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, May 21.—The cotton market opened steady today at an advance of 7 to 10 points and soon showed net advances of 15 to 26 points on covering or rebuying by recent sellers and some commission house demand promoted by relatively steady cables and reports of unsettled weather in the South.

July sold up to 21.14c and October to 21.18c, but these prices attracted considerable realizing, with reactions of 8 or 9 points from the best by the end of the first hour.

Private cables reported continental buying and trade calling in Liverpool supplied by liquidation on a more favorable view of the southern weather outlook.

Trading became quiet later in the morning. There was some selling on the improved western belt forecast, but nervousness over the weather and crop position generally gave evidence that offerings were chiefly realizing. The market at midday showed reaction of some 10 to 12 points from the best prices of the morning, but the tone was reported steady at net advance of 14 to 17 points.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, May 21.—Wheat prices turned downward today after an irregular start. Sellers were in a majority and appeared to be acting largely on reports that danger of further drought damage west and southwest has been dispelled for the time being. Initial quotations 1¼c off to ½c up were followed by material setbacks all around. Corn and oats were also easy, with corn opening at ¼@½c gain, but later showing a drop. Provisions tended upward.

At noon wheat was ⅞ to 1⅝c net lower and corn varying from ⅛c decline to ⅛c advance.

It required only scattered selling at times today to give the wheat market here a downward swing. At first, however, firmness of the Liverpool market was to some degree reflected here, and notice was accorded to reports that Argentine labor troubles were extending. On the other hand, bearish domestic crop advices proved soon to be more than a counter balance.

Corn displayed better rallying power than did wheat. Weather conditions over the corn belt were favorable, but current receipts of corn were said to be not nearly equal to mill demand, and firm reserves of corn taken as a whole were reported as unusually scant.

The following grain quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, May 21.—(AP.)—The raw sugar market was unchanged early today with no sales reported. Cuban holders were asking 4.52c, while some nearby duty frees were available at 1-32c less, with buyers showing no interest.

The easier London market and the failure of demand for refined sugar to broaden seemed responsible for increased selling pressure in the raw sugar market. Prices at mid-day showed net losses of 2 to 3 points. The demand was light and trading of small proportions. Operators were inclined to limit fresh commitments and await developments in Cuba today relatively to the disposal of 50,000 tons of sugar for export to countries outside of the United States. Houses with European connections were the principal sellers, influenced probably by figures of the International Association of Beet Sugar Producers showing the area planted to beet sugar in 14 European countries this year as 1,425,670 hectares, against 1,361,282 last year.

The demand for refined sugar was moderate and limited to nearby requirements. Prices were unchanged at 5.95@6.00c for fine granulated.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

No Change in Local Hours.

The Pittsburgh Stock Exchange directors today decided to keep the exchange open for the usual five-hour session today despite action of the New York Stock Exchange in closing that institution at 2 p. m. It was stated unofficially that the decision of the local board is not a final action on the matter, but that some of the officials expressed the opinion that maintenance of the usual trading hours here was desirable in view of the fact that the congestion and accumulation of back work necessitating closing in New York has not been experienced on the local exchange. It is probable there will be further consideration of the matter after the board has had an opportunity to observe the effect of the New York closing on the local business.

The Boston Stock Exchange voted to close at 2 p. m. daily until further notice. The exchange will be closed Saturday, May 26.

The Four-Hour Day.

Decision of the governing committee of the New York Stock Exchange to confine trading to the hours between 10 a. m. and 2 p. m., beginning today, impressed Wall street as possibly having some prophetic significance. It was remarked as curious that the governors of the exchange, who are good judges of market conditions, took their action after the New York Federal Reserve Bank has increased its rediscount rate with the recognized purpose of checking speculative excesses. One question much discussed was whether the four-hour day would lighten the total business or whether 4,000,000 shares or more would be crowded into the reduced trading period. Some thought the unexpected move was an attempt to find some scheme whereby recurrent Saturday holidays might be avoided. Many members of the exchange believe that it should not be closed on a business day because of emergencies that might arise making liquidation of stocks imperative.

Wright "Rights" Fall Back.

Wright Aeronautical Corporation "rights" came into the open market today with a bang, selling on the New York Curb at 24½ in the initial dealings. There was rather heavy selling, however, and the offerings brought a quick reaction to a level under 20. The Wrights corporation recently offered stockholders the privilege of subscribing to new stock at 100 per share on the basis of one new share for each five held. On the "big board" the Wright shares covered a range of about seven points in the forenoon session, after which they quieted down and appeared to be pegged around 200. Later the stock crashed about 15 points. The close on Wright Friday was 202½.

Copper Stocks Strong.

Copper stocks were the strongest group in the market with the advances in that section having an important influence on the main list. It is generally believed that earning of the leading copper companies recorded good increases in the first quarter and that subsequent periods will reflect the higher prices which are now ruling for the metal, although in many cases the effect of the latest advances will not be felt until the third quarter of the year. The metal is strong statistically and reports are heard that some dealers have oversold on their available supply for the next two months. Substantial improvement in the foreign demand has been one of the most important factors in the copper situation for several weeks. There also has been a big domestic buying movement in progress.

Atlantic Leads Oil Jump.

Shortly after the noon hour the oils started forward on a vigorous movement headed by Atlantic Refining. Atlantic reflected the improving conditions in the gasoline market, where prices have been rising and statistical conditions have been showing marked betterment. Other important oil shares followed the move in Atlantic and there was strong buying in Texas Corporation, Standard of California, Marland and others.

More Air-Rail Lines Forecast.

Announcements made during the past week regarding the entrance of the Pennsylvania and the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroads into air transportation, is evidence that commercial aviation is developing very much faster than was anticipated last year, in the opinion of E. Stewart Peck of Adams & Peck, New York. "This announcement will undoubtedly be the forerunner of many similar announcements by other railroads," said Mr. Peck, who has been the principal specialists in Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Company preferred stock. It is Mr. Peck's belief that in the near future it can be expected that such roads as the New Haven, Southern Pacific, the Chicago and Northwestern and the St. Paul will make arrangements for air service. These roads have not, as yet, announced any such service, but their routes appear to lend themselves favorably to this situation.

New Arkansas Gas Listed.

The securities committee of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange has admitted to the list 2,193,000 shares of 6 per cent preferred stock (par $10) of the Arkansas Natural Gas Corporation, and 4,084,225 shares of common, no par. Arkansas Gas Corporation is the new concern formed to take over the properties of the Arkansas Natural Gas Company and two other gas properties operating in the same area. The Arkansas Gas Company shares have been stricken from the list. Exchange was made on the basis of one share of common and .965 of a share of preferred in the new corporation for each share of the old company's stock.

Market "Correction" Desired.

One of the keenest observers in New York sums up the immediate market situation as follows: "The Federal Reserve Board last week gave further demonstration that it wants a more orderly stock market and a reduction in brokers' loans in the advance of the rediscount rate here and further selling of government securities. In other words, the money powers want lower prices for stocks—and the money powers get what they want sooner or later. None desires a bear market. Correction is the word used. That it is desired soon is evidenced by the Treasury's plans for a big refunding offering in June and also the fact that money rates are materially lower in England. International banking plans would be upset unless money rates here are brought down nearer those in England within a few months. Record breaking rate of increase in brokers' loans in the face of repeated warnings caused the more drastic measures taken by the reserve and continued ignoring of its desires will bring about harsher disciplinary steps. The Federal Reserve cannot abandon a campaign to correct a speculative situation with its purpose unachieved."

Oils and Rails Favored.

Hornblower & Weeks say in part: "Oils have a background of the most bullish trade news that has developed in a year, and it would be strange if advantage is not taken of the large drop in oil production, as well as increase in crude and refined prices, to bring stocks of these companies more into the limelight. Railroad stocks have the Chesapeake decision to work upon and the metal group has the highest copper metal prices in a long time, coupled with inside buying to generate something in the way of public enthusiasm on the buying side, general market conditions permitting."

Sees Temporary Reactions.

J. S. Bache & Co. wired A. E. Masten & Co. this morning as follows: "A period of perhaps a week or 10 days of irregularity and readjustments would in our opinion improve the market situation, technically and otherwise to a major extent. Recessions in seasoned stocks would probably invite excellent buying of the long-pull character. An extended bear movement is not anticipated, but sufficient reaction seems probable to warrant the reiteration of suggestions that holdings be examined carefully and that the more speculative portion thereof be disposed of. More attractive repurchasing levels are likely to be evident later in the week."

Texas-Louisiana Gas Combine.

Organization of a new holding company to serve as a vehicle for the consolidation, operation and management of natural gas properties in Texas and Louisiana was announced by O. R. Seagraves, who will head a new corporation. Properties in the proposed consolidation are valued at $75,000,000 and include the Houston Gulf Gas Company, Houston Gas and Fuel Company, Southern Gas Company, Dixie Gulf Gas Company, South Texas Gas Company and several others.

Steel Foundries Calls Stock.

The American Steel Foundries Company will redeem on June 30 the 22,130 of its preferred stock at $110 a share and accrued dividend, out of money in the sinking fund.

Employment Showing Gains.

A steady increase in volume of April employment, which is expected to continue throughout May, is reported by F. I. Jones, director-general of employment service of the Department of Labor.

Oil Operations in Harmony.

Little River operations in the Seminole area have agreed unanimously to delay starting any new drilling until June 15. Some dissension last week indicated the agreement might be abrogated, but complete harmony now prevails.

Cigaret Output Turns Down.

Production of small cigarets in the United States in April totaled 7,511,407,590, against 7,880,403,409 in April, a decrease of 4.92 per cent, according to the Internal Revenue Bureau. This is the first drop to be reported since November, 1921.

Fisher's Stock Index Up.

Prof. Irving Fisher's index number of stock exchange prices for the past week is 361.1, against 365.6 a week ago and 343 a month ago. Prof. Fisher's index number of commodity prices is 99.6 for the week, as against 99.6 the previous week and 99.1 a month ago.

Pathe Reports Loss for 1927.

Pathe Exchange, Inc., and subsidiaries report for the year ended December 31, 1927, net loss of $2,151,582 after depreciation, etc. This compares with net income of $899,676, equal after preferred dividends to $4.15 a share on 165,660 class A and 10,000 B shares in 1926. The report says that while results for the year have been very disappointing, it appears from available data that the company has "turned the corner" and is anticipating a satisfactory year. Surplus after dividends and bond interest was $902,672.

Margins Well Maintained.

In a circular on "Margins," one of the New York houses says in part: "Margins and margin requirements for trading in stocks have been items of news interest in recent weeks to an unusual degree. In the size of the margins maintained by speculators has been sought one explanation for the persistent strength of stock market prices. In the increasing size of margins required by New York Stock Exchange member firms has been seen a safeguard to continued firmness in the price structure. The significance of ample margins as a source of strength for stock market prices is obvious. Properly protected commitments will eliminate forced selling and thus reduce the danger of violent declines in prices."

Atchison Loadings Down.

Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe System handled 34,700 cars of revenue freight in week ended May 19 against 37,019 in same week last year.

Big Realty Issue Coming.

Probably the largest single piece of real estate financing ever negotiated, involving a total of $21,500,000, has just been arranged for construction of the largest office building in the world, the new 53-story Lincoln Building, to be erected on Forty-second street opposite Grand Central Terminal. Chase Securities Corporation will head a banking syndicate, including E. H. Rollins & Co., Harris, Forbes & Co. and Continental National Company, which will finance the project. This group will offer $16,000,000 first mortgage bonds, and a second syndicate, also headed by Chase Securities Corporation, will offer $5,500,000 debentures. Both issues are expected within a few days.

California Oil Production Off.

Total crude oil production in California for April amounted to 18,240,729 barrels, an average of 608,357 barrels per day. This was a decrease of 7,363 barrels daily as compared with March.

Wabash Minority to Fight P. R. R.

A minority group of stockholders of Wabash Railway Company may move today to secure an injunction restraining the Pennsylvania Railroad from voting its holdings of 500,000 shares of Wabash at the annual meeting in Fort Wayne, Ind., according to those familiar with the proceedings. It is claimed by the minority that it will move to restrain the Pennsylvania on the ground that the latter's purchase of Wabash shares from Delaware and Hudson Company is a violation of the Clayton act.

Surplus Cars Decrease.

Class 1 railroads on May 8 had 301,897 surplus freight cars in good repair and immediately available for service, American Railway Association announced. This was a decrease of 18,865 cars, compared with April 30.

U. S.-British Foreign Investments.

According to figures in the report of the economic committee of the League of Nations, British foreign investments are estimated roughly at £4,000,000,000, or equal to the pre-war level. Those of the United States are placed at £2,600,000,000, of which 30 per cent is invested in Europe, 28 per cent in Canada, 16 per cent in South America and 25 per cent in Central America and the Far East. World's gold reserves at the end of 1927 are figured at £2,519,800,000. Of that amount the United States is credited with £874,800,000, France £169,000,000, Great Britain £147,800,000 and Japan £123,800,000.

American Fruit Growers.

American Fruit Growers, Inc., reports for the year 1927 net operating profit of $468,800 after interest charges. Balance carried to surplus was $479,106, which included the operating profit and an item of $10,305 representing profit on sale of capital assets and miscellaneous adjustments. Company's bank loans on December 31, 1927, amounted to $1,099,474, as compared with $1,690,454 on December 31, 1926, and $2,211,975 on December 31, 1925. During the year $100,000 of 7 per cent convertible notes were paid, leaving a balance of $1,300,000 outstanding.

Sparks-Withington.

Stockholders of Sparks-Withington Company will vote May 31 on proposals to create a new issue of $1,000,000 of 6 per cent cumulative convertible preferred stock, $100 par, to increase the authorized common stock from 200,000 shares to 400,000 and to eliminate authorization of 10,000 shares of 7 per cent cumulative preferred.

Seminole Oil Production.

The Seminole area for the 24 hours ended at 7 a. m. Saturday produced 271,138 barrels of crude oil, against 269,184 barrels Friday and a peak of 527,400 barrels recorded on July 30, 1927.

Ward Cuts Tire Prices.

Montgomery, Ward & Co. today announced a reduction of 5 to 15 per cent in the prices of all grades of tires.

Call Money Rates.

The recent persistent 6 per cent call money rate has raised the question why the rate has never gone above that figure in the past seven years, and whether a higher rate is nowadays possible. Brokers were inclined to say that a rise above 6 per cent is unlikely, unless the Reserve Bank rate should for some reason be raised further. The stock exchange record showes that the last time the call money rate went above 6 per cent was on July 12, 1921, when it touched 6½. The Reserve Bank rate was then 6 per cent. On June 6, 1921, call money touched 7½ and on June 2 went to 8, but the bank rate was then 6½ per cent. One reason assigned for belief that no rate above 6 per cent is at present likely was that a higher rate would attract especially large amounts of out-of-town money. It was recalled that the rate went to 30 per cent on November 15, 1919, although the Reserve Bank rate was then only 4¾ per cent. The reason was, however, that while demand was urgent on the New York Stock Exchange, interior money markets were desperately tight and out-of-town markets therefore drawing on New York instead of helping.

Baldwin-Westinghouse.

The idea of combining Westinghouse Electric and Baldwin Locomotive has not been abandoned, according to reports from Philadelphia. In the early part of March the plan involving Baldwin in a combination with other companies leaked out and caused some concern, but negotiations between leading interests in Westinghouse Electric and Baldwin are said to be making satisfactory progress. In March, three companies were reported to be in the merger. Westinghouse Air Brake was included, forming a triple alliance with the title of Baldwin-Westinghouse Corporation, capitalized at $500,000,000.

Gasoline Market Stronger.

Increases in gasoline prices at refineries during the past week carried the average for United States motor grade at four principal refinery centers to 8.813 cents a gallon, against 8.625 cents the week before and 8 cents last year, says the Oil, Paint and Drug Reporter. Service stations prices also were higher, averaging at 10 important centers 19.67 cents a gallon, against 19.25 the previous week.

Fewer Active Cotton Spindles.

According to preliminary figures, 35,921,306 cotton spindles were in place on April 30 in the United States, of which 30,965,404 were in operation at some time during the month, compared with 32,886,984 for April, 1927, the Census Bureau reports.

COLONIAL TRUST MOVES UP

Prices held steady on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today with only fractional changes noted in the recent leaders and the volume of business showing a letup decline from the rate of dealings the early part of last week.

Lone Star Gas gave some evidence of coming back into favor as the trading leader in the early dealings, but after a short flurry in the first hour the stock quieted down and held close to the 52 level at which it has been selling for the past two weeks.

Further demand for Colonial Trust Company shares forced another rise in the stock to a new high record, but there was nothing in the way of news to account for the advance. Traders have heard gossip of the bank being linked up more closely with one of the big groups here but officials of the Colonial deny these rumors.

Shares of the new Arkansas Gas Corporation appeared in the official list for the first time today, but quotations showed no material change from the prices prevailing in the outside market the past week or so.

Miscellaneous industrials were very quiet with dealings in most instances confined to small lots at small fractional variations.

Pools made a brave effort to overcome the handicap of a renewal figure of 6 per cent for call loans and pressure against high priced stocks. Baldwin dropped 7½ to 250 and Chesapeake & Ohio 7 to 198. Impressive advances were accomplished, however, in the Copper, Postum, Pierce Arrow, American Brown Boveri, National Tea, Porto Rican Tobacco and Warner Bros. Pictures issues. Delaware & Hudson, after reaching 219½ fell back to 213¾.

NO. 271.

AN ORDINANCE—Authorizing and directing an increase in the indebtedness of the City of Pittsburgh in the sum of Seventy-Four Thousand Dollars ($74,000.00) and providing for the issue and sale of bonds of said City in said amount, to provide funds to pay all costs and expenses, including services, of making surveys, investigations, estimates and plans for the improvement for public uses and purposes of the river fronts of the Allegheny, Monongahela and Ohio Rivers within the City of Pittsburgh, for providing adequate and improved facilities and terminals for all forms of river traffic and for such changes and improvements in the street, sewerage and drainage systems of the City, and of properties affected thereby, as may be necessary to carry out the foregoing improvements, and for such other changes, improvements and measures as may be deemed necessary therefor or desirable in connection therewith, and providing for the redemption of said bonds and the payment of interest thereon.

Section 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same. That the indebtedness of the City of Pittsburgh be increased in the sum of Seventy-Four Thousand Dollars ($74,000.00), to provide funds to pay all costs and expenses, including services, of making surveys, investigations, estimates and plans for the improvement for public uses and purposes of the river fronts of the Allegheny, Monongahela and Ohio Rivers within the City of Pittsburgh, for providing adequate and improved facilities and terminals for all forms of river traffic and for such changes and improvements in the street, sewerage and drainage systems of the City, and of properties affected thereby, as may be necessary to carry out the foregoing improvements, and for such other changes, improvements and measures as may be deemed necessary therefor or desirable in connection therewith.

Section 2. That bonds of the City of Pittsburgh in the aggregate principal amount of Seventy-four Thousand ($74,000.00) Dollars be issued for the purposes aforesaid. Said bonds shall be in denominations of One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars or multiples thereof; shall be dated as of the first day of May, 1928, and shall be payable in Twenty equal annual installments of Three Thousand Seven Hundred Dollars ($3,700.00) each, one of which shall mature on the first day of May in each of the years 1929 to 1948 inclusive. Said bonds shall bear interest at the rate of Four and One-quarter per centum (4¼%) per annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of May and November in each year, without deduction for any taxes which may be levied thereon by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania pursuant to any present or future law, the payment of which is hereby assumed by the City of Pittsburgh. The principal and interest of said bonds shall be payable in lawful money of the United States of America at the office of the City Treasurer of said City. Said bonds shall be coupon bonds, exchangeable at the option of the holder for a registered bond or bonds of the same maturity and of the denomination of One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars or a multiple thereof, not exceeding the aggregate principal amount of the coupon bond or bonds surrendered in exchange therefor, by surrendering such coupon bond or bonds, with all coupons not then due, at the office of the City Controller, and the City Controller is hereby authorized and directed to cause such coupon and registered bonds to be engraved and to issue the same in the name of the City of Pittsburgh, the expense thereof to be charged to Appropriation No. 32 (Contingent Fund.) Registered bonds shall be registered with the City Treasurer, and shall be transferable only on the books of the said City Treasurer. Said bonds shall be signed by the Mayor, countersigned by the City Controller and sealed with the corporate seal of the City of Pittsburgh, and the coupons attached thereto shall be authenticated with a facsimile signature of the City Controller. In case of the absence or disability of any of such officials, the bonds shall be signed by the city official authorized by law or by resolution of Council to act in his place. Each of said bonds shall be known and designated as RIVER IMPROVEMENT BOND, 1928.

Section 3. That said bonds shall be sold by the Mayor and the City Controller at not less than par and accrued interest, after giving such notice of sale as may be required by law.

Section 4. That until said bonds, issued as herein provided, shall be fully paid, there is hereby levied and assessed annually upon all subjects now by law liable, or hereafter to be made liable, to assessment for taxation for City purposes, an annual tax, commencing the first year after said debt shall have been increased or incurred, namely the year 1929, sufficient to pay the interest on said bonds as the same shall accrue and become payable, and any tax on said interest which by the terms of said bonds is assumed by the City, and also an annual tax commencing in said year equal to Five Per Centum (5%) of the total amount of said bonds hereby authorized, to be set apart as a sinking fund for the payment of the principal and redemption of said bonds as they become due and payable according to their terms, and the same is hereby appropriated out of the revenue of said City for the payment and redemption aforesaid. There is also hereby appropriated out of the general revenue of said City an amount sufficient to meet the installment of interest due on said bonds during the current fiscal year.

Section 5. That all bonds issued by the authority of this ordinance and the Acts of Assembly authorizing the same shall be and become part of the funded debt of the City of Pittsburgh, and shall be entitled to all the rights, privileges and immunities thereof, and shall be free from taxation, as aforesaid, and for the payment of the principal of said bonds and the interest thereon semi-annually as the same shall become due and payable, the faith, honor, credit and property of said City are hereby pledged.

Section 6. That the form of coupon bonds issued in pursuance of this Ordinance shall be substantially as follows:

NO. 272.

AN ORDINANCE—Granting unto the Pittsburgh Railways Company, its successors, lessees and assigns, the right to enter upon and use certain streets and highways in the City of Pittsburgh for the purpose of constructing connecting curves at the corner of Sixteenth Street and Penn Avenue and at the corner of Sixteenth Street and Liberty Avenue, subject to the terms and conditions herein provided.

Whereas—Under the right granted in the Second Paragraph of Section 2 of the City of Pittsburgh Ordinance No. 62, Series 1925, entitled "An Ordinance granting unto the Pittsburgh Railways Company, its successors, lessees and assigns, the right to enter upon, use and occupy certain streets and highways in the City of Pittsburgh, subject to the terms and conditions herein provided," the Pittsburgh Railways Company, with the approval of the Department of Public Works of the City of Pittsburgh, installed its tracks over the following routes;

Beginning in the northbound track on the 16th Street Bridge Approach at right angles opposite a point in the east curb line of said bridge approach 66.50 feet, as measured northwardly along the said curb line from its intersection with the north curb line of Penn Avenue, thence by spiral and circular curve southeastwardly to a point of connection with the existing westbound track on Penn Avenue at right angles opposite a point in the north curb line of Penn Avenue 35.50 feet, more or less as measured eastwardly along the said curb line from its intersection point with the east curb line of the 16th Street Bridge Approach.

Beginning in the southbound track on the 16th Street Bridge Approach at right angles opposite a point in the west curb line of said bridge approach 60.75 feet, more or less as measured northwardly along the said curb line from its intersection with the north curb line of Penn Avenue, thence southwestwardly by spiral and circular curve to a point of connection with the westbound track on Penn Avenue situated at right angles opposite a point in the north curb line of Penn Avenue 34.50 feet more or less as measured westwardly along the said curb line from its intersection with the west curb line of the 16th Street Bridge Approach.

Beginning in the eastbound track on Liberty Avenue at right angles opposite a point in the north curb line of Liberty Avenue 41 feet, more or less as measured westwardly along the said curb line from its intersection with the west curb line of 16th Street, thence by a spiral and circular curve northeastwardly to a point of connection with the northbound track on 16th Street, situated at right angles opposite a point in the east curb line on 16th Street 49.20 feet, more or less northwardly as measured along the said curb line from its intersection with the north curb line of Liberty Avenue.

Beginning in the eastbound track on Liberty Avenue at right angles opposite a point in the north curb line of Liberty Avenue 41 feet, more or less as measured eastwardly along the said curb line from its intersection with the east curb line of 16th Street, thence by spiral and circular curve northwestwardly to a point of connection with the southbound track on 16th Street situated at right angles opposite a point in the west curb line of 16th Street 49.20 feet, more or less as measured northwardly along the said curb line from its intersection with the north curb line of Liberty Avenue.

Whereas—the right granted was only for the period of an emergency requiring the temporary discontinuance of street car operations over certain bridges in the City of Pittsburgh, as set forth in the above named Ordinance No. 62; and

Whereas—The Pittsburgh Railways Company desires to continue permanently the operation of its cars over the above described routes, notwithstanding the abatement of the emergency, the existence of which made necessary the enactment of Ordinance No. 62.

Section 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same. That the Pittsburgh Railways Company, its successors, lessees and assigns, shall have the right and they hereby authorized to enter upon, use and occupy for street railway purposes, the streets and highways in and along the four routes above indicated and fully described.

Section 2. The Pittsburgh Railways Company, its successors, leases and assigns, shall have the right and they are hereby authorized to maintain, operate and use the tracks on the streets hereinbefore mentioned, and which they constructed under authority of City Ordinance No. 62 above mentioned, together with the necessary turnouts and connections, and to operate cars thereon and to use electricity as a motive power and to erect, maintain and use in the streets and highways hereinbefore mentioned, such posts, poles and other supports as said company may deem convenient for the support and maintenance of an overhead system for the operation of street railways, subject, however, to the provisions of the ordinance approved February 25, 1890, entitled, "A General Ordinance relating to the entry upon, over or under, or the use or occupation of any street, lane or alley or any part thereof, for any purpose, by passenger or street railway companies or by companies operating passenger or street railways, and providing reasonable regulations pertaining thereto for the public convenience and safety."

Section 3. The company shall furnish clean, sanitary and well lighted cars, properly heated and ventilated, and shall provide sufficient cars to furnish reasonable service to accommodate the traffic.

Section 4. The Pittsburgh Railways Company may assign any of the rights hereinbefore granted to such of the underlying companies operated or to be operated by it as it deems proper, subject to the consent of Council of the City of Pittsburgh, and subject also to the acceptance by said underlying companies of all the terms and provisions of this ordinance.

Section 5. The term of this grant shall be for the period of fifty (50) years from the date of acceptance hereof.

Section 6. This ordinance shall be accepted by the Pittsburgh Railways Company within sixty (60) days after its passage or approval, by a certificate of acceptance of all the conditions and provisions thereof. Tha seid certificate to be executed under the corporate seal of the company, duly attested by the President or Vice President, and the Secretary or an Assistant Secretary thereof, and filed with the Controller of the City.

Section 7. That any ordinance or part of ordinance conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

Passed in Council May 14, 1928.
Approved May 16, 1928.

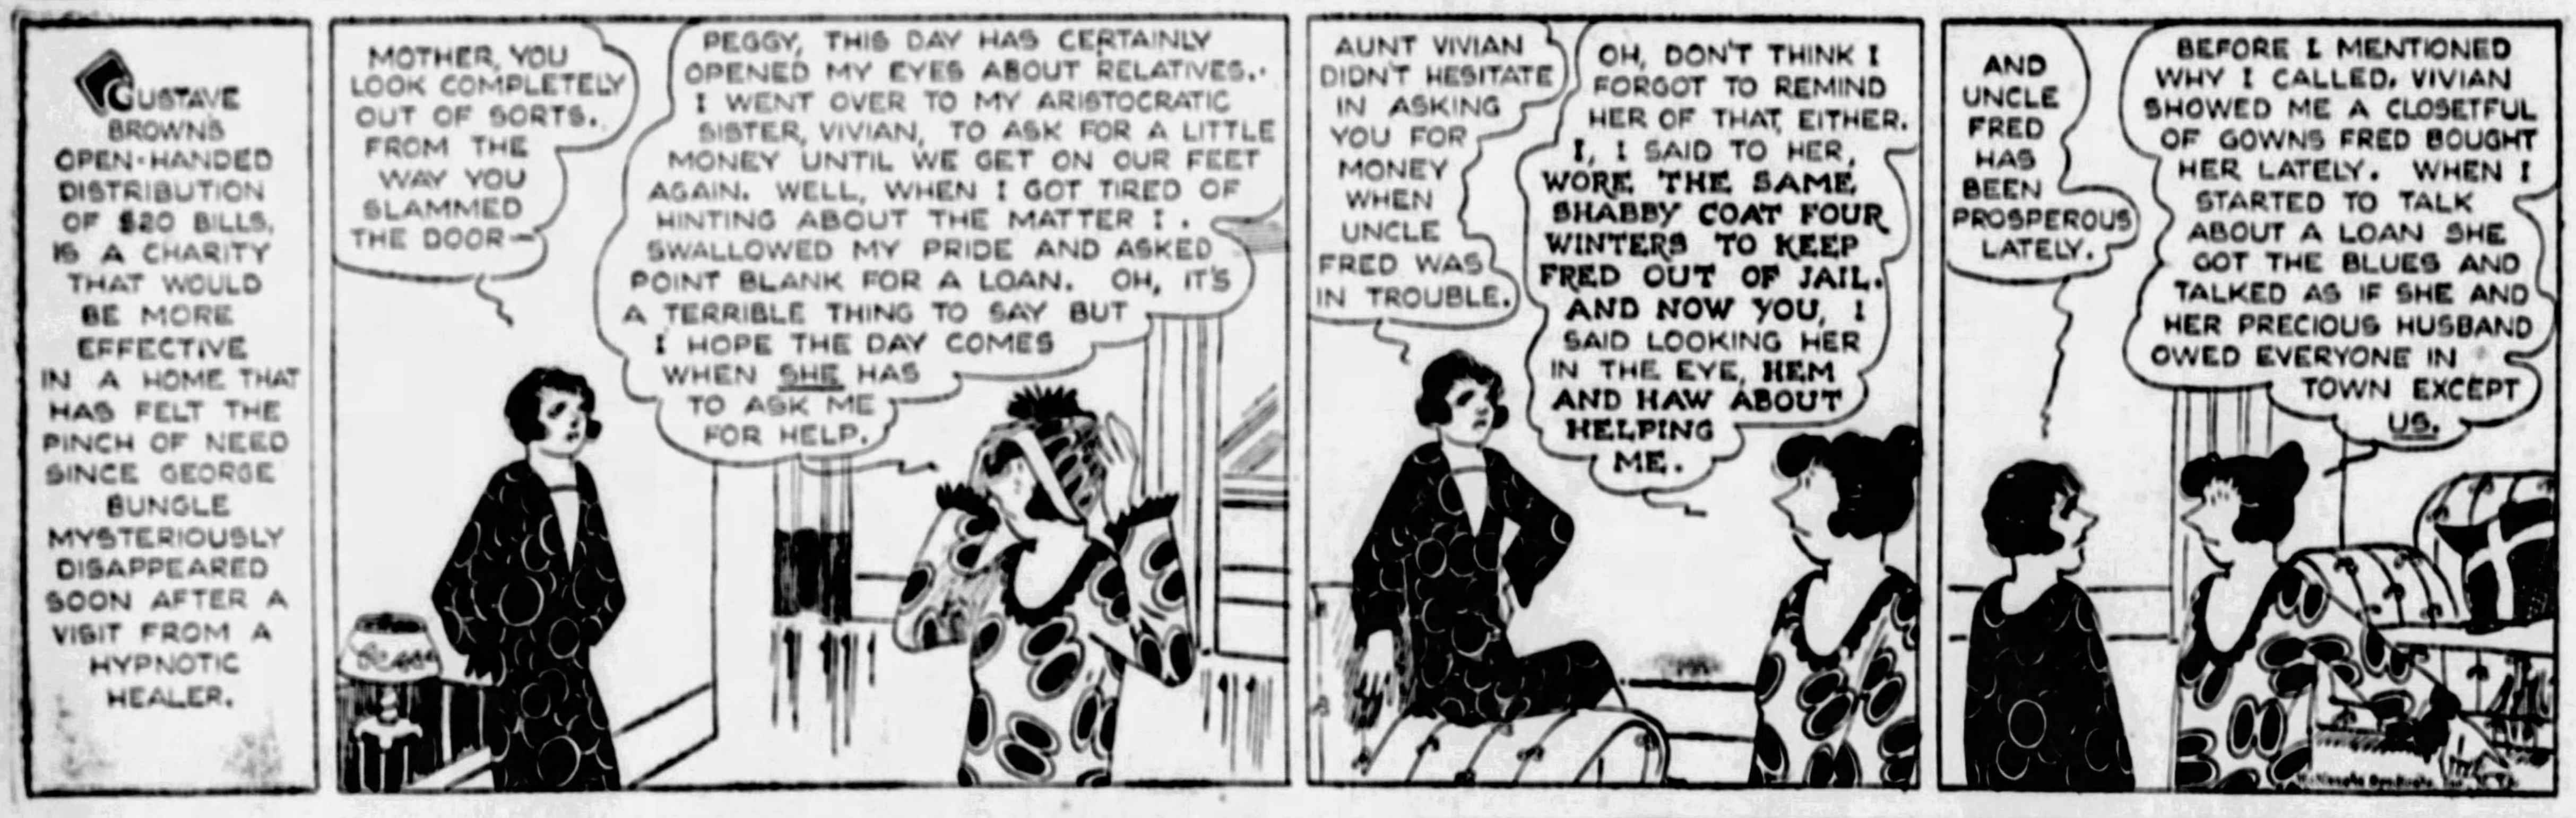
THE BUNGLE FAMILY

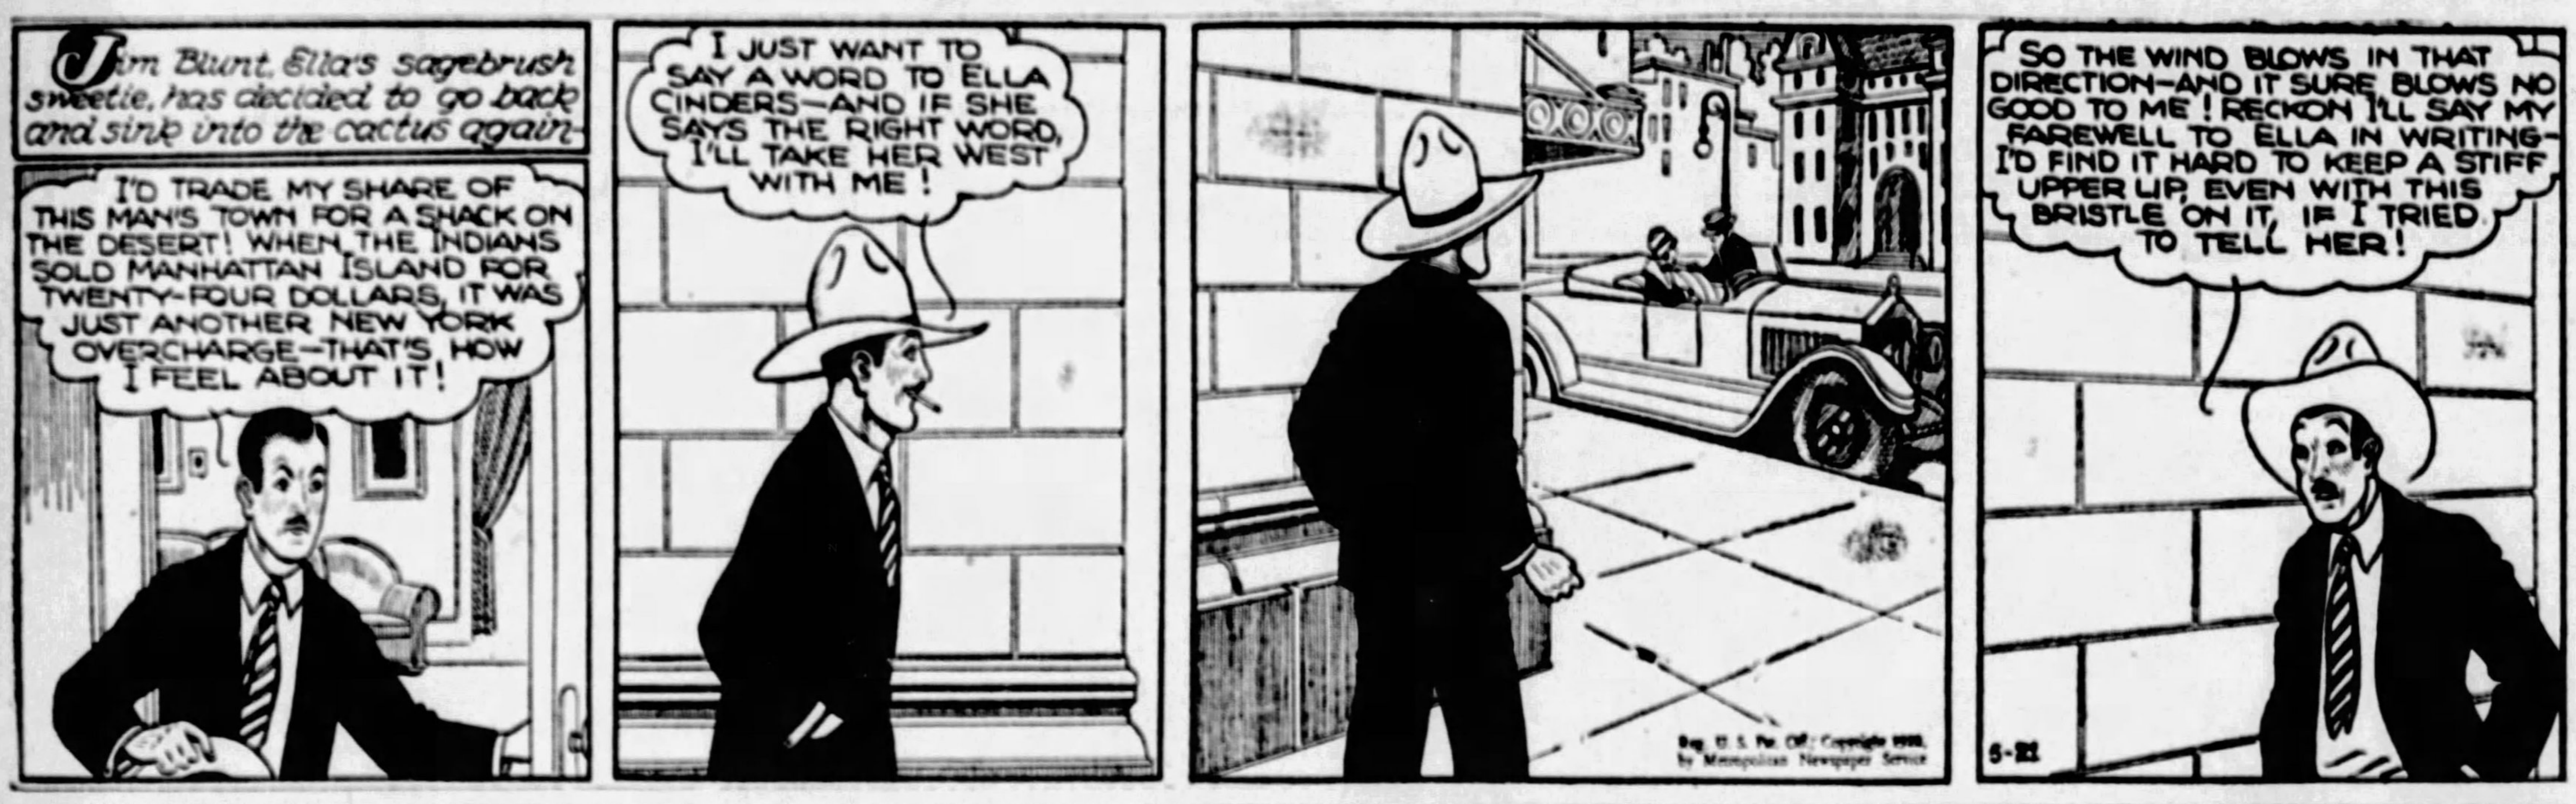
Ha, Relatives All Over



GUSTAVE BROWN'S OPEN-HANDED DISTRIBUTION OF $20 BILLS, IS A CHARITY THAT WOULD BE MORE EFFECTIVE IN A HOME THAT HAS FELT THE PINCH OF NEED SINCE GEORGE BUNGLE MYSTERIOUSLY DISAPPEARED SOON AFTER A VISIT FROM A HYPNOTIC HEALER.
MOTHER, YOU LOOK COMPLETELY OUT OF SORTS, FROM THE WAY YOU SLAMMED THE DOOR -
PEGGY, THIS DAY HAS CERTAINLY OPENED MY EYES ABOUT RELATIVES. I WENT OVER TO MY ARISTOCRATIC SISTER, VIVIAN, TO ASK FOR A LITTLE MONEY UNTIL WE GET ON OUR FEET AGAIN. WELL, WHEN I GOT TIRED OF HINTING ABOUT THE MATTER I SWALLOWED MY PRIDE AND ASKED POINT BLANK FOR A LOAN. OH, IT'S A TERRIBLE THING TO SAY BUT I HOPE THE DAY COMES WHEN SHE HAS TO ASK ME FOR HELP.
AUNT VIVIAN DIDN'T HESITATE IN ASKING YOU FOR MONEY WHEN UNCLE FRED WAS IN TROUBLE.
OH, DON'T THINK I FORGOT TO REMIND HER OF THAT, EITHER. I, I SAID TO HER, WORE THE SAME SHABBY COAT FOUR WINTERS TO KEEP FRED OUT OF JAIL. AND NOW YOU, I SAID LOOKING HER IN THE EYE, HEM AND HAW ABOUT HELPING ME.
AND UNCLE FRED HAS BEEN PROSPEROUS LATELY.
BEFORE I MENTIONED WHY I CALLED, VIVIAN SHOWED ME A CLOSETFUL OF GOWNS FRED BOUGHT HER LATELY. WHEN I STARTED TO TALK ABOUT A LOAN SHE GOT THE BLUES AND TALKED AS IF SHE AND HER PRECIOUS HUSBAND OWED EVERYONE IN TOWN EXCEPT US.

ELLA CINDERS

Poor Old Jim



Jim Blunt, Ella's sagebrush sweetie, has decided to go back and sink into the cactus again-
I'D TRADE MY SHARE OF THIS MAN'S TOWN FOR A SHACK ON THE DESERT! WHEN THE INDIANS SOLD MANHATTAN ISLAND FOR TWENTY-FOUR DOLLARS, IT WAS JUST ANOTHER NEW YORK OVERCHARGE—THAT'S HOW I FEEL ABOUT IT!
I JUST WANT TO SAY A WORD TO ELLA CINDERS—AND IF SHE SAYS THE RIGHT WORD, I'LL TAKE HER WEST WITH ME!
SO THE WIND BLOWS IN THAT DIRECTION—AND IT SURE BLOWS NO GOOD TO ME! RECKON I'LL SAY MY FAREWELL TO ELLA IN WRITING—I'D FIND IT HARD TO KEEP A STIFF UPPER LIP, EVEN WITH THIS BRISTLE ON IT, IF I TRIED TO TELL HER!

We Have Fifty Billion, So Why Be Pessimists?

Business as a whole is steady and industry in general is prospering and will continue to prosper. This is not the utterance of some "boomer" whistling to cheer himself up, but the substance of statements by Col. Leonard P. Ayres, of the Cleveland Trust Company, and Carl Snyder, statistician of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, men whose hands are on the commercial and industrial pulse.

Speaking to an assemblage in Pittsburgh, both predicted continued prosperity, with an added spurt after election. Attention was directed to the $50,000,000,000 representing the bank deposits in the United States. How is it possible for anybody to be pessimistic when we have that much money on hand?

Responsible Business Adopts Code of Ethics

The United States Chamber of Commerce has done a great public service by adopting a code of ethics. The obligation "scrupulously to discharge its collective responsibilities" is emphasized. That will interest stockholders of coal companies that repudiated wage agreements. The entire resolution of the chamber follows:

"The Chamber of Commerce of the United States declares its confidence in the general integrity and sound ideals of modern business. These are brought into high relief by recent disclosures of individual violation of established business practices.

"American business is jealous of its good name, insists upon protecting its professional status by the maintenance of the highest standards, and intends scrupulously to discharge its collective responsibilities. Chief among such responsibilities is that of purging business of all those who indulge in commercial and political corruption and through resort to unclean or unworthy practices bring business into disrepute and shock the sensibilities of all decent citizens.

"The chamber declares that the moral turpitude of corrupters of public servants is even greater than that of those whom they debauch.

"The chamber emphasizes its principle of business conduct, which provides that 'corporate forms do not absolve from or alter the moral obligations of individuals.' It maintains that stockholders of corporations owe it to themselves, to the government, and to the profession of business publicly to repudiate those who misrepresent them. Such stockholders cannot accept the profits flowing from corruption and escape the moral stigma which inheres in such profits. Neither can they permit those who act for them to profit personally through corrupt corporate transactions or shield others who do."

Profit Through Mistake On Mt. Washington Work

There is comfort in the report of Dr. E. R. Weidlein, of the Mellon Institute, who has been examining the concrete of the alleged "botched job" on the Mt. Washington roadway bridge. He declares most of the concrete to be satisfactory and that the visible surface defects in no way endanger the strength of the bridge. Indeed, he reports that special efforts to assure great strength were responsible for some of the faults now discernible.

However, Dr. Weidlein recommends bore cores be taken for tests to determine if there are defects in the mass such as appear on the surface. His recommendation is being followed.

His suggestion that there should be professional experts to supervise the work on future contracts also should be made part of engineering practice in the Department of Public Works, as well as such co-ordinating of preparatory work he thinks is essential to insure greater efficiency.

To make a mistake always is deplorable and sometimes much more costly than that represented in this roadway bridge, but a mistake is not an unforgivable sin. Not to profit through the experience, however, would be. So let the job be a lesson to our engineers. Make the best of it and take care to prevent a repetition of the same mistake in the future.

Dr. Weidlein reports that most of the concrete in the bridge is satisfactory. Be cheered by that.

Aviation

Some Feats in Its First Real Decade

Operation of an air mail service by the United States government began 10 years ago, with a daily, except Sunday, schedule between New York and Washington. It ended on September 1 last, when the route between New York and Chicago was turned over to a private contractor.

During this experimental period, before private enterprise was ready to assume the risks a total of nearly 16,000,000 miles was flown, or 93 per cent of the distance scheduled. Nearly 302,000,000 letters were carried with a loss of fewer than three in a thousand.

Throughout the period there was one fatality for each 694,414 miles of flight, but in the latest year of government operation this had been reduced to one for each 2,538,006 miles. Equal to more than 400 round-trip flights between New York and San Francisco in safety.

As was noted the other day, there are now 22 routes over which pilots fly daily, an average of nearly as many miles as would encircle the globe and carry three tons of mail with scarcely a hazard of loss.

And now we begin the adventure into transcontinental passenger flight on regular schedule, partly by train at first. Truly, American aviation is coming into its own.

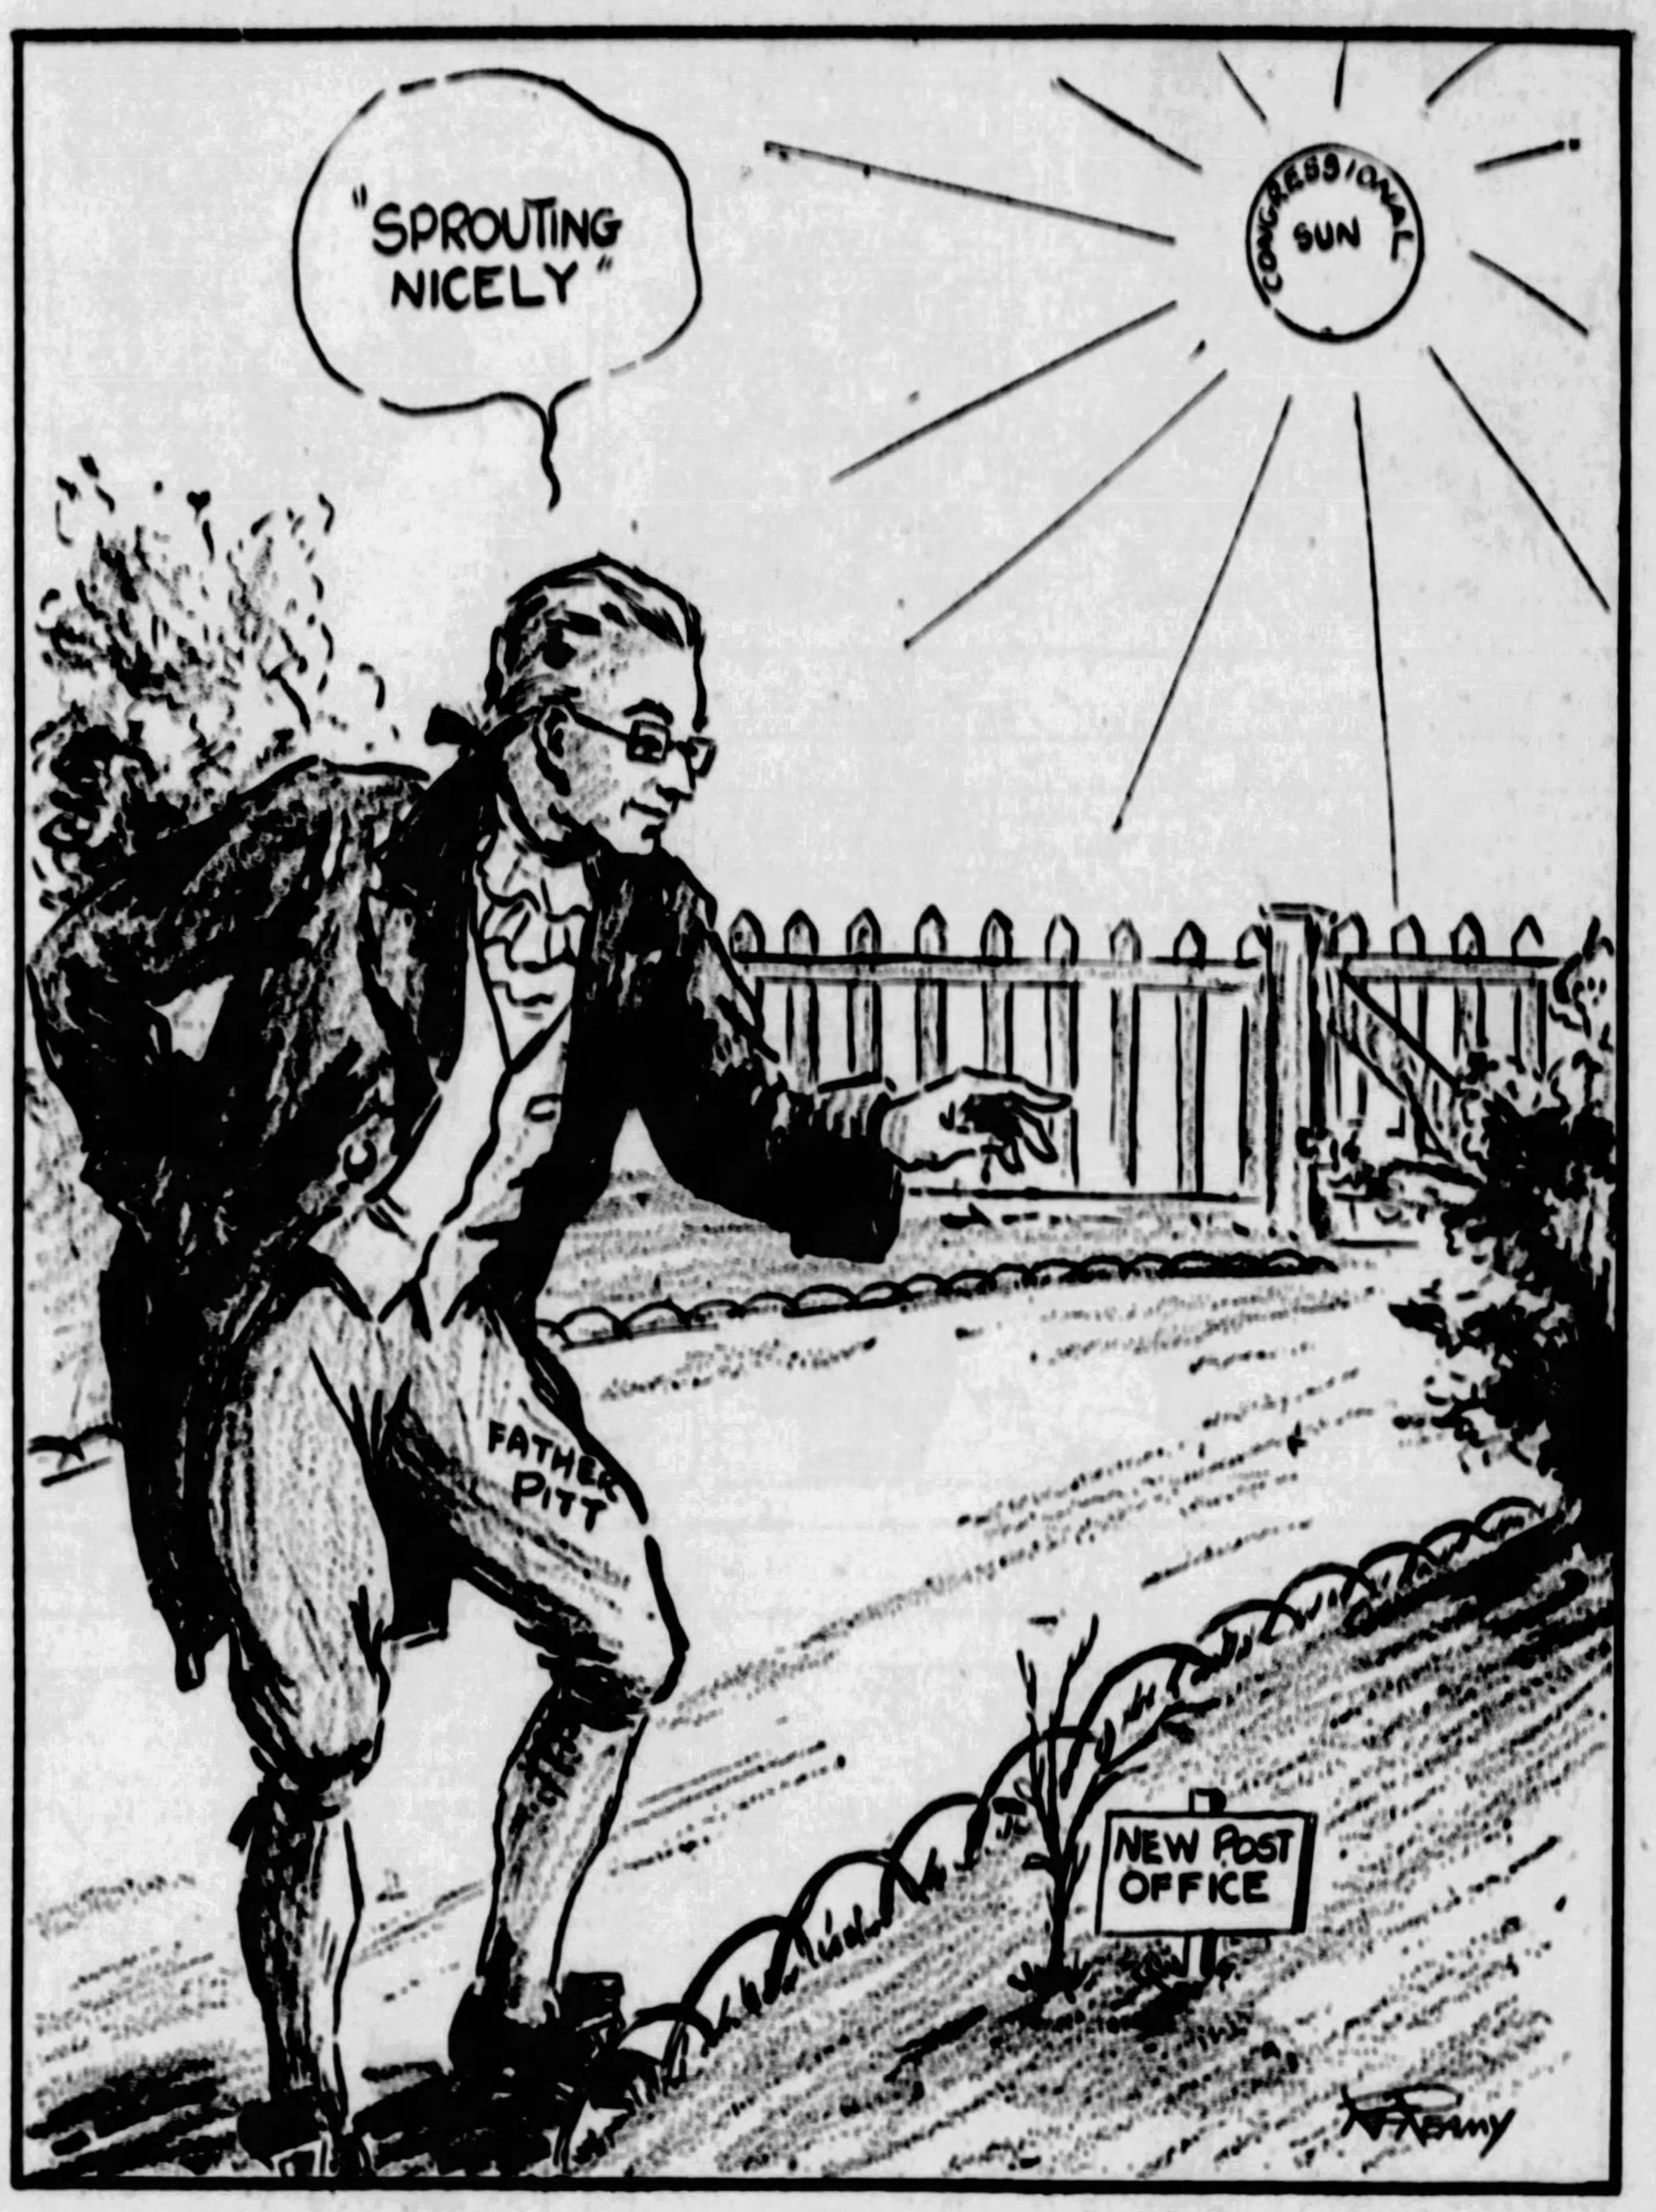
AT LAST IT'S GROWING



Garrett P. Serviss Says:

When the Earth is Pitcher

"Speaking about a baseball dropped from the Washington Monument and caught by "Gabby" Street of the Senators, does the ball increase in speed as it nears the earth? If there was a hole bored through the earth for the ball to drop into, would it keep increasing speed to the center of the earth, and where would it stop? A baseball weighs about five ounces; if it weighed more than that would it travel any faster?—E. F. S."

"GABBY" had conditions to face just the opposite of those on the diamond. A pitched ball loses velocity as it approaches the catcher; a ball falling under gravity on the contrary gains velocity. The Washington Monument is about 550 feet high. Neglecting the effect of air resistance, which would not be very great in this case, the ball would attain a velocity of 32 feet per second just one second after it was dropped. From that on it would gain additional velocity at the rate of 32 feet per second for each second that the fall lasted.

Now, the law of falling bodies tells us that the time of fall in seconds is expressed by one-quarter of the square root of the height in feet. The square root of 550 is about 23.452, which divided by 4 gives 5.86 seconds for the time of fall. Multiply this by 32, the gain of velocity for each second, and you see that the ball must have struck into "Gabby's" hands with a speed of nearly 188 feet per second, or 128 miles an hour. Weighing a quarter of a pound, it would have a kinetic energy of about 140 foot-pounds. How the catcher disposed of this is his secret; but the key to it lies in preventing the energy from expending itself instantaneously.

If the ball had dropped into a hole running straight through the center of the earth, and if again we neglect the effect of air resistance, and also that of the earth's rotation, it would have kept on until it reached the surface at the other end of the hole, when it would have started immediately to fall back again through the earth to Washington. After getting inside the earth its rate of increase of velocity would have begun to diminish, vanishing at the center, where, however, the actual velocity would have attained its maximum.

It would have consumed about twenty-one minutes in reaching the earth's center after entering the hole, and the same time in rising to the surface somewhere in the Indian Ocean west of Australia. The whole time of a round trip through the earth between Washington and the southern Indian Ocean would be about an hour and twenty-five minutes.

Increasing the weight of a body does not affect its speed of fall. If the ball weighed a pound instead of a quarter of a pound it would fall at the same velocity, but its striking energy would be four times as great, since that is proportional to the mass or weight.

One of the notable achievements of Galileo was proving that Aristotle was wrong in asserting that heavy bodies fall faster than light ones in proportion to their weight. Galileo gave a graphic proof by dropping cannon balls of various weights from the celebrated leaning Tower of Pisa. They all came crashing down at the same moment regardless of their weight.

You may think that Galileo was wrong and Aristotle right because a feather drops much slower than a marble; but this is a special case owing to the fact that on so expanded and relatively light an object as a feather the air resistance becomes very pronounced. But put both the marble and the feather inside an exhausted air-pump, and the feather will fall just as fast as the marble.

Once Overs

"High-Hat" No Good

YOU would like to be considered out of the ordinary.

Perhaps your contact with those after whom you have tried to pattern has been with persons who are trying the same kind of bluff.

The so-called "high-hat" manner that these persons exhibit appeals to you as the proper thing for a person who is out of the ordinary.

So, by your manner, your speech, your dress and general demeanor you are carrying out a studied effect quite foreign to your nature.

If what is written so far is true of you, you have never met the really out of the ordinary people.

Really great men and women do not pretend what they are not.

They are great because they are true to themselves.

Perhaps you have been disappointed in the persons whom you have met who have reached really high stations.

They did not reach the envied position by artificial means.

They have stood truly for something and have been recognized for what they really are.

You can't copy worth, you have to have it.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

For You

A TASK is here no hand save yours can do,
A task which through the ages waited you.
Men high and low have lived and dreamed and died
While yet this need remained, unsatisfied.
No other hand could touch this harp to song,
No other brain could right this ancient wrong,
No other strength could break from this duress,
No other eye could see this loveliness.
Doubt not, but give all force, all faith you own,
Unsought or sought, this task is yours alone!

Tales that are Told

The Lesser Evil

THERE was silence in the classroom. The delighted yell which had first gone the rounds had died away, and now the boys felt the price was to be paid.

"William Buster," demanded the teacher, "did you place that pin on my chair?"

"Please, sir—no, sir!" quavered the unlucky individual who had been fixed upon.

"Do you know who did?"

"Er—"

"Enough! I see you do know. His name—tell me his name!"

"I—I can't, teacher."

"Unless you tell me his name, you will receive his punishment."

There was silence for a moment, and then William advanced to the front of the class and submitted himself to bodily chastisement.

That afternoon, when the boys were trooping out, Buster was called back and presented with a penny.

"I was angry at the trick," explained his teacher; "but you were a noble lad not to betray your comrade."

"It—it wasn't that, teacher," explained William. "I knew if I gave him away I'd get a much worse licking than the one you gave me!"

Simple Arithmetic

A MAN with a wife and eleven children, many of them grown up, appeared at the entrance to an entertainment hall, bought two tickets, and demanded that the entire family should be admitted.

The doorkeeper declined to admit them with only two tickets.

"But all these are my children," said the man.

"Of course," said the doorkeeper; "but some of them are too old to be admitted free."

"Too old? What's that to do with it? Doesn't it say on your bills that children under twelve are admitted free with parents?"

"Yes."

"Well, I've got eleven children, and if eleven children aren't under twelve, I'm beat."

A Sun Secret

A RATHER dull student found it impossible to believe that the earth is round, in spite of the arguments of an eminent astronomer.

"But look here, Johnson," said the astronomer, "you must see that the earth cannot be anything else but round. Now, tell me, where does the sun rise?"

"In the east, of course!"

"And where does it set?"

"In the west."

"Well, then, how does it manage to get back in the east again by the morning?"

Johnson thought hard for a minute. Then an intelligent look dawned in his eye.

"Why, of course," he said at last, "it just slips back in the night!"

How It Sounded

A WOMAN with a bad cold attended a dinner, and although she had a poor appetite she was pressed to have some food.

"Oh, do," said her hosts for the tenth time.

"I couldn't," she replied. "I couldn't possibly eat ady bore."

They continued to press her to eat this and that, and at last she said: "Oh, very well; if I bust, I bust."

LISTEN, WORLD! ELSIE ROBINSON Says: Are You a Josephine?

WE often say that if we can make a person face the truth about his own cussedness he'll snap out of it. But it doesn't always follow. Take Josephine, for example.

The best thing that Josephine does is to face the truth about herself. It's her favorite indoor sport. About once a month she drops in at my office and faces the truth all over the place.

"I'm simply disgusted with myself, Elsie," she starts. "I actually believe that I'm the most miserable specimen of a human being on earth."

Then, with loud wheezes, she proceeds to tell me how lazy she is, how cowardly, how dishonest, how spiteful, how weak and generally all-wet.

After a half hour or so of this delightful dissection of herself, she pauses and asks my advice.

Does she get it? She does not. Not any more.

Once upon a time, before I got on to her, I used to give Josephine advice. I was genuinely touched by her confession, and I marveled that she was sincere when she asked for advice and I gave her the best I had. On two or three occasions, I followed this procedure, getting quite a wallop, of course, out of my own wisdom and importance. Then it began to dawn on me that Josephine was just putting on a show. So now I let her rave, and save my breath.

Josephine doesn't want any advice. She has no real determination to mend her ways. But like all human beings she has a desire for action—she wants to do something.

She's too lazy and self-indulgent to actually discipline herself. But she can bluff herself into thinking that she is, by staging a confession and calling herself names. So every so often she puts on her little show. And afterwards she goes away warmed and stimulated, feeling that she has really started to do something with herself.

The woods are full of Josephines.

And there's a streak of Josephine in every one of us.

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, May 21.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and an amusing night letter from Jack Pickford relating some Hollywood didoes of Wilson Mizner and cordial notes, too, from Francis Wilson, the actor, and Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., about something I had written that pleased them.

Nothing has such stimulating quality as praise, yet I receive very little. Worked awhile and to an office where I articled to write exclusively for a group of magazines for a year which will not be a heart-breaking disappointment to the others.

In the evening with my wife to Joe Moore's for dinner and inquired if a picture on the wall was not by Rembrandt, a wild guess, but it was, and, thus emboldened, began to dissertate on art, which I knew nothing about, and became confused. So home to bed where I belonged.

A social lion of the season is an Indian—Buffalo Chief Long Lance, who has been invited everywhere. His introduction to society came about in an amusing manner. A hostess bagged him for one of her smart dinners and rounded up a distinguished crowd to meet him.

After they assembled she explained they must pardon any show of primitive manners on the part of the guest of honor who was to arrive shortly, and in view of the probable antics of an Indian off the reservation no "fire water" would be served.

The guests sat expectantly, supposing they would see a redskin in war paint all fussed up with feathers, tribal emblems and perhaps waving a tomahawk, come in with a warwhoop. Finally, a butler gravely announced: "Chief Long Lance, of the Black Feet."

And into the reception room came a tall gentleman in full evening dress and a monocle dangling at his white weskit. He was straight as an arrow, with smoothly brushed black hair, broad shoulders and waspish waist—a sepia edition of the late Valentino.

It developed Chief Long Lance was graduated from three universities, speaks with an Oxonian accent and has graced royal festal boards all over Europe. He is in addition a writer of repute, dances divinely, and so, quite naturally, became a social wow.

The very rich now send gifts to returning voyagers in the same manner as when they sail. Thus a passenger returning from abroad is likely to find his apartment heaped with presents in Xmas fashion. The idea is the work of a press agent. He induced proprietors of specialty and gift shops to launch propaganda by circulars and advertisements bearing out the "return gift" plan. And it clicked.

A gentleman—at least I suppose he is, he has a valet—gave a dinner the other evening and after the guests had collected escorted them into a room where a laboratory chemist in white uniform was stationed among the bottles of liquor. The chemist gravely made a test of the supply and certified to their purity. Then drinks were served as though anybody cared whether they were poisonous or not.

He was one of those singers hitting high C's at an afternoon tea and whose name you felt might be Paul. In an effort to be sociable I inquired if he had attended a certain operetta. It happened he was the head man in it, and from the look he gave me it was evident he would never care for me in a big way.

International Good Will Day

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Monday, May 21, is the first anniversity of Lindbergh's landing in Paris.

Lindbergh inaugurated a new kind of diplomacy on his epoch-making flight from New York to Paris and he was heartily welcomed by a friendly people.

When he visited the South American countries he was equally acclaimed by them. Wherever he has gone he has been received as a messenger of peace and good will among peoples.

It is no exaggeration to say that his visits to these various countries have done more for the good feeling of the peoples of the various nations than anything that has happened for centuries.

We cannot too often emphasize every occasion to cement the friendship which binds us to other nations. This is our best reliance in time of war or trouble. The best defense of any nation is its friendships and good will with other nations.

The President has referred to Lindbergh as "an illustrious citizen, a conqueror of the air and strengthener of the ties which bind us to our sister nations across the sea."

It is an occasion well worthy of an anniversary and worthy to be recognized in some form commensurate with its vital importance.

The building of an air force of any country should be looked upon as an institution of friendship and not of hostility toward other countries. Rapid and efficient transportation is the best means for breaking down the bars of provincialism with which certain minds are always seeking to surround their nation.

Col. Lindbergh's exploit was not that of an American citizen so much as of a human being that might have been born anywhere, and his daring deed appeals to the adventurous and youthful of all lands, and all should be invited to share in making this celebration of the anniversary and of his exploit an occasion of good will.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD.

A WOMAN writer tells us: "Among the strange misconceptions on our rather quaint little planet, is the one that women are home bodies."

Well, it has been a long time since anybody said they were.

The writer adds: "Men are the home bodies."

They used to be when they could eat there.

The women figure that if they have to go to the bakery for things to eat, and bring them home and serve them, they can save time by eating out. Time used to be what wives had nothing else. Now, with bridge parties, and matinees, and finding reliable speakeasies, life is entirely too intricate.

Miss Elizabeth Marbury has written a musical comedy in which there are no chorus girls. Every one of the 15 girls in the play has a speaking part.

That's giving the girls their equal rights. Just one big happy family!

Chorus girls don't have to speak. Especially Zigfeld girls. They do say a word now and then. Usually "Yes," and to millionaires, but if they got to talking, they might distract attention, and not get to say that.

In the morning's papers there were seven stories about men who had shot and killed their women—wives or sweethearts—and five of them afterward tried to kill themselves.

It used to be the women who went mad on love. Things seem to be all topsy-turvy.

Only a few years ago the Chicago county jail held eight women who had killed their men, and not a woman-killer in the place.

A. B. See, in his late book flaying women, says that it is the female of the species who read the bad books, see the bad plays and behave in a shocking manner. And today we hear that in Bradford, England, five thousand women fought to get into a theater to see a sex play, and had a fist fight with the police who tried to restore order.

And they ranged, in ages, from sixteen to sixty.

Annie Stainton, of New York, 104 years old, used to drink beer regularly till it went to 15 cents. That was too much and she waxed wrath and quit.

A wealthy man once walked out of a well-known Chicago hotel because they charged 35 cents for coffee. He said no coffee in the world was worth 35 cents a cup. He was the guest of a friend, too, but he refused to let the friend pay 35 cents for the coffee.

If everybody had that much courage coffee would drop to 10 cents again. But, poor Mrs. Stainton! Who could do anything for her?
